Dorsey's Prosecutor Tries to Quit

3 HOPKINS MEN AND GREW WILL AID STETTINIUS

3 Hull Assistants Are Swept Out.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The new secretary of state, Edward R. Stettinius, 44, swung his new broom today and swept out three assistant secretaries of state to be replaced by favorites of Harry Hopkins, chief White House favorite.

Joseph C. Grew.

Concurrently President Roosevelt sent to the senate the nomination of Joseph C. Grew of New Hampshire to succeed Mr. Stettinius as undersecretary of state.

Grew, a close friend of the President and ambassador to Japan from 1933 to Pearl Harbor, is at present director of the state department for far eastern affairs. He served for a time as undersecretary of state in the Coolidge administration.

New Hopkins Group.

The Hopkins favorites whose nominations the President also sent to the senate are:

William L. Clayton of Texas, millionaire cotton factor and long-time business associate of Secretary of Commerce Jones, to be assistant secretary of state in charge of foreign economic affairs.

Archibald MacLeish, poet and librarian of congress, to be assistant secretary of state in charge of public and cultural relations.

Nelson A. Rockefeller, son of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and now coördinator of inter-American affairs, to be assistant secretary of state in charge of relations with the American republics.

Three Swept Out.

The three assistant secretaries of state under Cordell Hull swept out by the Stettinius broom are:

Adolf A. Berle Jr., now serving as chairman of the international civil aviation conference in Chicago.

Breckinridge Long, a veteran office holder in the Wilson and Roosevelt administrations now in charge of relations of the state department with congress.

G. Howland Shaw, a career diplomat whose present duties include those of budget officer and security officer.

The only assistant secretary who survived the shakeup is Dean Acheson, who now takes on more important duties as liaison officer with congress and in handling international conferences.

Aimed at Efficiency.

Altho the President said he accepted the resignations of Berle, Long, and Shaw "with great regret," all three having "rendered outstanding service to the country in the posts which they have filled with great distinction," he indicated the shakeup is intended to make for a greater degree of efficiency, for he added that "other appointments strengthening the state department will be made in the near future."

The additional appointments are to be made when congress passes a pending bill to create two additional assistant secretaries of state.

Berle has been under a cloud as a result of his handling of the civil aviation conference in Chicago. It became necessary for Sen. Bailey [D., N. C.], chairman of the senate commerce committee and a member of the American delegation, to intervene to prevent a sacrifice of America's rights and interests in civil aviation.

The President said Berle would remain chairman of the American delegation, but his connection with civil aviation affairs is to end with the Chicago conference. Civil aviation is to be within the jurisdiction of Mr. Clayton.

Judge Refuses; Icaza Testifies Pat Cut Hall

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 4 (AP).—The prosecution tried to throw in the towel today in the trial of Bandleader Tommy Dorsey, his wife, and their neighbor, Allen Smiley, on charges of feloniously assaulting Screen Actor Jon Hall, but the court tossed it right back.

Altho it had been anticipated that the defense would seek a dismissal, it was Prosecutor Edwin Myers who actually made the motion, on the ground there was not proper evidence on which to proceed with the trial, now in its second week. Judge Arthur Crum denied the motion, without explanation.

This was one of two surprises that enlivened a confusing mass of testimony by a witness who not only advised the court repeatedly that he was confused, but accused defense counsel of trying to confuse him further.

Pacht Reads Deposition.

The other was the outburst from the same witness, Panamanian Actor Antonio Icaza, when he was asked if he had ever been convicted of a felony.

Isaac Pacht, attorney for the Dorseys, read at length from a deposition purportedly made by Icaza in a $40,000 damage action filed against Dorsey following a fight in the Dorsey apartment Aug. 5. After Icaza spent most of the day insisting he couldn't remember testifying in his deposition to many phases of the fight, Pacht protested to the court against the witness' "arrogance toward counsel and avoidance of questions."

Pacht had stated he was using the deposition in an effort to show that Icaza wasn't even in the Dorsey apartment when the fight occurred. Finally he asked Icaza:

"Don't you know that you are committing perjury in this case?"

Icaza's Lawyer Ejected.

Icaza's attorney, A. A. Coviello, leaped to his feet with an objection — and was promptly ejected from the courtroom.

"I understand Mr. Coviello is somewhat deaf, and may not be able to follow proceedings fully," Judge Crum said after court adjourned, "but counsel for witnesses have no place in the courtroom, and he should know that."

Earlier in the day Coviello had been warned that he had nothing to do with the case, and was threatened with ejection.

Pacht then asked Icaza if he had ever been convicted of a felony.

"You have no right to interfere in my personal affairs," bristled Icaza. When the bench instructed him to answer, he shouted, "No!"

Denies Prison Term.

"Well, have you ever served a term in prison?" pursued Pacht.

Again Icaza shouted, "No!"

Prosecutor Myers had had enough. After a 10 minute recess which he requested he appeared, glum and downcast, before Judge Crum and made the unusual motion to kill his own case.

"It is the feeling of ourselves that the district attorney's office can neither condone nor sponsor testimony of this kind," he said, motioning toward Icaza. "We feel that continuation of this case would be an unnecessary expense to the state.

"I cannot ask the jury to convict these defendants on the basis

BRITISH DEVELOP MOTOR FUEL OUT OF METHANE GAS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Methane gas—the scientific name for firedamp and the cause of many mining tragedies—is being produced in Britain with government backing as a liquid fuel capable of propelling motor and airplane engines, it was reported tonight.

There is said to be an almost inexhaustible supply of methane in coal mines in this country. Experiments at Imperial college by a team of scientists headed by Alfred Egerton and sponsored by the ministry of war transport, have reached an advanced stage, it is claimed. Tests have been carried out on a motor bus, which has covered more than 10,000 miles on the new fuel.

Adaptation of autos to the use of methane liquid gas is said to be relatively simple. Conversion involves fitting an atomizer in place of the carburetor and a special vacuum tank instead of the normal gas tank.

Vote World War I. Widows Pension

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—The first pension bill for World War I. widows and orphans ever to reach the floor of the senate passed that branch of congress today without debate.

Authorizing benefits ranging up to $74 monthly, and estimated to cost $37,000,000 in its first year of operation, the bill previously had passed the house, but must return there for action on extensive amendments.

$5 for Each Child.

Limited to widows and children of veterans of the first World war, the bill provides a basic rate of $35 monthly for widows and $45 for a widow with one child. The house bill fixed a rate of $30 for a childless widow and $38 for a widow with one child.

The senate approved benefit scale allows $5 for each additional child. In the case of orphans, benefits would start at $18 and range up to $36 for three orphans of the same veteran, plus $4 for each additional orphan.

Altho the house on four previous occasions had passed similar bills to aid dependents of World War I. veterans, this measure was the first ever to come to senate vote. It was passed by a voice vote.

List of Eligibles.

The widow of a first World war veteran who served 90 days or more, and who was married to him at the effective date of the act, or was continuously married to a veteran for 10 years after the effective date of the law, would be eligible for benefits. A childless widow having an income of $1,000 a year or more or a widow with children with an income of $2,500 would be ineligible.

Cecil de Mille Fights Union Political Levy

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 4 [Special.]—Cecil B. de Mille, veteran movie and radio drama producer, said today he would give up his radio work—reputed to pay him $5,000 a week—rather than submit to a union order to pay $1 toward a campaign fund to oppose a proposed state constitutional amendment regarding labor.

He also indicated he will institute legal action against the AFL American Federation of Radio Artists for ordering his suspension from that organization, effective Dec. 11, for his failure to pay the $1 assessment levied by the federation's board of directors.

Amendment Defeated.

The proposed amendment, identified as "proposition 12," which De Mille favored but which was defeated by California voters in the Nov. 7 election, provided for the right of employment free from interference whether or not an employe belongs to a labor organization and whether or not he pays money to it.

De Mille said that when he was informed by the federation by letter that he had been assessed $1 to oppose the proposition and would be suspended if he didn't pay, he didn't even know at that time what the proposition was. He was prompted to refuse to pay the assessment, he explained, by the fact that it was an issue soon thereafter to be decided at the polls by the voters of California.

Charges Rights Usurped.

"The question is basic and simple, and it has nothing to do with unions or the merits of proposition 12," he asserted. "It is: Can any organization, as such, usurp the rights of an American voter and arbitrarily make up his mind for him that he must support or oppose any proposition on the ballot?

"I believe that under the Constitution of the United States no organization should have that right. I might afford to lose $1 but I can't afford to lose my rights as an American citizen, or my respect for myself. Therefore, I couldn't pay the assessment, altho I am a union man and a supporter of and believer in unions."

V-2S TO HURL MAIL OVER U.S. WHEN WAR ENDS, EXPERT SAYS

Flying mail carriers similar in construction to Germany's V-2 bombs, minus the explosives, were predicted yesterday for the post-war era by G. Edward Pendray, assistant to the president of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and secretary of the American Rocket society. He spoke at the national 4-H club congress in the Stevens hotel.

Jet propelled projectiles will convey mail and express to distant parts of the nation in a matter of minutes, he said. Rockets will also be used to climb into the stratosphere to take atmospheric data for meteorologists and enable them to forecast the weather two weeks in advance instead of two days, he predicted.

Pendray said the war has proved the practical value of rockets and that researchers will make rapid strides in the development of all jet propelled projectiles. "Some of them will travel two miles a second," he added. He was in Chicago to present six $200 scholarships to winners of the rural electrification contest, which was sponsored by his company.

56 OF WARSHIP CREW RESCUED BY ONE PLANE

Destroyer Sunk in 55 Seconds.

ABOARD A SEAPLANE TENDER IN LEYTE GULF, Dec. 4 (AP).—An aerial torpedo broke an American destroyer in two Sunday morning in a nocturnal engagement between United States destroyers in Ormoc bay and Japanese surface forces, shore batteries, and aircraft.

A great shudder rent the ship as the missile struck amidships. There was no blinding flash nor explosion. The ship keeled over 90 degrees. Her beam and stern came together and she went down in two pieces.

One hundred and fifty of the crew were picked up by Catalina patrol planes with fighter protection.

Sinks in 55 Seconds.

Within 55 seconds after the hit "she literally sank from under us," said the captain. The ship's company tumbled into the water as the destroyer went under—a single 20 mm. gun still firing at the enemy until silenced by the sea.

At about 3 a. m. several hundred men found themselves floating three miles from enemy guns, with only a heavy oil slick and debris remaining of their ship. There was nothing to do but keep afloat and wait for rescue. They clung to logs, rubber nets, canisters—anything to keep their heads up.

Twelve hours later two navy Blackcat flying boats were able to penetrate the heavy weather front and drop down beside clusters of weary survivors.

Picks Up 56 Men.

Lieutenants [j. g.] Joe F. Ball of Fullerton, Cal., and Melvin Essary of Fort Dodge, Ia., taxied their Catalina rescue planes to the largest group of men they could find, cut their engines, and threw out lines.

By 2:30 p. m. Ball had picked up two officers [including the skipper] and 54 enlisted men. Four enlisted men, seriously injured, were placed on stretchers. Others crowded into gun blisters and jammed the fuselage and tail compartment.

With his crew of seven, Ball had 63 men in his plane—a number exceeded only once during a rescue operation in the Solomon Islands.

Ball gave his engines the richest mixture and scudded three miles down Ormoc bay, within sight of thousands of enemy troops, before finally getting up and away. The performance drew highest praise from his commanding officer.

Lt. Essary likewise was busy,

Home Troops Battle Canada War Veterans

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 4 (AP).—Troops of Canada's conscripted home army, now liable to be sent to fight abroad under the government's new policy, battled with regular service men and townspeople for three hours at Fort Frances, Ontario, Saturday night, it was disclosed tonight.

Six persons were injured, including high school girls and members of the draftee home army, originally conscripted for service only in the western hemisphere. Some participants were reported to have been armed.

Fight Thru Hotel.

Police at Fort Frances, which is on the United States border 140 miles northwest of Duluth, Minn., declined to give details of the clash except to say that the situation was now in hand. Defense headquarters in Ottawa said it was not yet in possession of all the facts.

The outbreak followed a week of tension over employment of the draftee troops on railroad work. Fighting broke out about 11 p. m. as the draftees wandered thru the town, involving veterans of the first World war and the present one, and service men home on leave from foreign theaters.

The fighting swayed thru a hotel, a cafe and in the Canadian National Railways depot. The draftees were called "Germans" and saboteurs by their opponents and by crowds which gathered.

French Canadians in Town.

Military headquarters at Winnipeg said a group of "approximately 100" French Canadian troops from a Quebec unit had been at Fort Frances Saturday night, but there was no report of their having been in a clash. The Ottawa spokesman said he did not know whether the troops involved were French speaking.

The home defense men were taken out of the town Sunday afternoon on the way to Shilo camp, Manitoba. They had been awaiting entrainment when the clash occurred. An Ottawa spokesman said the men were being moved in accordance with a new decision to confine high medical category men to military effort.

Debate on Draft Dwindles.

The government issue over conscription seemed resolved in its parliamentary phases, with Prime Minister King's government almost certainly assured of victory in a vote of confidence expected to be taken in midweek by parliament.

Debate on the government's confidence motion has dwindled to speeches by members of parliament putting on record their individual views. The principal speakers on all sides took their stands last week.

The possibility of a general election before the end of the European war appeared to be fading. Canadian newspapers of all shades of opinion reflected a public desire to get on with the war, and there was agreeing opinion on Parliament hill that if the European war is not over by next April, when the term of the present parliament expires, a way will be found to avoid a war time election. One method of doing this, an extension of parliament, was receiving increasing attention.

SAARBRUCKEN UNDER FIRE OF U.S. 8 INCH GUNS

3d Army Push Gains Nearly 4 Miles.

PARIS, Dec. 4 (AP). — Lt. Gen. Patton's United States 3d army, lashing out along a 21 mile front, drove forward today nearly four miles to within six and a half miles of the Saar basin's greatest industrial city of Saarbrucken, and hammered it with eight inch artillery.

The French cities of Forbach and Sarreguemines, screening that German city of 135,000 population, also were shelled as the lines tightened inside and around the vital basin and its mines and war factories.

The 80th infantry division was driving on Saarbrucken from the southwest, the 5th division was less than half a mile from the Saar river eight miles to the west, and the 6th armored entered Diebling, five and a half miles from Sarreguemines.

Expand Saarlautern Front.

Beating off counter-attacks, the 3d army hurled more tanks and infantry into its expanding Saar river bridgehead at Saarlautern and fought deeper into the Siegfried line.

The Siegfried line's big guns blazed away at Saarlautern and tried in vain to knock out its captured Saar river bridge, but Patton's troops seized control of most of the Saar's second city against stiffer resistance and extended their grip on the west bank of the river to a distance of 16 miles.

The 3d army, now fighting inside Germany on a front of more than 30 miles, cleared part of Saarlautern on the east bank, putting more than half that war industry center of 32,000 population in American hands.

95th Irons Out Salient.

The 95th division spread out along the west bank of the Saar above and below Saarlautern. One force ironed out a salient three miles long and captured Wallerfanger, two miles northwest of the city.

South of Saarlautern, the 95th was pushing ahead on a five mile front after clearing the suburban village of Pikard.

The 5th division, scoring gains of three and a half miles on a front more than two miles wide, advanced to within half a mile of the Saar river at a point about midway between Saarlautern and Saarbrucken, which also would place it about six and a half miles from the latter city on the west.

The 26th division to the east in a two mile push from newly captured Sarre Union neared Keskastel, nine miles south of the French frontier city of Sarreguemines, at one gateway to the basin.

1st Army Gains Along Highway.

The United States 1st army on the left of the 3d pushed farther along the Aachen-Cologne superhighway to within 500 yards of the Roer river. The Yanks were 22 air line miles from Cologne's western outskirts.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' doughboys struck out from the village of Luchem, five miles from the Roer stronghold of Duren, to reach the highway.

Nearly eight miles south of Duren, other forces in the forests were threatening Bergstein, a half mile from the Roer.

But gains were limited. They were measured in a few hundred yards in an advance east of Inden, five miles northwest of Duren, and three and a half miles west of Duren where the infantrymen reached the edge of heavy woods 500 yards from the hamlet of Merode.

Lull on 9th Army Front.

An uneasy lull hung over Lt. Gen. Simpson's 9th army front, where the Germans entrenched across the Roer were waiting for the Americans to drive across. All organized German resistance west of the river had collapsed.

The enemy sent numerous reconnaissance planes over to try to learn allied plans.

[A Blue network broadcast asserted that Julich "is entirely in American hands." This would mean that the Roer had been crossed, because the main part of the town lies east of the flooded river.]

The new week found United States infantry and armor across two of Germany's river barriers—

Cubs Fight to Save Bomber's Crew

NINTH AIR FORCE HDQ., Dec. 4.—The spectacular rescue of an American flyer downed behind German lines and an accompanying aerial battle fought by little Cub planes in an unsuccessful attempt to save other members of his bomber crew was recounted here tonight.

Corp. Henry Morris, 19, of Seaford, Del., gunner on a medium bomber, described his rescue by 1st Lt. George Irvine of Milwaukee, Wis., in an unarmed, low powered Cub plane.

"We were coming back from a mission when our right engine began to smoke up and flame broke out," Morris said. "I saw the engineer tossing out guns, radio and so forth in preparation for a crash landing. The landing was a beauty."

Crew Takes Cover.

The bomber landed about 3,000 yards in front of the American lines. As members of the crew took cover, enemy guns raked the field from less than 200 yards.

Lt. Irvine, in his artillery spotter Cub, who had seen the bomber go down, landed beside the trapped Americans amid a hail of German machine gun bullets.

"Lt. Irvine said he had room for only one of us," Morris said. "My pilot told me to go. He said, 'That's an order,' so I obeyed."

Cub plane, used for liaison and observation. [Acme Photo.]

Less than 10 minutes later Morris stepped out of the Cub at its home field in a cow pasture near Merzig. Irvine took off again, accompanied by three more Cubs.

Shell Germans in Woods.

"Irvine had word relayed to our artillery batteries of what was being attempted," Morris said. "Our guns shelled the Nazis in the woods around the bomber. Other guns threw smoke shells to conceal it."

While two Cubs acted as fighters and strafed the German positions, the other two planes tried to land beside the bomber. For two hours this strange battle went on, but the four Cubs finally were forced to withdraw.

When last seen the bomber's crewmen were facing oncoming Germans.

the Saar and the Inde at the edge of the Cologne plain—and driving hard against two others, the Maas and the Roer, in mounting battles opposite the Ruhr valley.

On the Canadian 1st army front, where the Germans have blown dykes and flooded the Arnhem area to prevent a northeastward thrust, a German raiding party was overpowered, with 84 captured and probably twice that number killed.

Lt. Gen. Dempsey's British 2d army in eastern Holland crushed the last German salient in Blerick on the west bank of the Maas river opposite Venlo. The Germans retreated to strong positions across the river with their backs to the reich.

Draw Near Palatinate.

At the southern end of the front snipers had been blotted out in Strasbourg and American forces driving across the northern Alsatian plain north of there seized Zinsweiler and Oberbronn, the latter only seven miles south of the German Palatinate, a region of agriculture and industry east of the Saar.

Lt. Gen. Patch's American 7th army forces moving up on the left advanced a mile or more at several places, capturing Volksberg, 12 miles south of the Saar border and clearing the enemy from Diemeringen, four miles east of Sarre Union.

The 7th army operating on the 3d army's right flank pushed nearly a mile beyond Wald-Hambach, five and a half miles east of Sarre Union, into thick woods about 14 miles southeast of Sarreguemines.

In a drive thru the lower Vosges, other units took Wingen, seven miles father east. A village near the outskirts of Haguenau, enemy base 15 miles north of Strasbourg, also was captured.

Still Some Resistance.

The communications center of Selestat, 25 miles southwest of Strasbourg, was cleared except for resistance in the southwest section of the city, a front dispatch said.

[German broadcasts acknowledged the loss of Selestat.]

Without waiting for the cleanup of Selestat, other forces eight miles to the southwest seized Ribeauville, a town of about 5,000 population eight miles from the French city of Colmar. This was the closest approach to Colmar yet reported.

The only part of the Alsatian plain not dominated by the Allies is from here to a point north of Mulhouse, some 26 miles or so south.

The French 1st army, driving thru the Vosges against the west flank of the German forces in this area, overcame strong resistance and seized heights dominating Thann, 10 miles northwest of Mulhouse.

YANKS BLAST CASTLE WITH DYNAMITE CAR

AN AMERICAN COMMAND POST OUTSIDE MUTZIG, Dec. 4 (AP).—American engineers today sent a truckload of dynamite crashing against a castle fortress atop a hill outside Mutzig where a band of Germans has been holding out for nine days.

When the smoke cleared there was a hole in the wall and silence from the enemy, but the Yanks waited for some clew to the Germans' fate before moving in. The knockout blow may be dealt tomorrow.

A German truck was loaded with 7,000 pounds of dynamite. Under cover of a smoke screen and machine gun fire, the engineers started the truck down a roadway scooped out by a bulldozer. The truck plunged down into the moat and up against the wall. Then three mortar men, including Pvt. Richard Poarth, Escanaba, Mich., let mortar shells fly. The shells hit the truck and it exploded.

From 70 to 200 Germans have been holding the fortress, which is far behind the American line.

Engineers blew up chunks of the fort now in United States hands, practicing for attacks on such fortifications. "We have learned a lot of things not to do," said Lt. Richard Ree, Wauwatosa, Wis. Pvt. Edward Turner, Saginaw, Mich., was one of the group.

ROBBED OF $50, CHECKS.

A young gunman whom he recognized as a neighborhood frequenter robbed him of $50 and $20 in checks, Albert Yanoff, owner of the Pearson laundry at 7 E. Delaware pl., reported to police yesterday.

GERMANS LACK FUEL TO SEND UP BOMBERS: EAKER

Air Training Schools Shut, General Says.

ROME, Dec. 4 (AP). — Germany is suffering such a drastic fuel shortage as a result of allied bombing attacks on her refineries that some enemy pilot training centers have been closed down and the German bomber force has been "practically abandoned." This statement was made today by Lt. Gen. Eaker, Mediterranean air force commander.

An increasing number of German tanks and trucks are being captured in perfect condition, but with their gas tanks dry, as allied armies press across the enemy's western border. Berlin physicians, except for a few in outlying districts of the German capital, were given no fuel allowance in August, Eaker said.

German School Shuts Down.

The experience of one captured German student pilot was offered as typical of the enemy's fuel shortage.

"At his training school of 600 students, 30 aircraft were available," Eaker said. "Because of lack of fuel, however, the number of daily flights was restricted to 10. At the end of August training was suspended. A week later the school shut down and all students were sent into ground force combat units."

Attacks by the 15th air force, the general said, had compelled the enemy to break down the complex aircraft factories at Wiener Neustadt, Austria, from seven units into between 30 and 40 small units.

Cites Ploesti Battles.

He said the Ploesti oil field in Romania was the "bloodiest air battlefield of the war," with the Americans losing 350 bombers and 10 times that number of flyers. He declared it was worth the cost.

When the attacks began, Eaker said, the Germans were getting 26,000 tons of petroleum products daily from the Ploesti fields. Toward the end production was cut to 3,000 tons daily, of which the Germans were able to get out only a small portion.

He announced that United States air force casualties in the Mediterranean totaled 14,345 for the first 10 months of 1944, including 10,178 missing in action. Of these, however, 3,294 had since returned from Romania, Bulgaria, and other areas where they were shot down.

An American 15th air force bomber group which lost its bearings when its leader was shot down dropped 130 500 pound bombs across the city of Belgrade last April 16, Gen. Eaker said. He said nothing of the destruction caused by the mistaken bombing, but correspondents who visited the Yugoslav capital recently declared civilians there told them several hundred were killed.

"It is inevitable that civilians who live in the vicinity of vital industries serving the enemy are likely to suffer from bombing of industrial targets," Eaker said.

AMERICANS REPEL GERMAN ATTACKS IN FOG ON ITALIAN FRONT

ROME, Italy, Dec. 4 (AP).—Fog shrouded German counter-attacks against American positions south of Bologna have been knocked back with heavy losses to the enemy, it was announced today as it was disclosed that the Nazis' employment of Italian Fascist troops on this front had proved a dismal failure.

The enemy's latest counter-thrusts were launched yesterday in the Bombina and Monte Belmonte areas in the central sector. Despite the fact that fog and rain grounded allied aircraft and enabled the Germans to press home their attacks, they were in each case hurled back before they reached the Yank lines.

Allied headquarters said that Italian Fascists who were taken to Germany for training and then thrown into combat in Italy a month ago had been surrendering at a rate of 30 to more than 100 a day. Additional hundreds were said to have deserted to Italian patriot forces in northern Italy while others simply went home, taking their German equipment with them.

DUTCH PREMIER TO RESIGN WHEN HOLLAND IS FREE

SOMEWHERE IN HOLLAND, Dec. 4 (AP).—Dr. Pieter S. Gerbrandy, premier of Holland, said tonight his government would resign the moment all of Holland is free of German invaders. He explained that under the Dutch constitution no extension of parliament is possible, and the life of the parliament elected in 1937 has expired. As a result Holland at the moment actually is without a governing body.

Queen Wilhelmina will appoint an interim premier until a parliament can be elected, he said.

BELIEVE YANKS' STIFFEST FIGHT LOOMS AT RHINE

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, Dec. 4.—The time is approaching, observers here believe, when Field Marshal von Rundstedt, apparently in supreme command of German forces in the west, must make his decision regarding what all expect will be the decisive battles of the war this side of the Rhine.

More than 70 German divisions have been massed west of the Rhine. As Gen. Eisenhower's six allied armies inch nearer to this big water barrier and its scores of bridges, the terrain available to Von Rundstedt for maneuvering narrows and his time for decision approaches.

How to Use Reserves?

He must decide whether to hold his reserves until the last minute before committing them in a counter-attack, should he believe the weight of the allied offensive to have been spent. Or he must decide whether to hold on to them in the event the allies succeed in effecting a break-thru, so he can counter such a thrust with his heavy armor.

To date very little German armor has appeared along the front. Yet it is believed that Von Rundstedt is waiting with several more panzer [armored] divisions in reserve, representing the best fighting material left in the German armies.

The reader might ask: If these best troops have not yet entered battle, what kind of troops are holding up Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army and the other American and British armies? Why doesn't the offensive begun Nov. 16 gain more ground?

Terrain Severe Obstacle.

Since Hodges sent part of his army into action on Nov. 16 behind a powerful bombing pattern, his progress has averaged about eight-tenths of a mile a day. Should this same rate be maintained it certainly would not carry the 1st army to the Rhine by Christmas.

There are reasons for this relatively slow movement—relatively slow, that is, compared with the St. Lo break-thru and the race across France to Germany.

Reasons can be found in the nature of the terrain; in the cunning use the Germans have made of every terrain feature; in the weather, which has turned the ground into an icy quagmire; in the fact that a professional warrior like Von Rundstedt, rather than Hitler, appears to be in sole command, and in the fact that every German, whether he be paratrooper, SS [elite guard], or home guard, is fighting stubbornly and with great skill for every inch of his homeland.

Recently Formed Divisions.

The bulk of the divisions facing Hodges and other army commanders represent recently raised levies, divisions pieced together from remnants of other units badly mauled in the heavy fighting, and older men, drawn from industry or other jobs on the home front. They are used here as stop gap troops to drain our own fighting strength before the bigger battles to come. Then, too, there are smatterings of good paratroop units and other first class fighters.

While the bulk of these Germans facing Hodges' men may not have the tough qualities of the SS fighters, they have staying power. They have formidable defenses of concrete, interlocking trenches, masses of barbed wire, and intricate, well organized strong points around every village, and there are hundreds of such places. The Germans have large numbers of mortars, field artillery pieces, and self-propelled guns.

Supermen Not Needed.

Such defenses need no supermen to man them. Any oldster can sit in a dugout and fire a machine gun. He may want to surrender — and 7,500 have since the offensive started and their positions were overrun—but until that position is hopeless or their ammunition runs out, they are stubborn fighters.

Von Rundstedt, it would appear, wanted to turn this campaign into a war of attrition, and it looks to this observer as if he has succeeded. Right now, this is the hardest kind of fighting under appalling weather conditions. And unless the unlikely happens and a break-thru is achieved, it will continue to be tough for some time to come.

When the formidable natural barriers of the Roer and Elft rivers are crossed and we can engage the Germans in the more open country of the Cologne plain, it probably will be even tougher. This future battle has all the earmarks of being the most severe of the war. When that battle is joined, the German armies will be fighting with their backs to the Rhine.

One of Worst Battles.

One of the 1st army's worst battles has been fought in the Hurtgen forest, where little Christmas trees grow so densely that sunlight seldom trickles thru.

Officers who fought in Belleau Wood in the last war say that fighting today in the Hurtgen forest is worse than that bloody battle ground. One student of the Civil war pronounces the Hurtgen engagement probably as bad as the Battle of the Wilderness.

The fighting here, southwest of Duren, and on other sections of the line, of course has cost us casualties. Our losses have not been light. But this correspondent has seen the figures, and they are nowhere near as heavy as in the early days of the Normandy beachhead.

Percentage Killed Is Low.

Another good feature, if casualty lists can ever have one, is that the percentage of men killed is surprisingly low for this sort of action. The ratio of killed to wounded is much lower than the normal expectancy of four or five wounded to one dead.

Knowing the number of German prisoners captured, seeing some roads literally lined with German dead, and realizing from past experience what heavy toll our artillery fire takes, it seems apparent to this observer that the Germans must be taking much higher casualties than we are.

It isn't normal. Military books always say an attacker must expect to take heavier casualties than an enemy sitting behind prepared defenses. But staff officers here believe in this offensive the opposite is true.

City Captured

Scutari (arrow), captured from Germans.

TIRANA, Albania, Nov. 30 [Delayed]—(AP).—Scutari, last northern city in Albania, was captured today by three columns of the army of Col. Gen. Enver Hoxha which smashed in from three sides. The surviving Germans escaped to the north. With this action, all the country once ruled by King Zog, except for a few mountain sections in the north, has been wrested from the Germans.

Tirana, the capital, fell on Nov. 17. In their final attempt to hold Tirana the Germans rushed up 1,000 reënforcements from El Basani, but this force was almost wiped out by allied planes.

Partisans saved Tirana's radio station and water plant from being wrecked, but the minaret of the moslem mosque on city hall square was sliced off by shellfire. King Zog's palace on a hill overlooking the town is intact except for three holes in the walls. The furnishings were virtually untouched.

OPA WILL MAKE CLEANING SHOPS POST TOP PRICES

Retail dry cleaning and pressing establishments thruout the country will be required to post their maximum prices for 12 principal services on or before Jan. 15, the office of price administration said yesterday. This regulation, similar to that already in effect for restaurants, is designed to enable customers to ascertain readily the establishments' ceiling prices.

DIES ON STREET CAR.

A man about 60, wearing a gray cap and a black overcoat bearing the initials, "H. S.," died of a heart attack yesterday while aboard an eastbound Roosevelt rd. street car at Campbell av.

TWICE WOUNDED 1ST ARMY YANKS TO GET HOME LEAVES FIRST

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE UNITED STATES 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, Dec. 4.—A new order received by the 1st army today gives priority to two classification of doughboys in granting 30 day leaves to return to the United States.

The first includes officers and enlisted men who have been hospitalized twice for wounds received in action.

The second is those soldiers who have been twice decorated for gallantry, and 1st army officers believe they can fill the first quota easily from those two groups.

Only a comparative handful will have the opportunity in the next few months.

PAY PACT ENDS STRIKE THREAT BY PHONE UNION

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 4 (AP).—The threat of a strike by long distance operators in Memphis and Louisville, Ky., was ended tonight when the American Telephone and Telegraph company announced it had agreed to meet the operators' demands for a $5 weekly wage increase.

S. K. Forbes, general traffic manager of the company, said that in view of the proposals, the union, which is an independent organization, has agreed that "no further strike action will be taken either at Memphis or Louisville."

The proposed wage increase, which raises the scale for beginners to $20 and for experienced operators to $30, goes to the war labor board for approval. The WLB recently approved only $2 of the requested raise.

Union officials said the operators would stay on the job even if the WLB refuses the additional increase.

GREEK LEFTISTS ATTACK BRITISH NAVAL OFFICES

Kill Interpreter, Wound Three Britons.

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 4 (AP).—A determined attack was made on British naval headquarters in Athens last night by militia men [ELAS] of the National Liberation Front [EAM], a British bulletin said today.

An interpreter for the British was shot to death while sitting in an automobile in front of headquarters, and three Britishers were wounded. The ELAS seized the naval sickbay at headquarters.

A general strike and a battle in one section of the capital also punctuated the Greek crisis which followed Sunday's disorders in which 21 persons were killed and 140 injured. Martial law and a curfew were imposed by Premier Papandreou's British supported government.

[The British radio said the strike in Athens called by the EAM party had spread to government employes. A Leopoldville broadcast said the Greek undersecretary of war, Gen. Sarigiannis, had resigned as a result of EAM demonstrations in Athens Sunday.]

The crisis was precipitated by EAM's refusal to disarm and disband its militia, the ELAS. The EAM insisted that the mountain brigade formed in exile under Papandreou's regime be demobilized simultaneously and charged it had right wing tendencies.

Seize Police Barracks.

Royalist and ELAS troops fought in the Thesseum district near the Acropolis with machine guns and rifles. ELAS seized two police barracks in Piraeus, the port of Athens.

The strike called by the EAM cut off all electricity, gas, and communications, and stopped the unloading of relief supplies.

British Disarm Greeks.

British troops disarmed 800 ELAS men marching on Athens.

Gen. Catsotas, acting military governor of Athens, gave ELAS formations until midnight Wednesday to leave the Athens area of Attica province and immediate surroundings. Any ELAS attempting to enter the Athens city zone after then would be "treated as enemies," he announced.

ELAS forces outside the boundary were ordered not to move.

Close In on Royalists.

In Piraeus, dock workers paraded, armed with staves, knives, and a few guns. Some demonstrators set up machine guns at various points. In the Thesseum district of Athens, ELAS forces closed in on besieged Royalists from three sides.

Maj. Gen. R. M. Scobie, British commander of allied troops in Greece said in a proclamation: "I reiterate that with the vast majority of Greeks I stand firmly behind the constitutional government, and shall aid them to the limit of my resources until the Greek state can be reëstablished with lawful armed force behind it, and free elections held."

Appear at U. S. Embassy.

Greeks paraded before the British embassy with signs reading: "British soldiers: Let us choose our own government." Outside the American embassy, crowds shouted "Long live Roosevelt!"

Papandreou charged the EAM with delibately fomenting civil war.

Dimitri Partsalides, EAM secretary general, said: "If necessary we will fight for liberty against Papandreou and his gendarmes." He said that after the Sunday bloodletting in which police broke up the EAM demonstration—forbidden by Papandreou,—the ELAS could not surrender arms as ordered to by Dec. 10.

How Crisis Developed.

The crisis developed after agreement apparently had been reached a week ago on terms for disbanding armed forces of resistance, and formation of a new militia.

Then the EAM charged Papandreou had "gone outside the terms" of that decree. Six left-wing ministers, including two Communists, resigned, but Papandreou went ahead with his instructions on the manner for demobilization and then for mobilization of a new militia.

HAROLD P. SMITH WILL ADDRESS UNION LEAGUE

Harold P. Smith, Tribune correspondent, home on leave from the Pacific where he participated in 10 combat landings, will speak before the Union League club at a luncheon Thursday noon. He will be introduced by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE.

Smith, who returned to Chicago recently from the Philippines, began his war correspondence for THE TRIBUNE in the fog-ridden Aleutians. From there he went to the Gilberts, where his blow-by-blow description of the capture of the Makin atoll was one of the outstanding stories of the war.

In World War I. Smith served on destroyers, and his service record bears a personal commendation from the then Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels—for heroism in rescuing drowning Japanese when their ship was torpedoed off Ireland in 1918.

Found in Tub

JOAN RYDELL.

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Blonde Joan Rydell, 27 year old actress and model, regained consciousness tonight, many hours after she was found lying face down in an overflowing bathtub in her apartment.

Detectives said they believed the woman's condition might improve sufficiently to permit questioning tomorrow. Hospital officials said she was incoherent.

An apartment maid who saw water flowing into the basement traced it to Miss Rydell"s apartment.

Police said that when they entered the apartment the radio was playing, a table was overturned, a bathroom scale was smashed and a number of sleeping tablets, which a physician said he had prescribed for Miss Rydell, were in the bathroom basin. The bottle which had contained the tablets was on the bathroom floor, broken.

LETTER REVEALS NAZIS' HOPES TO RETAKE ALSACE

7th Army Finds Edict of Evacuation.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, Dec. 4.—Nazi plans for evacuation to the east of the Rhine and their expectation of returning to Alsace was disclosed in a document coming into the possession of the 7th army today. It is a circular letter issued by the chief of the German civil government in Alsace to all district leaders, county commissars, and mayors in the province, and it is dated Nov. 3, 10 days before the jump-off of the 6th army group's offensive which carried us to the Rhine's bank.

"In case of enemy occupation," the letter stated, "there will be no destruction, because a return is contemplated. The only exceptions are large supplies which could be used by the enemy and which cannot be transported. These are to be destroyed if necessary."

Defines Area Involved.

The letter styled the area concerned as "that part of Alsace on the left [west] of the Rhine. [This is in line with the German assertion that Alsace and the country west of the Rhine is all one section of the reich.]

Sick prisoners of war who would not be able to work for at least six months were not to be removed from Alsace, the German civil chief decreed, and he also gave the following orders: 1. Return to the old reich of persons and institutions earlier moved to Alsace by the Nazi social welfare organization. 2. Return to the reich of women and children and their most necessary belongings. 3. Removal of other groups of prisoners of war and foreign workers, as well as Italian internees. 4. Removal of certain specialized industries and machines to the old reich. 5 The safeguarding of important documents and art treasures.

People's Army to Remain.

The letter held district leaders responsible for removal once the date was decided, and told them the first to be evacuated over the Rhine would be persons who had politically exposed themselves as in sympathy with the Nazi party and the reich. The volkssturm, Himmler's guerrilla resistance organization, was excepted from this evacuation priority, the idea apparently being members of that organization would remain to harass the allies.

War industries in Alsace were directed to continue maximum production until the last day before evacuation.

TRUCK OF CLOTHING STOLEN.

RISE OF RADICAL UNIONS ADDS TO BELGIAN CRISIS

LONDON, Dec. 4 [Reuters].—The Belgian crisis continues in a state of suspense with the diverging tendencies of political development of Flemings and Walloons, the two national sections making up Belgium being watched carefully by political observers.

Opposition to the government of Premier Hubert Pierlot seems to be much stronger among the French speaking Walloon population than among the Flemings. All the strikes and incidents of recent weeks have taken place either in bilingual Brussels or in the Walloon industrial centers of Liege, Charleroi, and Mons. These are also the centers in which new radical unions, formed during the underground struggle, have broken away from the old trade union leaders.

Under Leftist Influence.

Some of these new militant unions are under Communist or syndicalist influence, some are affiliated with the "independence front," the political resistance movement now opposed to the government, and others form part of the "Free Walloonia" movement which cuts right across party lines. In the Flemish industrial centers of Antwerp and Gent, on the other hand, the old trade union leaders are firmly in control.

The same divergence can be observed within the political parties. Premier Pierlot's attempt to broaden his government after the recent Communist resignations by including more Socialists failed because of the refusal of the Walloon Socialist leaders to serve under him.

Mines in Walloon Area.

There seem to be three main reasons for the development:

1. Almost all the mines and the heavy industry of Belgium are in the Walloon area, and that means that social radicalism is stronger and food scarcer than in Flanders.

2. The Walloons, who look traditionally to France in foreign policy as well as in culture, for the first time have become a minority in Belgium in the period between the wars, and they are inclined to blame the Flemish majority in general and the government and king in particular for the neutrality policy which ended in disaster.

3. The Walloons now observe the strong organized influence exercised by the resistance movement in France, and the military, social, and economic reforms which it has already achieved, and draw comparisons which are not in favor of the Pierlot government.

The result is to make a solution of the crisis more difficult not only for Pierlot, but also for his opponents.

ALLIED AIRMEN BLAST GERMAN SUPPLY LINES

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP).—In the most concentrated attack of the war on Germany's railway system feeding the western front, more than 4,000 allied planes today blasted eight rail arteries with nearly 12,000 tons of bombs in 12 hours.

Some 3,200 American planes and about 800 British aircraft made daylight assaults on six rail centers—Soest, Kassel, Bebra, Giessen, Mainz, and Oberhausen—situated in a great semi-circle around the Rhine industrial capital of Cologne. Then a force of nearly 1,000 R. A. F. heavy bombers tonight rained explosives on the key communications hubs of Karlsruhe and Heilbronn.

The aerial assault followed a systematic plan announced today by the air ministry to isolate Nazi front line troops by cutting their supply lines stretching out from the reich's main industrial centers.

Baby V-2 flying bombs were shot at formations of Fortresses which attacked Mainz. "We got a lot more rockets than we usually do," said Lt. Robert Dams, 1218 W. Laphar st., Milwaukee, Wis., a bombardier. "The flak was light, but the Nazis mingled it with rockets which left heavy trails of bluish white smoke."

AN 8TH AIR FORCE FIGHTER STATION, England.—Capt. Robert H. Riemensnider, 22, Somonauk, Ill., P-51 Mustang pilot of the 20th fighter group, has been awarded the oak leaf cluster to the distinguished flying cross for aerial combat. He came to England nine months ago and has engaged in long range bomber escort, ground strafing, and bombing operations. He also holds the air medal with 10 oak leaf clusters.

SOONG, BROTHER OF MRS. CHIANG, NAMED PREMIER OF CHINA

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 4 (AP).—Foreign Minister T. V. Soong, brother of Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek, assumed the duties of premier of China today in a popular move apparently paving the way for a working agreement between the central government and the Communists of North China.

T. V. Soong.

Soong's attitude toward the Communists is known to be moderate, and his accession to greater influence comes with reports of an agreement in principle between the two parties to wage a common war against Japan.

Soong, who stepped into his new post with his appointment as acting vice-president of the executive yuan in succession to his brother-in-law, H. H. Kung, is regarded in Washington and London as possibly China's most capable diplomat and statesman.

MINORITY PARTY ASSAILS BRITISH RULE IN EUROPE

Condemns Support of Reactionaries.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The small but highly vocal Commonwealth party today assailed the British government for its policy in Europe.

A statement issued by the party's national committee said: "In Belgium an unpopular government has been maintained by British bayonets, and in Italy and Greece British influence and British armed forces are used on the side of reaction. Those who fought against the Nazis are disarmed and those who collaborated with the Nazis often are protected.

"We condemn the support of the Pierlot government in Belgium. Law and order cannot be maintained by keeping in power a government of the same type as our pre-war Tory governments, unfitted to the new desires of the people.

Demand Popular Rule.

"The desirable alternative is to allow popular governments to be formed in which representatives of resistance forces share power."

British and allied policy got a going over from two other sources. Six Labor members of parliament drafted an amendment to the king's address which regretted there was no indication the British and allied governments intend to encourage "the emergence within Germany of a new regime composed of democratically minded persons in whom the united nations could have faith, so that settlement of problems which caused the conflict in Europe might be reached on a basis of Atlantic Charter principles."

Assail Surrender Policy.

The weekly magazine The New Statesman and the Nation charged the British government is waging a "mindless war," prolonging the fighting and losing thousands of allied soldiers unnecessarily thru its unconditional surrender policy.

This has made the Germans fight fanatically because they have no alternative in sight but national and personal destruction, the publication charged, adding, "Goebbels has told them so, and Goebbels has our own propaganda to support him."

GERMANS GONE! ALSACE SPEAKS MORE FRENCH

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STRASBOURG, Alsace, Dec. 3 [Delayed].—Alsatians are beginning to believe they are part of France again.

In this heavily Germanized province [the Germans, for instance, have always regarded Strasbourg as much a part of the reich as Berlin] more tricolors are appearing every day. The older residents are speaking more French and teaching the Gallic tongue to their youngsters, who had been instructed only in German since 1940.

Abandon German Name.

In the cathedrals and churches today sermons are given in French for the first time in four years and liberation masses are celebrated. There are many signs of renaming streets. Names of Nazi luminaries are being torn down. They are replaced by old French names. The words "strasse" and "platz" are being succeeded by "rue" and "boulevard" and "place."

Alsace has changed nationalities four times in less than 75 years—from French to German control in 1871, German to French after the first World war, back to German in 1940 and now—altho some German troops are still fighting west of the Rhine—again to the French.

It is not odd, therefore, that septuagenarians are able to tell of being born in France, spending their youth and middle years in Germany, and the later years alternately in France, Germany, and France—all without ever leaving their native province.

Neither is it odd that citizens of Strasbourg and other freed towns on the Alsatian plain were reserved in their first greetings to the allies. These people were not certain that the first French tanks to sweep in really guaranteed deliverance from the Germans while the enemy was still counter-attacking and holding many points. The Strasbourgers had been told by the Nazis that they would return and regain the town.

Welcomes Become Voluble.

It was not until American infantry came up and our positions were being consolidated that the Alsatians were able to feel that their countrymen from across the Vosges were here to stay. Then the welcomes became voluble and widespread.

During the German occupation since 1940 the Alsatians were forbidden under threat of severest penalties to speak French. All surnames or given names of Gallic character were Germanized.

Alsatians were obliged to remove all French inscriptions and French books in public and private libraries were destroyed. German laws and money were introduced, the franc was banned, and citizens were forced to join the Nazi party or lose their means of livelihood.

All children over 10 years were enrolled in Hitler Youth organizations. Alsatian men of fighting age were drafted into the German army and many were sent to the eastern front. Many persons who resisted these attempts at Germanization were deported. German and Russian colonists replaced them in the province.

German Woman's Corps Formed to Help Army

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Nazis announced today formation of a woman's auxiliary corps to relieve men for the fighting front. While German women in uniform had been found with the army on the western front there had been no formal announcement before of an auxiliary corps.

PRIVATE SCHOOL A BRITISH MUST, CHURCHILL SAYS

'Helps Keep Us What We Are.'

BY JAMES SLOAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Prime Minister Churchill has leaped to the defense of Britain's exclusive "public" schools, which recently were under attack by the newspaper owned by his cabinet colleague, Lord Privy Seal Beaverbrook. Churchill made known his views in an address Friday at his old school of Harrow which was not released until today.

Making an indirect answer to charges levelled in the Evening Standard, which condemned the public schools' preservation of snobbish class distinctions and blasted their claims to having produced most of Britain's ace army officers, Churchill said:

"We cannot afford to pull down the great beneficent institutions, which helped make us what we were in the last war and to keep us what we are in this."

Wants New Blood.

"You read in the newspapers a great deal about the future of public schools," Churchill continued. "I can assure you that during this war great changes have taken place in the minds of men and there is no change which is more marked in our country than the continual and rapid effacement of class differences."

Churchill called upon graduates of his school to broaden the school's intake by establishing a war memorial fund to make it possible for sons of Harrovians in straightened financial conditions after the war to attend the institution. He also proposed that scholarships be given thruout the country.

To Broaden Intake.

Thus the fund would infuse new blood to strengthen Harrow, Churchill said, and give it power to remain the "extraordinary, coherent, and elevating entity from which so much inspiration has been derived." He further pointed out that "with Field Marshal Gort and Field Marshal Alexander in the military field, you have much to be proud of."

He cautioned that only in "broadening the intake and the schools becoming more and more based upon aspiring youth in every class of the nation and coming from every part of the land that you will preserve all the traditions and inspirations which are gathered in great public schools and make them the possession of all our fellow countrymen and of the lads from every part of the land."

REDS 60 MILES FROM AUSTRIA IN 12 MILE PLUNGE

Push On 37 Miles South of Budapest.

LONDON, Dec. 5 [Tuesday]—(AP).—The Red army, in gains ranging up to 17 miles, drew up last night on a 42 mile front in western Hungary before the flat, south shore of Lake Balaton, guarding the approaches to near-by Austria.

At Nagybajom, the southwestern end of the lake front, Marshal Tolbukhin's columns were only 60 miles from the Austrian frontier—12 miles closer than on the previous day.

At Sagvar, the northeastern end of the front, his forces were five miles from the waters of the lake after a 17 mile advance.

Report Fighting in Vienna.

German broadcasts had admitted earlier that a large Russian force had penetrated to the Lake Balaton area and said spearheads had reached the southern shores.

The Paris radio said the Germans were evacuating industrial installations from both Vienna and Wiener Neustadt, an aircraft center to the southwest. Austrian patriots have been fighting the Gestapo in Vienna, Paris added. From Stockholm came a report that Nazi governmental departments driven from Berlin to Vienna by allied air attacks last winter were being moved farther west.

Early today a supplementary soviet bulletin said Russian forces advancing up the west bank of the Danube were only 37 miles south of besieged Budapest. There was no mention of the fighting at the gates of Budapest.

100 Places Captured.

The midnight bulletin broadcast from Moscow and recorded by the soviet monitor said more than 100 towns and villages in southwest Hungary fell before Tolbukhin's onslaught. They were northeast, west, and south of captured Kaposvar.

In northern Yugoslavia the Russians, operating jointly with Yugoslav troops, captured the Sva river stronghold and an important communication point 41 miles northwest of Belgrade. Seven other towns on an 18 mile front extending northwestward on the south bank of the Danube also were taken.

MEDICS WORK 3 HOURS TO SAVE HALF DEAD JAP

WITH THE AMERICAL DIVISION, Southwest Pacific, [Delayed]—(AP).—How four United States army doctors worked for three hours and used every available medical facility in an unsuccessful attempt to save a half dead Japanese prisoner is told by Corp. Hampton E. Graves of Chicago, a medical technician.

The Jap was pulled out of a foxhole during the battle of Nip gap, Corp. Graves said, and medical corpsman gave him morphine and tried to administer blood plasma, but he had lost so much blood they couldn't locate a vein. They brought him to a field hospital. His body was shot thru with mortar fragments and he had five compound fractures.

"We threw the book at him," said Groves. "We gave him four plasma injections, shots of morphine, fed him thru the veins, removed the fragments piece by piece, and set his fractures. But he was dead by morning."

DE GAULLE FETED AT RECEPTION IN MOSCOW PALACE

MOSCOW, Dec. 4 (AP). — Gen. De Gaulle was honored today by Foreign Commissar Molotov at a reception attended by Moscow's allied and neutral diplomatic colony. The Spiridonovka palace was thronged with hundreds of guests. Buffet tables were lavishly spread with food and drink.

The party, held at the cocktail hours; 5 to 8 p. m., was attended en masse by the French residents of the capital. The American charge d'affaires, George F. Kennan, British Ambassador Archibald Kerr, and Stefan Jedrachowski of the Polish committee of national liberation, were among those invited to the special salon where Molotov and De Gaulle exchanged toasts.

UNDERDOG PAYS OFF G.I.'S FAITH AT COCK FIGHT

A Champ Makes One Error on Leyte.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LEYTE, P. I., Dec. 4.—Word got around camp somehow that there was going to be a cock fight down the road a way, and almost at once large groups of G. I.s discovered that it was necessary for them to go for water.

Joseph Turek.

One man and a truck normally can get water, but the trucks used on this detail were to be loaded with men because of the probability that the water would have to be carried part of the way thru the mud. Joe Turek, a Chicago Tribune linotyper for 15 years, took a place in one.

It wasn't long before the trucks were gathered near a barn-like building. Some had been halted for overheated engines to cool; others were waiting for the remainder of the convoy to come up. The G. I.s to get out of the rain, went into the building, where, by some odd coincidence, 200 Filipinos were huddled about a ring in which two cocks were fighting.

Yanks Bring Out Rolls.

The G. I.s promptly joined the spectators. They brought out small wads of pesos, bills worth 50 cents each, and began betting among themselves. Soon they were shouting bets across the ring to the Filipinos.

Everybody was happy except one little old man who turned out to be the house manager. The offhand betting disturbed him. He got up and made a speech: He was sorry, but all bets must pass thru the house. For the trouble, the house would keep the usual 10 per cent. He realized this might slow the betting and he was willing to make a compromise—in the future the house would pick one bird and all spectators desiring to wager might bet on the other.

Turek and his buddies said that was satisfactory to them and an hour then passed smoothly. Then the handlers brought in a red bird and a white one and every one gathered around the red bird. He was a beauty; spectators oohed and aahed and pinched his muscles and felt the razor edge of the spike tied to his left leg.

The House Picks Red.

Thru it all the white cock hunched alone, an orphan. The G. I.s, as always, began to rally to the underdog. The house announced it had picked Red but would magnanimously give four to three odds to any one who would be so foolish as to bet on the white critter. The G. I.s promptly bet their wads.

The favorite started out like a house afire, a red streak of flame. Poor Whitie was obviously flustered. Big, strong Red charged in for the kill. Whitie raised his spiked leg hopelessly—and Red leaped directly onto it, then fell over dying.

The G. I.s collected. The house manager, almost bankrupt, made another speech: There was a law against soldiers gambling and, after all, cock fighting is gambling, and he could not accept any more bets.

Turek and his buddies watched for a while and then filed out. After all, if they hurried and got the water, they could get back to camp just in time for chow.

LONDON, Dec. 4 [Reuters].—"The Fuehrer is in the best of health," said Dr. Werner Naumann, secretary of state in the German propaganda ministry, quoted by the German Transocean news agency tonight. Naumann gave this "assurance" as a result of his "own experience of the last few days."

OTTAWA FLYER WHO FLEW OVER TOKYO TELLS OF B-29 CRASH

21ST BOMBER COMMAND HDQ., Saipan, Dec. 3 [Delayed]—(AP).—Photographs of the fourth raid on Tokyo, carried out today, showed that the Nakajima aircraft plant was badly hit, but the results were not quite up to the hopes of Brig. Gen. Haywood Hansell Jr., commanding the 21st.

The loss of a B-29 over Tokyo during the raid was described by Maj. John Van Trigt, Ottawa, Ill.

"The fighter apparently hit one engine of the bomber," said Van Trigt. "It feathered, and when another engine started smoking the plane fell back. As soon as it got beyond our gun range at least five Jap fighters closed in. With two engines out, the plane couldn't keep up with us. It started losing altitude rapidly. One gunner said he saw the skin peeling off and one wing buckling at its root. She probably crashed on the north side of Tokyo or in the water."

[Tokyo yesterday claimed that photographs proved that 15 B29s were shot down in Sunday's raid, but the FCC, which picked up the broadcast, said the pictures probably were all of the same plane.]

TORPEDO SINKS U. S. DESTROYER IN 55 SECONDS

His crew fished 43 men and three officers, including seven stretcher cases, from the sea.

"One man wouldn't give up a can of salmon he had held onto for 13 hours," Essary said. Another fellow forgot his knife and wanted to go back to his improvised raft to retrieve it.

When Ball and Essary were in the air again they sent word there were more survivors afloat, and three more Catalinas were dispatched from the base. One took aboard 26 men clinging to a life raft built for seven. Another found 22 more survivors.

The captain of the lost destroyer said his ship had been under heavy air attack for an hour before it was hit fatally. During that time he heavily engaged a Japanese destroyer and left it helpless and burning.

JAP DESTROYER SUNK

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Dec. 5 [Tuesday]—(AP).—American and Japanese naval forces each lost a destroyer in a sea and air clash in Ormoc gulf off Leyte Saturday night, headquarters reported today. In addition, another enemy destroyer was believed damaged.

Gen. MacArhtur's bulletin said the American destroyer probably was sunk by a floating mine, altho seamen said the vessel was hit by an aerial torpedo.

The American naval force steamed into the gulf in the face of air attacks and shore fire. American destroyers penetrated Ormoc bay for the first time last week, shelling the enemy supply and reenforcement port of Ormoc. To reach Ormoc, the vessels had to skirt Leyte Island, slicing thru narrow passages and daring mine-sown waters.

The enemy force was believed to consist of three destroyers. Six Japanese planes were downed by anti-aircraft fire in the operation.

Allied air attacks, in which Australian planes participated, were stepped up as ground action remained almost stalled in the rain and mud. A Japanese field battery was captured intact, along with 21 undamaged machine guns, in the northeast sector of the Ormoc perimeter, where the American 32d division continued to exert pressure against the Ormoc highway.

Allied fighters and bombers set fire to enemy installations in widely separated areas. P-40 fighters destroyed the Ormoc jetty. Enemy air activity was described as light, but two American Liberators were missing after the Yank airmen fired warehouses at Negros, on the island of Cebu.

NIMITZ'S LIBERATORS BOMB IWO ISLAND 3 TIMES IN 2 DAYS

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Dec. 4 (AP).—Three bomber strikes on Iwo Island, making eight in seven days on that Volcano island base, were reported today by Adm. Nimitz.

Liberators of the 7th army air force smacked the island's airstrips Friday and twice the following day. Navy search bombers joined the army aircraft in one strike on Iwo and in another raid on Haha, farther north in the Bonins. A few enemy interceptors took to the air, but none of the Yank bombers was lost.

AIR PACT PUT UP TO 54 NATIONS BY COMMITTEES

End Work at 4 Meetings in 20 Minutes.

BY FRANK HUGHES.

Winding up the business of creating an international aviation organization, the committees and subcommittees of the international civil aviation conference went thru a quick change routine yesterday afternoon, resolving, adjourning, and resolving again in four separate meetings in 20 minutes.

The work of the committees and subcommittees thus was completed and they produced and recommended to the plenary sessions of the conference five documents which can be signed or rejected by any of the 54 nations represented at the conference here.

Provisions of Agreement.

These are the draft of a permanent world aviation convention setting up a global air organization, an interim agreement doing about the same thing to operate between the end of the war and the time the permanent treaty can be ratified, a "standard form" of bi-lateral air treaty, and two documents guaranteeing various degrees of air freedom and known as air transport agreements.

Many of the delegations are not empowered to sign commitments, so all documents will be open for signature in Washington after the air conference adjourns. All will sign a sort of general statement testifying to the fact that their nation was represented at the Chicago conference.

Some of the last minute revision of conference documents produced interesting results. One of the drafts, written by the United States delegation, pledges complete freedom of the air, including right of commercial entry into any nation signing it.

Section Is Rewritten.

On the motion of El Salvador one section of this document was changed so that it provides that an international air line may operate as long as member nations are satisfied that substantial ownership and control "are vested in nationals of a contracting state."

This motion occurred during a closed session but it was unofficially reported that Mayor La Guardia of New York, an American delegate, asked for an explanation of the amendment and said he wanted to be convinced that it would protect the small nations.

The representative of El Salvador, according to the report, replied that a time could come when the smaller nations got too much protection and referred to the dispatching of soldiers and marines to smaller nations.

American aviation authorities are said to be alarmed by the El Salvador amendment because unfriendly powers might use it as a loophole to organize air lines.

Council to Sit in Canada.

At a meeting of the conference executive committee last night, Canada was designated the seat of the interim council of the international air body. Canada will have the privilege of designating the city in which the interim council will sit.

It was decided to wind up the conference tomorrow night in one plenary session, in which the site of the permanent council will be selected and members of the interim council will be elected. Balloting will be done secretly on both propositions, with each nation having one vote.

Great Britain, which has held out against freedom of commercial air operation unless international traffic is controled sharply by quotas and other formulas, announced yesterday that it would sign the conference document which guarantees freedom of transit and freedom to make nontraffic stops to all signatory nations.

JAPS DRIVE OVER RIVER IN PUSH THRU KWEICHOW

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 4 (AP).—Japanese forces driving westward thru Kweichow province have forced a crossing of the Chialao river, seven miles south of Tushan, 75 miles southeast of Kweiyang, Burma road junction, the Chinese high command said tonight.

The bulletin said Chinese forces repulsed two enemy columns Saturday at a pass 17 miles south of Tushan and that more than 400 Japanese were killed and large quantities of supplies were captured.

Sunday the Japanese, after being heavily reënforced, smashed thru the Chinese defenses and across the Chialao river, where heavy fighting still is in progress. Capture of Kweiyang would place the Japanese in a position to strike either toward Chungking, 200 miles northwest, or toward Kunming, 300 miles southwest.

INJURED IN FAINT ON TROLLEY.

William Backstrom, 52, of 817 N. Dearborn st., an accountant, suffered a cut above his eye yesterday when he fainted and fell aboard a street car, breaking his eyeglasses.

THE QUESTION.

What did you most long for as a child that you would still enjoy as an adult?

WHERE ASKED.

Palmer House Arcade.

THE ANSWERS.

Corp. Dorothy Pree, Milwaukee, Wis.—When I was a child I used to think: "If I could only have a grand piano like the one the neighbors have I wouldn't mind practicing. But my old upright is so ugly it's no fun to play." I still gaze longingly into the show cases whenever I see grand pianos have been put on display.

Charles H. Moulds, salesman, 7427 South Shore dr.—A friend of mine had a raccoon coat when I was about 5 years old. He was the boy of the town in his handsome coat and I visualized myself strutting down the street in one, too. I pleaded for one, but my folks thought I was too young. I'm not too young now and it would be practical.

John T. Fassett, lobby porter, 843 54th st.—A tiny sailboat with a string that I could pull along behind me in the water would have made my world complete when I was a youngster. In my adult years I've often watched children and their parents sailing boats in the yacht ponds and I may get a toy sailboat next summer.

Margie Lee Berbaum, salesgirl, Lakeside pl.—All the children in the neighborhood had skates and were learning to ice skate. Mother would never let me have a pair because she was afraid I would get hurt or fall thru the ice. I've never learned to skate, but I want a pair of skates of my own.

R. B. Blose, salesman, 7316 Calumet av.—Some friends of ours in Beverly Hills have an electric train and my wife has a difficult time getting me to stop playing with it when it's time to eat or go home. Trains, switches, tunnels, and tracks are fascinating. I'd like to have an electric train with tracks that run all over the house.

Corp. Betty Berry, Tayoltita, Durango, Mexico—I remember riding every one else's bicycle and always wanting one of my own. "I'd keep it polished up and take such good care of it," I said to myself. I could have used a bicycle on a five mile parade hike in Washington not long ago. But, seriously, a bike still appeals to me.

BRITISH PRESS HITS U. S. AIMS AT AIR PARLEY

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP).—The British press today sharply criticized the American attitude at the international air conference in Chicago. The general view was that so far the conference has been a failure.

Some papers saw the race for air supremacy after the war as already under way after the announcement of the United States air agreement with Spain.

The London Times said the first lesson to be learned from the Chicago meeting "is the danger of supposing that complicated and contentious international issues can be settled by the simple application of some broad general principle like nondiscrimination or freedom of the air."

The Laborite Daily Herald said flatly, "The air conference in Chicago is ending as it began—with America using a big stick."

The London Daily Mail said that "only semi-freedom" of the air can be expected as a result of the Chicago meeting.

ASSERTS FRENCH COMEBACK MAY TAKE 10 YEARS

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 4.—"It will take five, six, and maybe 10 years to get France's economic life back on its feet," Pierre Henri Teitgen, minister of information, said last night at Lille in a speech in behalf of France's liberation loan drive.

Teitgen said a comparatively rapid recovery is possible if Frenchmen show "patience, courage, and abnegation."

Reveals War Losses.

He said France had lost 3,000,000 of its population as civilian deportees and war prisoners and estimated 600,000 French homes would have to be rebuilt. Even before the Normandy landings 377,000 homes had been damaged and more than 100,000 demolished, Teitgen said.

In four years 4,500 bridges were destroyed or so heavily damaged that they must be rebuilt, Teitgen said. Two-thirds of the national railroads' equipment and material has been destroyed.

Of the 480,000 motor vehicles in France before the war only 150,000 remain, Teitgen said. As for the seaports, which Teitgen called "our country's lungs," their present state is "disastrous," he said.

Turning to the credit side, Teitgen disclosed that 1,250 railroad engineering works already had been put back into running order and 780 miles of track repaired.

Buying 750,000 Tons.

Then he announced a vast imports plan calling for the purchase of 750,000 tons of necessity merchandise during the first eight months of 1945. But he followed up this announcement with the warning that the public should not expect imports to continue on such a scale since the 1945 program alone would cost France one-third of its available gold stocks.

Rene Pleven, finance minister, speaking at Limoges, said France had a bill to present to Germany and would see this time that it was paid. He said government machinery now is complete for seizing illegal fortunes of war profiteers.

U. S. SUBS SINK JAP CRUISER AND 19 OTHER SHIPS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Japan has lost another light cruiser and a destroyer to United States submarines. The navy announced today also that 18 enemy merchant ships were included in the latest bag by submarines.

To date 12 enemy cruisers and 40 destroyers have been sent to the bottom. Of 82 Japanese warships sunk by submarines since Pearl Harbor, 52 have been cruisers and destroyers.

Japan entered the war with about 45 cruisers and 125 destroyers. She has lost to allied submarine, surface, and air action about 200 destroyers and 70 cruisers.

In and Out

BERLE OFFERED NEW U. S. POST BY ROOSEVELT

Adolf A. Berle Jr., who resigned yesterday as assistant secretary of state, said in Chicago that "the President has been kind enough to offer me another important post," but that consideration of it will have to wait until he returns to Washington. He would not comment on the nature of the new post.

Berle explained his resignation resulted from the "reorganization of the state department which came with a change in secretaries of state."

Berle heads the United States delegation at the international civil aviation conference, which has been meeting in the Stevens hotel since Nov. 1. Asked whether his resignation would have any effect on the air conference, he replied, "None whatever," and added that it would have no effect on the air policy of the United States.

VICE AND GRAFT ON CAMP SHANKS PROJECT BARED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 [Special].—The house military affairs committee today heard several witnesses describe gambling, vice, and graft conditions in connection with the construction in 1942 of Camp Shanks, N. Y.

Ethel Beck, former employe of the camp's fiscal department, said the price per acre of sod for the camp jumped overnight from $150 to $1,548 and that the concern supplying the sod had the same post-office mail box as Ferdinand Horn, purchasing agent for the post engineer.

David Charnay, a newspaper reporter, said he visited the camp in 1942 and found a number of gamblers, racketeers, and prostitutes operating at the site. Men in search of jobs were victimized successively by professional gamblers and loan sharks, he said.

BREWSTER SAYS BRITAIN MAKES SUCKERS OF US

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—In a challenging magazine article entitled "Let's Not Be Suckers Again," Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] calls upon Americans to take a realistic attitude on world trade so that prosperity will continue in the United States.

Sen. Brewster.

This country felt after the last war, the article says, that the British had gobbled up the choice portions of world trade and left the Americans to pay the bill. The senator says the British will do the same thing again unless the Americans fight to protect their rights.

Unless we demand our share of global air lines, shipping, oil, and communications, the article says, the British will gain the No. 1 place among nations which the United States now holds.

A spirit of competition by the Americans, according to Brewster, would enable the United States to maintain its place in world affairs.

Made Battlefront Tour.

Brewster is a member of the senate war investigating committee and was one of the senators who made a tour of the world's battlefronts last year. He is also a member of the senate delegation to the international aviation conference in Chicago. His article appears in the January issue of the American Magazine.

"As the world's No. 1 nation," it says, "it's time to look out for No. 1. Today we have first place in merchant marine, first in world air lanes, first in the production and distribution of oil. We must hold those positions in the post-war world, and in addition must have rights equal to those of any other nations in systems of world communications; equal rights and equal services for the distribution of news about what the United States is doing.

A Practical Thought.

"The United States has taken a place second to none in world affairs. We have poured out our resources to help win the war. We will pledge them to help keep the peace.

"It is only fair that we, like other nations, make our share of profit in post-war trade. It may not be a noble thought, but it is a practical one.

"Let's be generous in helping less fortunate nations. But let's not be suckers again as we were at the end of World War I."

Commenting on the talk in Washington about increasing American foreign trade, Brewster says the principal step in this direction has been arranging "to give goods and money away."

"I fail to see," the article continues, "how the United States can continue toward prosperity if every billion dollars of foreign trade that we get costs the taxpayers two or three billion dollars in gifts and in loans that will never be repaid."

An Observation to Envoy.

Brewster reports that he observed in a discussion with Gerald Campbell, British Ambassador Halifax's right hand man in Washington, that the Americans always came off second best in negotiations with the British. Thereupon, according to Brewster, the British diplomat smiled and replied:

"Of course we put it over on you, but not half as often as we could."

Informed of this statement, Campbell tonight retorted not that he had been misquoted but that he had been miscontrued, saying:

"I am reluctant to betray the senator's confidence. I do not know what is the purpose of his misconstruction."

Mismanagement Is Charged.

Complaining of waste and mismanagement in lend-lease and other foreign help, Brewster says that, altho Americans believe "the sky's the limit," the time has come to put on the brakes.

The article attacks the British statement on their reverse lend-lease operations as "absolutely worthless," asserting that the British picture themselves as "so generous in what we give you that we don't keep records."

Among Brewster's recommendations were these:

"We should abandon our starry eyed attitude of international do-gooders and operate with appreciation of the fact that the policy of all nations except the United States is 'never give a sucker a break.'

"We should go into world trade as tho we were going into a football game with a friendly rival who is in there to win and will use every stratagem permitted by the rules."

Gets Injunction

MRS. DOROTHY DAWSON.

Mrs. Dorothy Dawson, 24, of 3702 W. 61st st., was granted an injunction by Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court yesterday restraining her husband, Edward, 35, from disposing of his cash savings or war bonds. Dawson, a lathe operator, lives at 4204 S. Maplewood av. Atty. Samuel M. Starr, representing Mrs. Dawson in her suit for separate maintenance, said they were married July 2, 1938, and separated Nov. 12, 1944, when Dawson threatened to leave home with their daughter, Carole, 5.

RICK ASSAILS BRITAIN'S 50-50 AVIATION PLAN

New York, Dec. 4 [Special].—Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker, ace pilot of World War I. and president of Eastern Airlines, today "disagreed violently" with the British position at the Chicago post-war aviation conference that future air travel be shared 50-50 with the United States, "when we produce 75 to 80 per cent of the traveling public thruout the world."

"We should and will have the opportunity for using our know-how," Capt. Rickenbacker told a luncheon of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. "We should have at least the privilege of using the facilities we paid for without paying double tariff for them."

Speaking of post-war aviation, Capt. Rickenbacker expressed the belief that we are thinking in terms "perhaps too big for the good of the industry. Air transport," he said, "is the foundation for every other economic development."

He said he regretted to say that returning service men "will give this country more super-duper isolationists than we've ever had."

"They should not be saddled with a huge national debt," Capt. Rickenbacker continued. "It might be better to cancel the debt and let them start from scratch, so that they may win for themselves the great opportunities earlier generations have enjoyed."

Souvenirs at Army-Navy Game "Made in Japan"

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Souvenir footballs sold at the Army-Navy game last Saturday, the house heard today, were stamped "Made in Japan." The disclosure was made by Rep. Anderson [R., Cal.], who wanted to know "how come?"

BOY AND HOG KEEP WALKING —TO 1ST PRIZE

Brings Animal Down to Stock Show Weight.

BY GAIL COMPTON.

Two odd figures trudged steadily up and down the long, cold alleys of the hog barns in the stock yards late Sunday afternoon. One was a chubby boy with tears in his eyes and the other was a fat, panting white hog.

Raymond Taylor, 17, of Kentland, Ind., had come to the Chicago market fat stock show with his only pig, Prince, a Chester White barrow. When Prince went over the scales officials said: "Sorry, youngster, but the pig is eight pounds overweight and will have to be disqualified."

Long Walk Pays.

It was then that Raymond began his long trip up and down the alleys in an effort to walk those eight pounds off Prince. Yesterday the walking tour paid off as the hog, scaling a proper 299 pounds, was awarded the purple ribbon as grand champion of the junior feeding contest.

"Gosh," Raymond said, "I've never been so happy or tired. After that walk I ate three hamburgers. I wouldn't be surprised if I lost more weight than Prince did."

While Raymond was exalting over his victory, a familiar family at this stock show continued to dominate the sheep division of the junior show. Wayne Disch, 14, of Evansville, Wis., took the grand championship with his pen of three 98 pound Southdown lambs. Helping him was his sister, Dorothy, 17, who took a second and a third in different weight classes with her own lambs.

Brother in Marines.

It is customary for the Dischs to turn out top quality lambs. Their older brother, Kenneth, dominated the junior show for the last four years. Now Kenneth is in the marines waiting to be shipped overseas and Wayne and Dorothy are carrying on for him.

While Raymond and Wayne were waiting to enter their prize animals in the open classes against animals shown by adults, the difficult task of selecting the junior champion steer from among 790 occupied John Burns of Fort Worth, Tex.

Leading contender for the steer raising honors was T. Richard Lacy, 18, of Kansas, Ill., who has taken not only the junior championship, but also the grand championship for the last two years. Last night he took first place blue ribbon in the junior class for Hereford steers.

Today the grand champion steer of the show will be picked, with the junior champion competing with entries by adult breeders. Tomorrow and Thursday the show animals will be sold at auction.

BAR ASSOCIATION TAKING VOTE ON WORLD LEAGUE

The Chicago Bar association, in a referendum, yesterday asked its members whether they approve resolutions adopted recently by the house of delegates of the American Bar association urging a general international security organization.

Accompanying the referendum ballot are statements by two past presidents of the association, one of whom, Charles P. Megan, favors the resolutions, while the other, Floyd E. Thompson, opposes them.

Megan's statement asserts that approval of the resolutions would be a great contribution to the cause of permanent peace. Thompson, after observing that the resolutions are "fraught with danger," adds:

"It is clear to any man who loves liberty that it is not the role of the United States to secure to other nations, which have different conceptions of freedom, a continuation of their exploitation of subject peoples. When there is a clash between mere order and common justice, we must be on the side of justice."

MASS SEDITION TRIAL BRANDED GREATEST FARCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The government's mass sedition trial was denounced in the house today as "the greatest farce in history" and an illegal and unfair proceeding against the defendants involved.

Rep. Fish [R., N. Y.] told the chamber that the Constitution and the sedition statutes of congress were violated by the administration when it "dragged" 26 "poor, obscure little people" to Washington for trial and "threw them into jail."

He charged the administration used the mass trial strategy, in violation of the law, because the defendants had "attacked the administration, the Communists, and opposed our entrance into the war."

Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.] asserted that "not one particle of evidence has been produced to show any of the defendants are guilty of the conspiracy with which they are charged. History has never disclosed a greater farce than this trial."

275,114 View Mum Show in Garfield, Lincoln Parks

Chrysanthemum shows at Garfield park and Lincoln park conservatories attracted 275,114 visitors during the three week showings, William C. Blaesing, chief horticulturist for the Chicago Park district, said yesterday. The figure is an increase of 37,393 over last year's attendance.

ANTI-SABOTAGE LAW BROADENED IN HOUSE VOTE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The house today approved a noncontroversial amendment broadening the scope of offenses under the anti-sabotage law, but rejected a proposed drastic revision to authorize the death penalty for persons found responsible for producing defective war materials.

The approved change makes liable for prosecution any one who wilfully damages, destroys, carries away, tampers with, or defectively makes or repairs material used for war purposes. It applies also to any one wilfully selling defective war goods to the United States or allied nations.

The present act covers most such cases but does not include penalties for concealing, carrying away, or tampering with war goods.

MONTHS OF HARD WORK PAY OFF TO FARM YOUTH

Hard work paid off yesterday at the 23d annual 4-H club congress when national awards were announced in the rural electrification and meat animal contests. Scholarships totaling $1,800 were given to nine club members, one a girl.

Wayne Bates, 20, of Carlinville, Macoupin county, was the central section winner in the meat animal contest. One of the nation's top 4-H stockmen, his live stock income in the last 10 years has totaled $25,063.68, while his total from all projects was $36,655.18. The two other winners in this division were Jack Tyler, 17, of Claude, Tex., and Dick Nesbit, 17, of Fort Collins, Colo.

Electrical Winners.

Ability to adapt electrical energy to more and better war time food production on the farm bought recognition to Harlan Dietzel, 19, of Bay Port, Mich.; Jesse Nemechek Jr. of Humboldt, Neb.; Raymond Schafer, 18, of Red Lake Falls, Minn.; Rodney Hall, 16, of Parker, S. D.; Walter MacEvoy, 19, of Lockport, N. Y., and Frances McMillen of Enid, Okla.

Miss McMillen knows farming from a woman's angle . . . and she knows it from a man's angle, too. A good looking brunette of 17, she is a veteran in knowledge of agricultural methods, including putting electricity to work as a hired hand. When the man power situation became critical and her brother was inducted into the army, Frances decided to let machinery do the work. Now she not only operates the machine which milks 18 cows each day but keeps the motor in shape, too.

Frances is a freshman at the Oklahoma A. & M. college. In addition to her achievements in rural electrification she found time to make 28 items of clothing and can 298 quarts of food from her one-half acre garden.

Installs Wind Charger.

Raymond Schafer won his award on a 200 acre farm that isn't electrified in the sense that it's on a regular power line. He bought and installed a wind charger which furnishes electric light for the home and other buildings.

"There is no reason why all farms cannot enjoy the comforts of electricity," he explained. "I'm looking forward to the day when electricity will provide air conditioning, quick freezing, grinding, mixing, and in other countless ways lift the burdens that formerly made farm work heavy and hard."

Another national winner yesterday was Norma Ruth Gahm, 17, of Streator, Ill., who won a scholarship in food preparation. Miss Gahm specialized in whole grain products and milk soups, drinks, and deserts.

Soil conservation awards went to Samuel Burkhart Jr., 18, Washington, Ind.; Robert Schwartau, 20, Goodhue, Minn.; Karl Brown, 20, Dwight, Kas.; H. Orvil Haagenstad, 19, New England, N. D.; Ray H. Crosby, Mohawk, Tenn.; Alfred Neumann, 18, Bigfoot, Tex.; John L. Murphy Jr., 20, Mount Sterling, Ky., and John Arlen McGee, 15, Okemah, Okla.

Farm safety awards went to Beverly E. Oothoudt, 17, Winnebago, Minn.; Dan Zumbrunn, 20, Chapman, Kas.; Beatrice Milacek, 15, Waukomis, Okla.; Jackie Gene Brock, 15, Floydada, Tex.; Don Gaetzler, 16, Hillsboro, Ore., and Ruth Mason, 17, Lyndon Center, Vt.

Canning achievement awards went to Betty Lee Dierdorf, 17, Clay City, Ind.; Frances C. House, 19, Cicero, N. Y.; Beverly Fadden, 18, Piermont, N. H.; Fae Ann Huggins, 16, Bear River City, Utah; Clinnell Parker, 20, Columbus, Ga., and Bonnie Mann, 17, Sinai, Ky.

Nine hundred delegates are attending the congress, which closes Thursday.

REPORTS WIFE'S DISAPPEARANCE.

Theodore Atkinson, 4401 S. Mozart st., told police yesterday that his wife, Valdina, 26, has been missing since Nov. 30.

FARMERS ADVISED TO CUT RISKS AND DIVERSIFY CROPS

Farmers planning a safe program for the next few years should reduce their speculative ventures and develop a diversified crop plan, according to J. Fred Duff, president of the Duff Farm Management service, Lebanon, Ind., who spoke at the La Salle hotel yesterday before the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers.

"If farmers are to retain their high earnings of the war years they must put less emphasis on risky ventures, such as the feeding of heavy cattle, and encourage the production of hogs and the breeding of beef and dairy herds," Duff said.

Duff also said that most farmers will find it safer during the remainder of the war and in the immediate post-war period to feed out their grain and forage crops and sell meat, milk, and eggs rather than sell the grains as cash crops.

Emil Schramm, president of the New York Stock Exchange, spoke at the society's annual banquet last night.

Drum on Job as Head of Empire State Building

New York, Dec. 4 [Special].—Lt. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, U. S. A. [ret.], formally took over today his first real civilian job as president of the Empire State building with the expectation that 45 years' army experience would assist him in business. He succeeds the late Alfred E. Smith. Gen. Drum, who retired last year from his command of the eastern seaboard, revealed that he will continue as chairman of the veterans' commission and commander of the New York state guard.

FAIR FUN MEN ARE SOBER LOT AT CONVENTION

Members of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions, who have saddled themselves with the responsibility of making the public gay and carefree, even in war time, are a sober lot when they meet in convention, as they are doing this week in Hotel Sherman. More than 1,700 carnival owners, operators, and performers—all with war time stories—are meeting for the 26th time this week.

For example, there's Cliff Wilson of Miami Shores for whom war has cut off his source of supply. Wilson is the country's wealthiest man—if you count wealth in snakes. Then there is Arthur Briese, whose fireworks factory spends as much time now in secret work for army engineers as it does making fireworks. Briese says there is no shortage of pyrotechnic material, if he only had the time to make it.

War? Sure, the showmen know about it. Ask the next one you see about the gasoline situation!

LOOP STORES SET EVENING HOURS FOR YULE TRADE

Evening hours for Christmas shopping in the loop this year will be much the same as last year, the State street council announced yesterday.

Credit jewelers and men's wear stores will keep open until 9 p. m. starting tomorrow. Three department stores, women's wear, shoe, variety, and specialty stores will start their night schedule Dec. 14. Stores which customarily are open Monday nights will continue to be open until 9 p. m. the day after Christmas and the day after New Year's.

TELL HOW PARIS POLICE HUNTED BRITISH AGENTS

Beating of De Gaulle's Niece Told in Court.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 4.—A graphic story of how British secret agents, who were parachuted into France during the German occupation, were hunted down by the French police under Henri Chamberlain and former Police Inspector Pierre Boni, his chief lieutenant, in coöperation with the Germans, was unfolded today in the purge trials under Judge Auguste Ledoux. Twelve members of the French police are on trial.

Questioning brought out how Boni and his aides went to Normandy in 1943 to run down British secret agents.

Chamberlain stirred the court room with charges that Boni had been responsible for the mass round-up of 144 members of the Paris resistance movement, Defense de la France.

Beat De Gaulle's Niece.

Boni, denied Chamberlain's statement and said Chamberlain himself had denounced the Paris resistance group to the Germans.

Earlier in the trial Chamberlain's chauffeur, Louis Pagnon, testified that Chamberlain and Boni with "five carloads of killers" had made more than 20 arrests of French underground agents at Bordeaux.

This led up to questioning about the transport to Germany of Genevieve de Gaulle, 20 year old student and niece of Gen. de Gaulle. Arrested by Boni on July 21, 1943, she was questioned for hours and beaten in the face. She is now interned in Ravensbruck camp.

Boni's lawyer said Boni was unjustly charged with the arrest of Miss De Gaulle. Chamberlain, thereupon, protested he had not been responsible, but had tried to secure the release of Miss De Gaulle.

Recruited 300 Apaches.

"But the Germans refused," Chamberlain said. "They said she was useful as a hostage."

Chamberlain recruited 300 apaches of the Paris underworld for a terror hunt of underground resistants in the Perigueux district a few months before the allied landing in France, it was later brought out.

Charges were made that the former soccer player, Alexander Villaplane, one of the 12 accused, had tortured Jean Allessandro, resistance chief of Perigueux.

"Is it true you set free a resistant tradesman in return for the promise of payment of 150,000 francs [$3,000]?" Judge Ledoux asked him.

"Yes, but all I got was two bottles of wine," said Villaplane.

KLEBERG CALLS ON CONGRESS TO HALT 'MARXISTS'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—Rep. Kleberg (D., Tex.), a veteran of 14 years in congress, today delivered what Capitol Hill veterans said was one of the most stinging indictments of the New Deal administration yet held in the house of representatives.

The Texas Democrat in an hour long floor speech said the New Deal has betrayed the people. It is masquerading as the voice of the Democratic party, he asserted, but in truth is the voice of Communist Earl Browder, Sidney Hillman of the CIO, Supreme Court Justice Frankfurter, and others who he said would destroy American liberties.

He called upon his colleagues, Democrats and Republicans alike, to save America from what he called a Marxist scheme to fasten totalitarianism on the people at home and establish by secret diplomacy an "international Gestapo" to destroy American sovereignty in foreign affairs.

TUOHY'S FRIENDS HEAR HIM TAKE OATH OF OFFICE

Mulcahy Also Sworn In as Sheriff.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

William J. Tuohy took the oath of office as state's attorney yesterday morning in the presence of several hundred friends and Democratic party officials who jammed the library of the Criminal court building at 26th st. and California av. His installation followed a ceremony in the downtown courthouse at which Sheriff Michael L. Mulcahy started a two year term.

Mayor Kelly, as the chief executive of the city and as boss of the Democratic party in the state, was the principal speaker at both events. Tuohy, Mulcahy, and all other officials elected in the county last Nov. 7 are Democrats, altho in the surrounding counties the public chose Republicans only.

Family Hears Him Sworn In.

Tuohy's mother, Mrs. Julia Tuohy, his wife, Helen, and his four children, Sally, Patrick, John, and Helen, were present when County Clerk Michael J. Flynn recited the oath of office and Tuohy said, "I do." Former Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch was master of ceremonies.

Tuohy announced that he had reappointed First Assistant State's Atty. Wilbert F. Crowley, who had agreed to remain as head of the Criminal court division of the office. Jacob M. Shamberg, long a member of the state's attorney's downtown staff, was named head of the civil branch of the office.

Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator, offered his resignation but Tuohy did not accept it. All other policemen assigned to the prosecutor's office are to be retained for the present, they were told.

Tribute Paid to Courtney.

Tuohy and all other speakers joined in paying tribute to the outgoing state's attorney, Thomas J. Courtney, who retired to civilian life after holding public office for 18 years. He was defeated as the Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois.

The others who started new terms of office here yesterday were Coroner A. L. Brodie, Recorder Edward J. Kaindl, Circuit Clerk John E. Conroy, and Superior Clerk Henry Sonnenschein. At 2 o'clock this afternoon Sanitary Trustees John J. Touhy, J. L. Friedman, and John Szumnarski will be inducted for new terms and Trustee Neal Kelley will be sworn in for his first term after having been an employe of the district for 20 years.

CITY AND COUNTY BUY 31.6 PCT. OF WAR BOND QUOTA

Chicago and Cook county had purchased $264,362,000 in war bonds, or 31.6 per cent of the 6th war loan quota as of last Friday, Francis M. Knight, chairman of the city-county drive, said yesterday. The quota is $836,160,000, and the campaign organization has until the end of December to make it.

Sales to individuals climbed to $66,973,000, or 28.4 per cent of the $235,596,000 quota in this group. Sales of E or "people's bonds" rose to $34,838,000, or 32.6 per cent of the quota, which is included in the total individual goal. Corporate sales of market issues reached $197,389,000, or 32.8 per cent of the $600,564,000 goal.

The county drive has been credited with $3,600,000 of the Milwaukee road's purchase of $30,000,000. Illinois is allotted $5,220,000 to be distributed among the 22 counties the road serves.

State-wide over-all sales totaled $363,800,000, or 35.2 per cent of the quota of $1,034,000,000, it was announced by Renslow P. Sherer, chairman of the war finance committee of Illinois.

HILLMAN AND 2 C.I.O. LEADERS TO VISIT THE FRONT

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP). — Three American CIO labor leaders, here for consultations with British union officials, disclosed today their intention of journeying to France and Belgium. They are Sidney Hillman, head of the union's political action committee; R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automotive Workers, and Emil Reive, president of the United Textile Workers. Thomas inspected the battlefields of France earlier this year.

Two members of the house of commons were refused permission to visit France, Foreign Secretary Eden saying transportation and lack of accommodations were responsible.

House of commons members called attention to the fact that more than two score United States congressmen have visited the continent since the invasion.

SONS OF REVOLUTION MARK ANNIVERSARY OF ILLINOIS AS STATE

The Illinois Society, Sons of the American Revolution, last night observed the 126th anniversary of Illinois' admission to statehood with ceremonies at the Chicago Engineers club, 314 Federal st.

George B. McKibbin, state finance director, told the group that the Illinois budgeting commission is considering tentative plans to make up two state budgets for the years 1945 and 1947. One would include current expenses and the other would set up post-war building programs and veterans' care programs. If the war ended suddenly, McKibbin explained, the state could operate on the already drawn alternative budget.

Alonzo N. Benn was reelected president of the society and Earle B. Searcy, newly elected clerk of the Supreme court, was elected vice president.

Woman Held in Shooting Faints Over False News

Jeannine Laudy, 23, fainted at the door of the Felony court yesterday when she was mistakenly informed that John Harvell, 36, with whom she had been living, had died of wounds she inflicted because he went drinking with other women. Court attendants revived her and assured her that Harvell was recovering. In court Miss Laudy, who had admitted shooting Harvell last Thursday night when he returned to their quarters at 101 S. Throop st., was ordered returned for hearing Dec. 19, when Harvell is expected to attend.

Miss Vivien Kellems, war plant operator, as she protested to senate committee investigating war time censorship against government action halting her personal correspondence with a German business man in South America.

VIVIEN KELLEMS RIPS NEW DEAL SMEAR TACTICS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—Charging a New Deal plot to embarrass American business leaders who oppose administration policies, Miss Vivien Kellems, Westport, Conn., manufacturer, today protested before a senate postoffice subcommittee government leaks that permitted portions of her censored mail to be made public.

A congressional furor was raised last spring when Rep. Coffee [D., Wash.] read on the floor of the house excerpts from personal letters Miss Kellems had written Frederick von Zedlitz, a German living in South America. It later developed that the excerpts were from letters which had been censored.

Reviewed Letters Carefully.

Appearing before the committee today, Miss Kellems said the reading of her mail in the house, and its subsequent publication by gossip columnists, was part of a New Deal plot to discredit any one who opposed the administration. She said her mail had not been molested before she made speeches attacking the New Deal in the middle west last winter.

Sen. McKellar [D., Tenn.], chairman of the subcommittee seeking to determine how portions of Miss Kellems' letters became public, asked:

"Has it ever occurred to you that when your country was at war with Germany that however innocent these letters were, your writing them would arouse suspicion?"

"Certainly, senator, that's why I was so careful about everything I wrote," the witness answered. "I read every letter of mine to him three times to make certain there was nothing in them that shouldn't be."

Outlines Smear Technique.

Miss Kellems said the New Deal "pattern of persecution" of those who have displeased it starts with smears in the New Deal press and on the radio, followed by attacks on the floor of congress, income tax investigations, sending of government "expediters" to factories, and complicated renegotiation routine of government contracts. All have been tried on her, she said.

Von Zedlitz was described by Miss Kellems as a German who was opposed to nazism and who had been investigated by the American state department to see if he was the type of German who would be useful in allied attempts to erect a stable government in Germany after the war.

Von Zedlitz is on the state department's blacklist—foreigners with whom Americans are prohibited from doing business—but Miss Kellems asserted his blacklisting did not occur until she had begun her attacks on the New Deal.

Seeks Redress in Suits.

Miss Kellems told the committee she already had filed four suits in California—two in Los Angeles and two in San Francisco—for a total of 2 million dollars against the CIO political action committee and Harry Bridges, CIO agent, charging libel. The Labor Herald, a CIO publication in California, had called her a traitor, she said.

Miss Kellems said a new suit by her would include Coffee, Drew Pearson, and Walter Winchell, newspaper columnists and radio commentators, and persons in the government who may have been responsible for releasing the censored excerpts.

"Sidney Hillman [chairman of the CIO-PAC], Winchell, Pearson, and Coffee all worked together," Miss Kellems said.

F. D. R. Signs Bill to Keep Marshall on Active List

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—President Roosevelt today signed a bill permitting Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, to remain in harness after he reaches retirement age this month. Marshall becomes 64 Dec. 31. Without the legislation he would have had to retire on that date. The new law provides for his continuation on the army's active list for the duration of the war and six months thereafter.

COURT REFUSES TO DISMISS CASE AGAINST DORSEY

Prosecutor Admits His Evidence Is Weak.

of testimony such as this. . . . I move this case be dismissed."

Upon denial of the motion the by-play between Pacht and Icaza continued, Pacht reading from the deposition and Icaza reiterating, "I was confused," "I don't remember," or "I'll have to explain before I answer."

"What was Dorsey doing to Hall while they were fighting in the living room, having moved in from the balcony?" Pacht then asked the witness.

"I move to strike the question," declared Icaza, and the courtroom roared. Instructed to answer, Icaza said to Pacht:

"Come here and I'll show you."

Headlock on Pacht.

He then demonstrated a headlock on Pacht, whose face was red when they disengaged.

"Didn't you in your deposition testify that you never during the Hall-Dorsey-Smiley fight were inside the apartment?" Pacht persisted.

"No sir, I was confused when the deposition was taken; I was sick," said Icaza. "I have read only 15 of the 209 pages in the deposition and I didn't sign it."

Some of the crossfire between Pacht and Icaza sounded like it might have been written by the Abbott and Costello gag man. A portion went like this:

"Do I have to answer 'yes' or 'no?'" asked Icaza, plaintively.

"Yes," snapped Pacht.

"Could you and I maybe have a conference before I answer?"

"No," shouted Pacht. "I don't want to confer—or argue—with you."

"I don't want to argue with you, either," sulked Icaza, "so—my answer is 'yes.'"

Icaza then accused Pacht of confusing him; Pacht countered that Icaza was confusing him, too.

Admitting that he filed a $40,000 damage action against Dorsey, Icaza explained that the amount was his attorney's idea. All Icaza wanted, he said, was a new suit of clothes and three months' doctor bills for alleged injuries which he has not yet explained in testimony.

Under direct examination by Prosecutor Myers regarding occurences at the Dorsey apartment, Icaza's recollection was clearer.

He said he saw Dorsey trying to throw Hall over the balcony and heard Mrs. Dorsey calling for Smiley, who lives in the adjoining apartment, to come in to stop the fight.

"Dorsey and Hall had moved from the balcony thru the dining room into the living room when Smiley got there," Icaza said. "Smiley started to clean up on Hall. Smiley was behind Hall."

Coat Shoulder Cut.

"What was Dorsey doing?" asked Myers.

"He had let loose of Hall and had a broken bottle in his hand. Hall was dizzy. Then Pat Dorsey cut Hall in the nose with a knife."

The actor nearly lost the tip of his nose in the battle. Icaza testified last Friday that Dorsey hit Hall on the brow with a bottle.

Icaza said Smiley cut Hall on the left shoulder of his coat with the kitchen knife, but didn't explain how he got it from Mrs. Dorsey.

That, said Icaza, was about all he saw of the fracas.

At this point Icaza demonstrated on Prosecutor Myers the manner in which Hall had grabbed Dorsey, first around the body and then around the neck, in a headlock.

"Did you at any time see Hall attempt to make love to Mrs. Dorsey?" asked Myers.

"No, he just put his arm around her shoulders."

This, Icaza explained, was after the party had broken up, and Hall had returned to the Dorsey apartment with Singer Jane Churchill to look for Miss Churchill's purse.

When Dorsey saw Hall put his arm around Mrs. Dorsey, he called, "What are you doing to my wife?" and the fight started almost immediately, Icaza testified.

The only other witness of the morning was Dr. Marcus Crahan, county jail physician, who said that in examining Hall's injuries he found two cuts at the back of the head and a fracture of the nose.

He digressed from the seriousness of his testimony and entered into the general levity by describing two small welts on the right side of Hall's body.

These, he said as the courtroom roared, "might have been flea bites."

GENERAL WARNS OF LABOR DRAFT FOR WAR PLANTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—Lt. Gen. Somervell, army supply chief, told the senate war investigating committee today he will ask congress to enact a national service act unless man power problems in critical war production are solved this month.

He said 311,479 additional workers are needed immediately for war production for the army alone but asserted there are no material shortages at this time and that everything needed is being shipped abroad on time.

"Make no mistake," he told the committee. "No one has suffered so far from a lack of supplies, and we are trying to see that no one does. What we are up against is that we won't be able to keep up these supplies unless production is increased. We will have shortages at the front unless production deficits are made up.

Outlines U. S. Strategy.

"Our whole strategy is built around the idea that we can deliver a superior fire and be more mobile. If we can concentrate artillery fire we will save the lives of men. We now are firing more ammunition than had been anticipated."

After Somervell outlined man power needs, particularly in foundries and in heavy duty tire plants, Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] asked whether legislative action is needed to solve the problem. The general said that if present plans to increase the labor supply, in which the CIO, AFL, WPB, and WMC are coöperating, do not succeed he certainly would be back asking for legislation.

"I am still in favor of a national service act," Somervell said. "It would make our job much easier, and I will certainly press for its enactment if we don't solve this production problem this month."

Time Required for Program.

Sen. Mead [D., N. Y.], committee chairman, asked whether such an act at "this stage of the game" would meet all requirements and Somervill conceded it would take time to put it into operation.

A national service bill, co-authored by Sen. Austin [R., Vt.] and Rep. Wadsworth [R., N. Y.], has been pending before the senate military affairs committee for two years. Last spring army, navy, and maritime commission spokesmen advocated it, but some other administration leaders were opposed. Donald Nelson, then WPB chairman, advocated legislation to draft 4-F's and men 38 to 45 for industrial jobs.

Somervell said he felt confident the problem of getting 10,167 new workers into foundries this month will be licked "because it has got to be licked," but he agreed with Sen. Ferguson this foundry man power shortage is greater than it was in July. He said one method of solving man power shortages would be to shift workers from civilian to war production.

Bonus Plan Indorsed.

"But that wouldn't solve the problem of civilian production," Ferguson said.

"No, but it would solve my problem, and until this war is over war production is the nation's business," Somervell retorted.

Somervell indorsed WPB Chairman Krug's suggestion of bonuses for war workers who stay on the job until the war is over.

He told Sen. Mead prisoners of war are being used where possible, and that Mexican and Jamaican laborers are being utilized.

When Sen. Burton [R., O.] asked about the heavy tire situation, Somervell said he was meeting union leaders to see what could be done to increase production. Asked whether there had been slowdowns in the rubber plants, the general said the trouble was "lack of a speed-up, not a slowdown." He said he did not know what the labor trouble is but hoped to find out and that later he would confer with representatives of the tire industry.

The general said he did not know and would not hazard a guess on the size of the ultimate war materials surplus, and asserted, "We will have to keep the pipe line of supplies full right up to the end," altho some people would like to have the army fire its last shell and eat its last K-ration just as the last Jap died.

JOHNSON CITES U. S. TAX BOOKS IN RETRIAL PLEA

Records Prove Goldstein Lied, Gambler Says.

An amended motion for a new trial for William R. [Big Bill] Johnson, former Chicago gambling czar now serving a five year prison term for income tax evasion, was filed in Federal court yesterday by Johnson's attorneys, Harold R. Schradzke and William J. Dempsey.

Attached to the petition were photostatic copies of government records purporting to show that income from the Albany Park Bank building, 3424 Lawrence av., went to Theodore Goldstein for the years 1937 to 1943 inclusive. This included the years when the government charged Johnson was collecting and failing to pay tax on the income.

Income by Years Listed.

Theodore is the son of Atty. William Goldstein, a government witness in Johnson's original trial who testified that Johnson was owner of the building. The plea for a new trial is based upon Johnson's contention that Goldstein's testimony was perjured.

The photostatic records indicate that Theodore Goldstein realized the following income from the property for the seven years involved: 1937, $1,546; 1938, $2,078; 1939, $1,350; 1940, $900; 1941, $675; 1942, $3,000, and for 1943, $3,150.

Tenant Makes Affidavit.

Also attached to the petition was an affidavit signed by Frank Sampson, president of the Hines Realty and Construction company, a tenant of the building. Sampson's affidavit states that he paid William Goldstein, as agent for Theodore, $250 a month rent from Sept. 29, 1940, to Sept. 30, 1943.

It also asserts that William Goldstein told him [Sampson] that Johnson was not and never had been involved in the ownership of the property.

The government was directed to file an answer to the amended motion Thursday, and Judge Barnes will hear arguments Monday.

Mrs. Michler, who previously had pleaded not guilty and was held in jail in lieu of $20,000 bond, is accused of swindling 10 men of approximately $50,000 thru lonely heart advertisments in foreign language newspapers.

Assistant United States Atty. George G. Kelly said four warrants were outstanding against Mrs. Michler from Illinois, New Jersey, Maryland, and New York. Judge Barnes set Dec. 14 for hearing.

WOUNDED YANK, 18, GOES A.W.O.L. TO FIGHT AGAIN

Pvt. Donald Sweyer Jr., 18, will be found where the fighting is the roughest, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Piggot, 5240 Peoria st., learned yesterday when they were advised of his whereabouts, which had been a mystery to them since D-day, when he was wounded in Normandy.

Pvt. Donald Sweyer Jr.

Pvt. Sweyer spent about a month in a hospital in England before his shrapnel wounds healed. Then he became so restless he absented himself without leave and boarded a transport bound for France as a stowaway.

Lt. A. R. Bolling Jr., 302d infantry, in a letter to the Piggotts, wrote: "As if he hadn't done enough already, he hopped our boat so he could rejoin his outfit and get back into battle." Bolling added: "We had him transferred to this company, and I am proud to be his commanding officer. He has done more than his share in winning this war."

Pvt. Sweyer, who attended Englewood High school and Arden Shore school in Lake Bluff, registered for the draft when he was 17, falsifying his age, after the navy and merchant marine rejected him.

SCHOOLS IN N. Y. OPENED DESPITE STRIKE THREAT

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—A threatened city-wide strike of school custodial workers failed to materialize today and all New York City schools opened on schedule.

Police said 227 cleaners and firemen failed to report for duty at 69 out of 785 schools, but these schools were open and classes going on as usual.

The strike was called Saturday by local 112, school custodial workers, a United Mine Workers affiliate, which claimed a membership of 2,500. The union seeks civil service status for its members.

* Savings shown apply to "signature only" loans repaid in 12 monthly installments, cost to be deducted in advance. You can save even more if you borrow with one co-maker. In either case, you save at least half of usual and lawful Small Loan Charges.

Why Pay More THAN THIS LOW COST?

For a 12 mo. $100 LOAN — At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay $20.84 — At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only 8.00 — YOU SAVE $12.84

For a 12 mo. $200 LOAN — At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay $39.52 — At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only 16.00 — YOU SAVE $23.52

AT USUAL small loan rates—on a loan of $100,—you have to make 12 payments of about $10.07 each. Figure it out—that's $120.84—or $20.84 more than you borrowed!

At Merchandise Bank a similar loan will cost you only $5.50 (if you use the popular One Co-Maker Plan), saving you $15.34 on $100 for 1 year. (Can't you use that fifteen dollars?) Or—if you borrow on your signature only, the cost is only $8—and you still save $12.84. In either case the saving amounts to nearly as much as two payments. And you save proportionately on any amount you borrow at Merchandise Bank.

EVERSHARP GETS O.K. TO REOPEN AFTER CHANGES

Eversharp, Inc., 1800 Roscoe st., pen and pencil manufacturing plant, which police closed Saturday after Chicago fire prevention officials complained that 15 specific violations of fire ordinances had been found there, reopened at 5 p. m. yesterday with the permission of fire authorities.

John L. Fenn, chief of the fire prevention bureau, issued the reopening order after an inspection trip. Fenn said that more than 20 tons of pyralin, a highly inflammable and toxic material, was removed from the building, part of it to an approved storage building, and part to the roof. Only a day's supply was allowed to remain on hand for the 1,800 workers on the plant's two shifts.

Judge Erwin J. Hasten in License court, continued until tomorrow the hearing on a warrant charging Eversharp officials with fire ordinance violations. The delay was granted to allow time for the inspection and to give the company additional time to make necessary changes.

Time of departures and arrivals is shown in the existing local standard time. TWA Constellations will be used on all flights out of the U.S.A. with sleeper and complimentary meal service available at appropriate times. Flight 112, starting in San Francisco, offers through Constellation service to Europe without a change of planes. * Indicates service twice a week only.

TWA POINTS THE WAY

Constellation Service

Fast, frequent schedules (See timetable):
Four daily round trips to Europe
Two daily round trips to Cairo
One daily round trip to Calcutta

Special low-rate service to Europe "when space is available" during seasons of the year when regular traffic is light and empty seats become available.

Express shipments at regular rates and "deferred" express at low rates for delivery in Europe within five days.

Nonstop Service

Nonstop overnight sleeper service from New York to London in less than twelve hours using the giant Astraliner, TWA's Skyliner of the future.

Nonstop express shipments at extra fare assuring expedited delivery.

De Luxe Air Cruises

Round-the-world in luxurious TWA Astraliner — with 27 days spent at interesting stops and a total of only 3 days of actual flying, all in the daytime — a round-the-world sightseeing trip.

Week-end service to Greenland. In the hot summer months — a 7-hour flight, leaving New York in a TWA Constellation Friday afternoon and returning Monday morning. Spend all day Saturday and Sunday in a land of breath-taking beauty and colorful people — one of the greatest scenic spots of the world.

Ready Now

TWA is ready now with 4-engined Stratoliners to fly from the United States to Calcutta and to double present transatlantic service at half the present rates.

THIS is the kind of intensive, commercial development of service that TWA proposes across the North Atlantic. It plumbs the full possibilities of every last ounce of foreign travel and foreign trade. It involves the creation of much new traffic. This is "public first" flying—for the many.

The other kind is "token" flying — the superficial development of the air travel and shipping possibilities along certain selected choice routes. It offers a few flights a week. Its range of service is limited. Its rates remain high year after year unless threatened with competition. It is flying for the few. To you as a traveler or shipper, TWA's plan means you get the greatest possible variety of service at the lowest possible rates.

To you as a taxpayer it means international air transport that supports itself by developing travel and trade instead of by reliance on government subsidy.

We offer this pattern of air service for the North Atlantic as an example of the type of air transport development we propose on our entire round-the-world route—a route that will link 10 of the 26 important areas of the world that are so vital to our national security, diplomacy and economy.

OUR BUTTERFLY BRIGADE.

Rep. Miller of Nebraska, whose travels have given him a wealth of first hand information about our diplomatic representatives, has offered some criticism of them which forms a valuable contribution to national education.

Too many of the American diplomats he has met, Mr. Miller says, are not up to their jobs. Too frequently he found American interests represented by men unable to speak the language of the country in which they were stationed. A greater and more fundamental defect, which he reports, is that American diplomats do not know the people of the nations to which they are accredited. They confine their contacts to the upper social classes and the reports they send home are what those classes want the United States to believe.

His final complaint is that our diplomacy lacks two-fisted bargaining. Currently, of course, this is a product of Mr. Roosevelt's Good Time Charlie foreign policy, but in happier times the same deficiency was apparent. American diplomats are inefficient in getting something done for America because they are too busy getting things done for themselves.

In the American Republic official society lacks the status which it enjoys in nations in which there is a hereditary ruling caste. An undersecretary of the interior can cut a swath at Washington tea parties, but he is small potatoes in New York or Chicago. In England the king is the fount of political authority and, to an extent, of religious authority. He is also the head of the British social system. The British government is synonymous with British society, and the same situation prevailed in the past in most of the other old world capitals. A result has been that the diplomatic service offered the main chance to Americans of social ambition. They have sought offices, either abroad or in the state department, that they might be allowed to associate with foreign aristocracy. In promoting their own petty vanity they have too often betrayed the interests they were employed to protect.

Congress expected American diplomats to maintain the same republican simplicity that won Franklin his successes, but in this generation we have run out of Franklins. The tradition grew up in the state department that our diplomats must engage in the social whirl of the privileged classes abroad. Only people of wealth could maintain that scale of living, and only wealthy men alienated from their own country and its people were interested in doing so.

American diplomacy has thus been unrepresentative of America. People of the same predilections dominated Mr. Dewey's foreign policy and thereby brought about the most recent defeat of the Republican party. Unless they can be eliminated from its counsels they will bring destruction to it and to the Republic.

As Rep. Miller noted, the diplomacy founded on contacts in European salons cannot protect American interests. Too many of the decisions that affect world affairs are being made today in quarters that our butterfly brigade knows nothing about. A good half of a diplomat's job consists of being a reporter for his government. Our social climbing ambassadors are poor reporters because they haven't the right acquaintances. When occasionally we send a man abroad who develops such services, his reports are more than likely to be buried by state department exquisites who conclude that the man in the field must be wrong because they, in their own exalted social set, have never heard of such a thing.

It is the fashion in these circles to sneer at the American business man as uncouth, socially inept, and overaggressive. Strangely enough, American business, in its negotiations in other countries, usually gets what it goes after. It is the bespatted sophisticates who are constantly being played for suckers.

THE HOPE OF AMERICAN FARMING.

In place of the annual International Live Stock exposition, discontinued for the period of the war, Chicago is holding a Fat Stock show at the stock yards this week.

City people who attend can enjoy a nostalgic glance at the grade A beef that the OPA has caused to disappear from their tables. City people also can revive their hope of good food in the future by viewing the achievements of the young members of the 4-H clubs and the Future Farmers of America.

This year the highest honors in the annual 4-H competition went to Donald F. Mowery, 18, who since his father's death in 1941 has successfully operated his family's 158 acre farm near Terre Haute. Iowa produced another Herbert Hoover as the runner-up. This 20 year old Hoover, who comes from Oskaloosa, has been engaged in 4-H activities for 11 years and the earnings from the fine stock he has sold have aggregated $17,135 in that period. The girl champion was Mary Jo Morgan, 19, of Laurel, Miss. In nine years of 4-H club projects her record shows an income of $6,808 from gardening, canning, sewing, poultry raising, and home improvements.

These organizations of farm youngsters, with hundreds of thousands of members, probably are doing the most effective job in the country today to maintain the standards that have made American agriculture the most successful and prosperous in the world and the American people the best fed.

This is said without underestimating the services of the nation's agricultural colleges. Thru research, particularly, the colleges are constantly improving the practices of American farmers and enhancing the fertility and yield of American farms. As training schools for farmers, however, they have not met fully the expectations of the legislators who founded them three-quarters of a century ago. A majority of their graduates stay in professional activities. They become farm and home economics advisers, in which capacity, of course, they have much to do with the success of the 4-H clubs. They go out to teach agriculture in the better organized rural high schools or they go into commercial or educational research in agriculture. Only a minority of them return to the plow.

Not many people make a success of farming who were not brought up on farms. Fortunately, big rural families have up to the present provided enough surplus members to maintain the vigor of urban populations and still keep the farms going. The 4-H clubs are an invaluable instrument in keeping the best of the country's youngsters where they can be happiest and where they are most useful to the nation.

Thru their projects they learn to do hard work without making it drudgery. They are trained in citizenship and in the sound business practices without which no farmer can expect to succeed. The solution of America's agricultural problems can best be found in the youngsters who at the stock yards this week are competing on even terms with experienced adult stock raisers and carrying off their share of the prizes.

A STALE UNTRUTH.

Lloyd George, nearing 82, is watching this war and, no doubt, with particular interest Mr. Churchill's part in it, from his farm in Surrey or, alternately, from his estate in Wales. He is the only surviving maker of the other peace which is now offered to the prospective makers of the next peace as a horrible example of what a peace ought not to be. That matter was taken up with him by an interviewer who asked what was the greatest mistake made in dealing with the Germans after the other war. To which he replied:

"America. If they had kept to their bargains instead of backing out and leaving the league of nations things would have gone quite differently."

As an octogenarian in retirement Mr. Lloyd George can be contemplated rather than criticised, but he cannot expect to repeat a stale untruth and be tolerated. Nor can his remark be attributed to dotage. It has too much new currency. America did not make any bargains it did not keep. It did not leave the league of nations. It did not enter the league of nations. It did not break faith. It did not engage its faith. Mr. Wilson could only negotiate a treaty. He could not also ratify it. He was a negotiator and Mr. Lloyd George as one of the other negotiators knew that the United States could not put its final signature on the line until two-thirds of the American senate had so voted.

Two-thirds of the American senate did not think it wise to do so unless Mr. Wilson would accept certain reservations. Mr. Wilson being tired, sick, and stubborn already had compromised too much in trying to satisfy Mr. Lloyd George and M. Clemenceau, in trying to agree to their territorial demands and in trying to placate Australia and Japan, in the demands which made this war in the Pacific possible. He said no to the senators and took to his bed. The objectors in the senate took him at his word and did not take the treaty.

There was no bad faith in this. There was no running out of obligations or out of a pledged word. We can hardly be expected to think it unfortunate that our processes of government do not meet the approval of the rest of the world. It is another stale untruth that the league of nations failed because the United States was not a member. Two of its destructive problems were entirely European. The other was Asiatic.

If the league had been merely a European family circle, France and Great Britain were supposedly powerful enough to keep Italy from breaking the covenant. Mussolini was a push-over for the first strong arm which gave him a nudge. Every one knows that now. Great Britain and France ran away from him. From what we learned later of Pierre Laval, the Frenchman who dealt with him, and can suspect of Samuel Hoare, the Britisher, it cannot be certain that Mussolini wasn't told to get the hide of the Lion of Judah and hang it from the balcony of the Palazzo Venezia.

All Hitler needed to break loose was the success of the Italian blusterer in driving the league into the storm cellar. It is said that both these European adventurers were encouraged to their enterprises by the failure of the league to stop Japan in Manchuria. That's where we come in. America, not joining the league, did not thereby isolate itself. It had any number of particular agreements to stop aggression in particular regions. Henry Stimson, Mr. Roosevelt's secretary of war, owes it to his fellow countrymen to give them a perfectly candid and detailed statement of what happened to him when as secretary of state he tried to enforce the international agreement which would have stopped Japan's first breach of faith.

Why was it impossible to use the power of the signatories to the treaty protecting China? Mr. Stimson's country, not isolated, had picked the spots where trouble might break out, and had signed up. Why did the members of the league of nations, including Lloyd George's country, renege on their specific as well as their general obligations?

A VISION OF COLOGNE.

[A description of the greatest German city of the middle ages, toward which American troops are advancing, found in a masterpiece of English literature.]

"Twere a sin to be so near Cologne and not see it. O, man, it is a vast and ancient city, such as I have often dreamed of, but ne'er had the good luck to see. . . . It is old enough to have been founded by a Roman lady in the first century of grace, and sacked by Attila the barbarous, and afterward sore defaced by the Norman Lothaire.

"And it has a church for every week in the year, forbye chapels and churches innumerable of convents and nunneries, and above all the stupendous minster yet unfinished, and therein lie the three kings that brought gifts to our Lord, Melchior gold, and Gaspar frankincense, and Balthazar the black king, he brought myrrh; and over their bones stands the shrine, the wonder of the world; it is of ever-shining brass brighter than gold, studded with images fairly wrought, and laid with exquisite devices, and brave with colors; and two broad stripes run to and fro, of jewels so great, so rare, each might adorn a crown or ransom its wearer at need; and upon it stand the three kings curiously counterfeited. . . .

"And there is St. Ursel's church, a British saint's, where lie her bones and all the other virgins her fellows; 11,000 were they who died for the faith, being put to the sword on the 23d day of October, 238. Their bones are piled in the vaults, and many of their skulls are in the church. . . .

"Ay, marry, there is a university near 100 years old; and there is a market place, no fairer in the world, and at the four sides of it houses great as palaces; and there is a stupendous senate house all covered with images, and at the head of them stands one of stout Herman Gryn, a soldier like thyself, lad."

"But tell me," said Denys, with some surprise, "when wast thou in Cologne?"

"Never but in the spirit."

THE LAST LOAD.

At twilight a clear star hangs
Above the lowered cornfield bars,
A luminous sign of peace and hope
While wind rustles in the weedy spars.
The last load jolts thru the opened gap
With weight of fodder from a well gleaned field,
And acrid cornstalks brush the lowered bars
From the piled rick of autumn's yield.
Old men and boys trudge wearily home,
But one looks at the star and stops,
Gravely saluting as soldiers may at victory:
Snow comes, but we've got in the crops.

S'Amuser.

Salute to an Old Clock.

An old Seth Thomas clock hangs on my wall, its face scarred and yellowed, the striking parts senile, uncertain. It served my folks with a harsh voice, marking the hours and quarter hours in our "Fair store" in eastern Indiana. There, with Yankee parsimony, Seth parceled out my day from 7 in the morning to 10 at night. Now Seth is forgiven—today I raise a glass in salute to an old family retainer.

Yes, I raise the glass again and say: "Old timer, why can't you and I reverse our ailing machinery and turn back to that time we know was the best of all?" And lo! the yellowed face fades away—there, instead, is our gas-lighted store on a wintry night. Sharp gusts of snow-laden wind wail outside. Within, the hot air furnace sends up blasts of tobacco scented heat as Uncle Bill sits reading Tom Paine while enjoying a quid of Piper Heidsieck. Perched back of the cigar case, his nephew reads a Beadle dime novel. A few stormbound "regulars" browse quietly thru the literature on the news counter. The voice of the wind and Seth's firm tick-tock emphasize the quietness. Only his quarter hour warnings that time is fleeting disturb the serenity. Otherwise the store is as quiet as a club library.

Ah, Seth bangs out 10 o'clock, the closing hour, and in his voice there is a Yankee note of impatience with such profitless indolence. The boy jumps from his perch to do a final chore and as the store lights go out, one by one, my vision fades. Again I am peering into the scarred and yellowed face of old Seth, and my glass is empty.

Chiggers.

A DIFFERENT WAY.

Wise men, indeed, to know a new-born star
Would be the herald of a King! Wise men,
To watch in readiness and travel far
To seek a Light beyond their fellows' ken!
At star-bathed stable to rejoice, and when
They saw the Babe, to kneel and humbly lay
Their richest gifts of gold, of myrrh; and then
To travel back, dream-told, another way!
Ah, rare and wondrous wisdom—in our day
To read God's portents and to find His key!
Sweet manger Baby, to Thy tender sway
We yield all pride, all knowledge—gifts for Thee.
We worship in the radiance of Thy face,
And rise, a different way of life to trace.

He wrote that my allowance would be cut off until he had served his time, and I would then receive it in a lump sum. Will the government discontinue my allowance without giving me any reason? Is it possible for the government to discontinue my allowance for any reason at all?"

If your husband has been court martialed and given a dishonorable discharge, your family allowance will be discontinued, but you will receive an official notice from the office of dependency benefits concerning it. There is no truth to his statement that you will receive an allowance in a lump sum after he has completed his sentence. Any man who receives a dishonorable discharge is no longer eligible for a family allowance for his dependents.

NOSEBLEED NOT AN AID TO HEALTH.

WE have all heard friends remark, "I had a nosebleed this morning and it did me a lot of good." This is a popular response to a foolish notion that a hemorrhage from the nostrils is nature's way of relieving various ailments. There is just one condition in which such episodes may be helpful—with a very high blood pressure. The reading may be reduced temporarily by dispensing with a few ounces of the circulating fluid.

There was a time when bleeding was looked upon as a healing measure. It was reasoned that the loss of a substantial amount of "bad" blood would give the body a chance to bring about recovery. But this is ancient history and we now realize that, except in a very few disorders, opening a vein and abstracting a sizable quantity of vital fluid is undesirable and unnecessary. In fact, surgeons do everything possible not to waste a drop. Many a patient is prepared for the operating room by means of a preliminary transfusion.

When blood starts to escape from the nose, we attempt to stop it and that speedily. The situation is rarely serious with children but an adult may present a difficult problem. There is a small area [Kiesselbach's] on the nasal septum which is easily injured. Here a number of tiny arteries come together. From this spot, a generous flow may proceed and, occasionally, actual cautery will be demanded to bring about coagulation.

A bump may rupture some of the capillaries of the mucosa and all that one needs to do is to pack the passages firmly with thin pieces of sterile gauze [one-half inch wide]. A useful medicine is compound tincture of benzoin and the strips may be saturated with this material before they are inserted. The thing we want to bring about is enough pressure to empty the vessels and allow coagulation to occur. The trouble with cocaine and adrenalin is that the effect is likely to wear off, whereupon oozing may be resumed.

Now and then, however, a more powerful clotting remedy will be called for. Here, we think of vitamin K, snake venom, or a transfusion. This latter procedure is not adopted merely to replace blood but to administer to the sufferer more chemicals which will assist the formation of a firm plug.

First of all, it is well to try common sense measures, which include hot water bottles to the feet while, at the same time, the patient is given cracked ice to suck. Cold compresses are applied to the face and neck. A "stopper" is then inserted into the discharging passageway. If the proper substances are not at hand, clean, soft tissue paper may be rolled into a cone and pressed into place. Remember that the effort is not to distend the orifice but to exert force upon the site of the hemorrhage. If the unaffected side is free, the necessity for mouth breathing will be avoided. Success will usually come if the pledget is not disturbed for at least thirty minutes. Thereafter it may be removed gently so as not to break down the coagulum.

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Reader's Choice.

If you don't read paper books, you'd better skip this. If you do, we know a good use for the paper books after you have read them. The victory book campaign which the Chicago public library is continuing single handed on a national scale can use 160,000 a month.

The need for books by men overseas is as stern and incessant as the need for ammunition. You would know this if you could see the poignant letters written to the library here on scratch paper, lined pencil paper, and V-mail. Since Chicago started its book drive two years ago, eight million books have gone out, but those eight million can and do wear out. Try passing a book, no matter how firmly it is bound, around to 100 friends and see how it looks after they have read it. Or try leaving it in a damp cellar full of mold, the home front simulation of jungle fungus, and try to pick it up again. Or you might set out to reread the same book 10 times in one month and see how desperately you yearn for a new one. Better still, pretend you have neither books, newspapers, nor magazines to read and merely contemplate the printed label on a can of tomatoes for 30 days. Then you will have a lively conception of that need.

All the other cities in the country stopped their victory book drives a year ago. Chicago never did. Last month alone, in addition to innumerable five pound packages of books shipped to any Chicago or Illinois boy overseas who requested them, 12 LSTs were outfitted with 250-book libraries, and 120,000 paper books were distributed to troop trains passing thru town.

Now that Christmas is almost here and it appears that this will be a big book Christmas the library hopes many of these gift books will be passed on for the fighting forces once they have been read. Not the ornate, de luxe editions, but the book you would read only once and stack up on a shelf to be discarded 10 years from now.

If, however, some one gives you "The Bobbsey Twins at the Seashore" and you feel constrained to pass it on, choke that noble motive immediately. One kind lady already has sent it, and it is accumulating dust and evil glances daily. Another donor sent "New Salads, Bridge Luncheons, Canned Meals," a dubious bit of literature for men who are pretty sick of canned meals right now. The 10 Boy Scout handbooks sent in also are outmoded a trifle by recent changes in fighting strategy. These, as well as "When You Entertain — What to Do and How," the 37 volume set of the writings of G. Washington, the poems of James Whitcomb Riley, and a little homily on the picturesque Mediterranean, will stay here.

On the basis of letters received at the library, the boys want paper books of all types [classical, modern fiction, mysteries], good current fiction, historical novels, westerns, and humor. A boy in France asked for Franklin's autobiography, a boy in Italy asked for the latest work on Babylonian excavations, and a boy in the Pacific asked for Robinson's "Mind in the Making," Spengler's "Decline of the West," Plato's "Republic," and Young's "A Fortune to Share," but these are individual tastes and not the run of the mill, which really want only something diverting.

Some of the letters that come back are touching. A boy in Italy, writing in profuse gratitude, asked what rental fee he owed. He said he had read the books and was shipping them back. Could he pay the shipping charges and 3 cents a book a day? A boy in New Guinea not only was ecstatic about the package of Zane Gray westerns that had just come ["Us lads in my tent are well into them already, and I promise you they will get passed thru our company, then to another co., then to another."], but added a footnote on jungle life as he sees it:

"I've been one year in these jungles, ain't seen but one white girl in this time and she was a nurse and I was riding to work on a truck 700 yards away." The letter came to Mildred Bruder of the library staff who has been directing the book drive and carried a wistful postcript: "P. S. [Miss?]"

DO WE FIGHT THE EMPIRE'S WARS?

Le Mars, Ia., Nov. 28.—I heard a commentator on the Blue network lay down the law like this:

1. We must enter a new league of nations which will guarantee us against another war.
2. We must have conscription from now on, so we will never again be caught unprepared for war.
3. The American delegate to the league of nations must be empowered to commit our armed forces to conflict without consulting congress, and anybody who doesn't agree is a dirty isolationist.

One might wonder why we should conscript armies indefinitely if the league is going to prevent war, but this seeming contradiction, as well as the demand that congress abdicate its control over making war, are now explained by the fuss over conscription in Canada. That dominion, as well as Australia, South Africa, India, and many smaller parts of the British empire, are not eager to provide armies for the British empire. In fact, it looks as tho, in future years, they might flatly refuse to provide fighting men.

Now, suppose that the British and the Russians get to fighting over the oil of Iran. The British could not count very strongly on the provinces to conscript millions of soldiers. But that wouldn't matter if the United States were bound to support a league of nations, and if the American delegate agreed to provide the armies.

It would be very handy, then, to have that huge trained army which the internationalists want us to keep ready, despite the "guaranty of peace" by the league of nations.

SPEEDING UP "L" SERVICE.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—What is it that is preventing the people of Chicago from getting reasonable benefit out of the subways they built with their car fares? Why must "Rapid" Transit trains now stop every time they come to a platform?

Years ago, before subways and before Englewood trains began rounding the loop, they and the Jackson Park trains each used to skip stops which the other made, thus speeding up both. Why not now?

Jackson Park-Howard trains could stop at 58th, 51st, 43d, Indiana, Harrison, loop stations, Grand, Division, Fullerton, and Belmont, while Englewood-Ravenswood trains made 58th, 55th, 47th, Indiana, Roosevelt, loop stations, Chicago, North, and Belmont.

Very few people would thereby be delayed. Thousands would enjoy a substantial shortening of their daily dose of flu bugs.

Must senseless competition with street cars, or just bad habits, continue to waste precious war time man hours, besides trainloads of coal to supply energy for needless stops of heavily loaded trains?

DAY NURSERY FOR POOCHES.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—There are nurseries and different people with whom a working couple may leave their children. Why, O, why, doesn't some one open a place for our poor dogs, instead of keeping them in an apartment and alone all day. There are many couples who have not been fortunate enough to have youngsters, but who do have a pet.

NEEDLING HENDERSON.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Your editorial yesterday on Leon Henderson was a joy—but right next to the domain of Charles Collins the watchful, in the third line from the bottom, you mention "oak leaves"—whereas the earth of the Black forest is coated with needles from the trees. No leaves, nothing but needles; needles that make walking noiseless and stain the beds of the streams a dark brown, and turn the air into a refreshing tonic, with every breeze a sough of sound, but nary a rustle. Think of the bureaus to be founded for gluing the needles back on the trees, the special rakes to be made to handle elusive needles with new style arm rests to lean on, the departments to put a Black forest Christmas tree in every home in Tunisia; the service for processing Black forest needles into pins to be used by post-war laundries in pinning up the present missing 6 inch war casualty on shirts; the tons of paper work involved in doing all this, the tons of paper work in undoing all of it later. All this should provide at least 60,000,006 jobs. The Black forest can absorb 60,000,006, for it's not on a level anyway—17 per cent could live in the valleys and the other 83 per cent on the sides of the hills.

HOW TO GET WORKERS.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—A lot of reports on the labor shortage and what causes them are in print every day. Let some or all of these firms that need labor cut out some of their red tape in hiring, such as doctors' examinations, birth certificates, and a lot of foolish questions. Then junk these United States employment offices and let those Roosevelt, Kelly, and McNutt stooges go join the WAC, WAVES, or any of the other services, or go to work in some defense plant. Then let Roosevelt do as Wilson did—issue a work or fight order. Of course, he may lose a few votes by doing it. Cut out some or all of this red tape and regimentation and things would be better for the worker and employer.

WHO GETS OUR TOBACCO.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—I note your bewilderment about the cigaret shortage. Two weeks ago on a business trip I stopped in Wilson, N. C., and attended several tobacco auctions. The auctioneers sound exactly like your Mr. Gobbledygook. I learned, also, that the biggest buyer of tobacco in the current sales is Imperial Tobacco company, which buys for lend-lease. All the warehouse men were agreed on that. So, the smokes that you and I and the boys are not getting are probably going to Russia, England, etc.

BUSINESS PLANS G. O. P. GROUP TO OFFSET CIO'S PAC

Expect AFL Support of Citizens' Committee.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Exploratory talks aimed at strengthening the Republican party in Illinois were started yesterday by a group of business men and members of the G. O. P. state central committee. All were agreed that the problem cannot wait until a few months before the 1946 election.

Gradual formation of a huge citizens' committee outside of the party organization was proposed. Conferees termed this indispensable in view of the continued existence of the CIO political action committee.

Plan State-Wide Activity.

Not only in Cook county, where the G. O. P. organization is weakest, but in the 101 downstate counties as well, the citizens' committee would be active. Office holders, job seekers, and professional politicians in general would be barred. With this kind of a base, business men thought the project feasible.

Business men have been laggard in political activity, members of the state central committee said. The new organization would include citizens from other walks of life than those comprised in the business men's committee, which has worked energetically since its inception in 1940. American Federation of Labor members are bound to find that they are out in the cold with the New Deal-CIO coalition in power, it was said, and will flock to join the right kind of political movement.

Aim: Rebuild Party.

"We must rebuild a real American Republican party," one business man said. "There must be no hyphenated Americanism in the new organization. The party no longer should deal in terms of Polish-American divisions, Greek-American divisions, and so on."

John F. Tyrrell, chairman of the Republican state committee, said other midwestern states may take the project for a pattern if it is successful. In the recent Presidential campaign, Illinois and other midwest states raised or exceeded their quotas of contributions, while New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Massachusetts fell short, he said.

"The east gave us Dewey on the ground that this would produce campaign funds," Tyrrell said. "But the east got the money we gave, and we did not have the kind of a fighting American campaign we wanted in the midwest."

VOTE A MANDATE ON MIDDLE ROAD, LEWIS ASSERTS

Fulton Lewis Jr., Washington commentator for W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system, declared in a lecture in Orchestra hall last night that the recent election was a mandate to President Roosevelt to keep to the middle of the road and avoid extremism.

Lewis attributed the President's fourth term election to the planting of large numbers of federal employes in a group of key states. In 11 states, he said, the number of New Deal payrollers exceeded the plurality for Roosevelt. Without this employee block, the states—Idaho, Massachusetts, Maryland, Missouri, Michigan, New Jersey, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, Oregon, and Pennsylvania—might have gone Republican, he said.

Lewis proposed that voters be permitted to choose between the Vice Presidential candidates and said that if that had been possible this year, Gov. Bricker likely would have beaten Sen. Truman.

"We can catch the next bus. But we've got to get Mom home to start dinner."

KEEP NEW DEAL'S HAND OFF ROADS, BUILDERS URGED

Rep. Randolph Tells Post-War Plans.

The nation's new post-war highways and airports should be constructed by private industry after the war so that the American taxpayer will receive a dollar value for a dollar spent, Rep. Randolph [D., W. Va.] told the Illinois Road Builders' association last night in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Rep. Randolph, veteran of 12 years in congress who admits he doesn't always see eye to eye with the New Deal, but got thousands more votes in his own district Nov. 7 than President Roosevelt, was the chief speaker at the association's annual banquet.

Warns of Extravagance.

"The post-war program," said the speaker, "must not degenerate into a repetition of New Deal administration extravagances in war projects. Made WPA work and poorly planned projects are not the answer to vital transportation development for the United States."

He asserted a transportation construction period of readjustment would make the immediate jobs for returning service veterans and war workers seeking employment.

In the next few days, the speaker said, congress will complete action on a post-war highway bill for expenditure within a three year period after the war of $3,250,000,000. He said the nation's highway system is not only antiquated but is rapidly wearing out under the impact of war time travel.

Tells of Airport Bill.

A champion of creation of a standing committee in congress on aviation, Rep. Randolph said skyway transportation will be an equally important function. He referred to legislation now pending in congress calling for nation-wide building of airport projects over a five or 10 year period, including projects known to be needed in Illinois. He said this bill calls for 2 billion dollars for the nation and approximately $40,000,000 for Illinois, the cost to be shared equally by the federal government and the states and municipalities.

In Illinois, he said, the bill would provide for construction of five new airports and improvement of 55. The estimate, he said, includes $3,170,000 to improve Chicago's present airport, $960,000 for a new airport at Chicago Heights, and $25,000 for improvement at the present Chicago Heights airport.

Donald O. White, president of White Consolidated, Inc., Chicago, was elected president of the association. Other officers are L. L. Seidler, Kankakee, vice president; Arthur R. Ramser, Wayne, treasurer, and A. B. McDonald, Wadsworth, secretary. Taylor G. Soper was reappointed executive secretary.

Illinois' road construction program for 1945 will be confined to reconstruction and replacement, patchwork, bituminous resurfacing, and building of accessory roads, C. M. Hathaway, construction engineer for the state division of highways, told the association.

REVOLUTION ON, WALLACE TELLS CHICAGO GROUP

Vice President Wallace gave his definitions of a liberal Democrat and a reactionary Republican in an address in honor of Marshall Field in the Palmer House last night. Approximately 1,000 guests attended, among them Mayor Kelly, other public officials, college professors, and labor leaders.

"The liberal Democrat," Wallace said, "Knows that the people's revolution is on the march, and that he will have to run fast to keep up. The reactionary Republican knows that something is happening, but he can't quite figure out what it is. And so he runs around shrieking alarm, hoping in his wild panic to gain some measure of security for himself, his wealth, and the wealth of his children."

The Vice President quoted liberally from the Bible, saying it was filled with social dynamite. The trend of his Biblical philosophy was against material wealth.

SENATE TO OPEN INDIANA VOTE PROBE DEC. 18

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—A subcommittee of the senate campaign expenditures committee will open public hearings in Indianapolis Dec. 18 in further investigation of the Indiana election, Robert Murphy, committee counsel, said today.

The subcommittee, made up of Sen. Stewart [D., Tenn.] and Sen. Ball [R., Minn.], will inquire into complaints of disfranchisement, fraud, and irregularities, especially in Marion county, and of excessive expenditures, particularly in the campaign of Senator-elect Capehart [R.].

The subcommittee was appointed Friday after the full committee decided unanimously that an on-the-spot inquiry appeared justified from reports of the preliminary investigation.

STORM HITS KANSAS, MO.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 4 [AP].—Telephone and electric service was crippled generally in Missouri and Kansas today as steady rains turned to ice and snow. A serious flood threatened the El Dorado, Kas., area. In St. Joseph, Mo., three public schools shut down because of lack of power.

SENATORS HINT PROBE OF OHIO NOV. 7 ELECTION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—The senate elections committee today asked that the destruction of Ohio general election ballots be delayed pending a possible investigation of that state's senatorial race.

Chairman Green [D., R. I.] of the committee made public a letter to Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel of Ohio requesting that the ballots be kept intact for 120 days from Nov. 7.

"This committee may desire to investigate the election in Ohio, particularly with reference to the contest for United States senator," Green wrote Hummel.

Sen. Taft [R.] won reelection over William G. Pickrel [D.] in the Nov. 7 vote.

VET ALIVE, U.S. OUTLINES PLAN FOR HIS BURIAL

Columbus, Ind., Dec. 4 [Special].—Resentment was aroused here today by disclosure of a veterans' hospital official's letter to a Columbus woman outlining plans for burial of her husband who was still alive at the time but seriously ill.

The hospital patient was Ray S. Vannoy, 50, a veteran of World War I. He had been ill for about nine months when, last May, he entered a veterans' hospital in Indianapolis. In mid-July he was transferred to a similar hospital in Dawson Springs, Ky., where he died July 22.

Prior to the death, an official of the veterans' administration at Outwood, Ky., wrote to Vannoy's wife, Mrs. Pansy Vannoy, informing her of her husband's serious illness and of "government burial arrangements in the event of his death."

"The most commonly used plan," the letter to her was quoted as saying, "is what we speak of as the government contract burial. . . . If you decide to accept the government contract, we will need to know the name of the undertaker to whom the body will be shipped."

Rep. Wilson [R., Ind.], who made the letter public in Washington, D. C., today, commented: "Apparently their primary interest is not so much the veteran himself or his wife, but what to do with the body, even before the patient is dead."

YOUNG 'COWBOY' FATALLY BURNED BY 'INDIAN' PALS

Tied to Stake After His 'Capture' by Enemy.

Columbus, Ga., Dec. 4 [Special]—It was the turn of William Bell, 9, to be the cowboy yesterday while Don Bass, 7, and Wadus Mixon, 10, took the part of Indians.

William crawled thru the grass of the Linwood school playground on a scouting expedition in the heart of enemy territory. Prowling savages detected his presence. With triumphant whoops they captured him, then held a council of war to determine his fate.

"Burn 'um at stake," pronounced Big Chief Eagle Feather Mixon.

Set Fire to Grass.

They tied William to a tree in the school yard and began a dance of death around it, waving imaginary tomahawks. William didn't protest, not even when Eagle Feather lit a match and set fire to the grass at his feet. Smoke made the game all the more realistic.

Passersby saw the smoke and heard the shouts. William's cries were uttered in pain and terror, but those of his playmates still were in fun. Jack King, 16, rushed to the scene and found William's clothing ablaze.

Dies in Hospital.

He cut the ropes that bound the boy to the tree. A woman took off her coat and rolled it about William. He was rushed to a hospital, but three hours later, despite administration of blood plasma, he died.

The former Chief Eagle Feather, just a frightened boy, was taken to the police station and turned over to juvenile authorities after questioning.

William was the son of Leonard E. Bell, now on duty abroad with the navy, and Annie Parker Bell.

ROBOT BRAIN; IT THINKS YEAR IN A MINUTE!

New York, Dec. 4 [Special].—A robot brain so versatile that it can obtain in an instant mathematical results which would require months or years of figuring was announced today by the General Electric company.

The company called the device a differential analyzer and said a feature of its operation was its utilization of beams of polarized light as shafts synchronizing revolving discs. The light beams are superior to steel shafts, it was said, because they never have mechanical trouble, need no greasing, and never wear out.

The calculator has worked problems in radar, water power, rotation of machinery and artillery fire, it was said, and is capable of calculating forces which are constantly changing, known as variables.

OWNER OF SHOP HELD TO JURY AS AID OF DESERTER

Harold Richard Kupel, 39, of 65 S. Lake st., Aurora, yesterday waived examination when arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on a charge of harboring and aiding a deserter from the army, and was held to the grand jury under $1,000 bonds.

Kupel, owner of a machine shop in Aurora, is accused of harboring Pvt. Leroy Baxter, 22, said to be absent without leave from Camp Bowie, Tex., in a room over the machine shop.

Asst. United States Atty. George G. Kelly said that Baxter had spent 19 of the 24 months he has been in the army in the Camp Bowie guard house. Baxter was arrested previously in Aurora Nov. 11, Kelly said, but escaped from his guards en route to Camp Bowie.

His last arrest, Kelly said, occurred Saturday after authorities had observed his sister, Virginia, carry out food from a restaurant where she worked as a waitress, and take it to Kupel's machine shop.

HOLDUP VICTIMS POINT OUT 2 IN U. S. COURT TRIAL

Theodore Jagiello, 27, of 1317 Haddon av., and Leonard Brzezinski, 20, of 2433 N. Harding av., were identified yesterday in federal District court as the two bandits who on Aug. 31 robbed the Northwest Federal Savings and Loan association, 4865 Irving Park rd., of $1,657.

The two, on trial before Judge Elwyn R. Shaw and a jury of 11 women and one man, were identified by Clyde B. Reed, manager of the institution, and Miss Laura Runge, assistant cashier. A third man, Raymond Kreek, 21, also indicted for the holdup, has pleaded guilty.

Both Reed and Miss Runge testified that Jagiello menaced them with a shotgun.

Diners Driven from Cafe by Smoke of Fire Outside

Smoke from a rubbish fire in an adjoining alley caused some diners in Henrici's restaurant, 71 W. Randolph st., to leave their tables hurriedly last night. Service was interrupted until the ventilating system cleared the air. The smoke entered the restaurant when firemen accidentally broke a window.

U. OF C. TEACHER WINS DELAY ON SAILOR'S CHARGE

A charge of using lewd, wanton, and lascivious speech or behavior against Cecil Smith, 38, of 5529 Blackstone av., was continued yesterday by Judge Jay Schiller in State Street court until today. The postponement was granted at the request of Smith's attorney, Emmet Byrnes. Smith, an instructor in classical music at the University of Chicago and a former newspaper music critic, was arrested Thursday in the Clark theater on the complaint of Seaman 2d Class Gilbert Dunn, who is stationed at Great Lakes.

Buying War Bonds Proves YOU, Too, Understand

THE war's not over for G.I. Joe . . . not by many a shot . . . not while a single son of Hirohito blocks the road to Tokyo . . . not while a single Nazi fanatic still owns a gun.

He knows only too well that the last sniper's bullet . . . or the final screaming shell . . . can be just as deadly as the first.

And he knows how terribly long and bitter the fighting will be before the last enemy gun is silenced.

So G.I. Joe doesn't care much for home front let-downs springing from false optimism. He'd like more realistic thinking, more understanding from the folks back home.

There's one sure way of letting him know that you do understand . . . that you're backing him to the hilt . . . right up to the final victory parade!

That's by buying more War Bonds than before—by buying them now!

Remember! Every dollar you use for War Bonds is a message of cheer to the fighting fronts that really means something. Every War Bond you hold is a body blow at runaway prices . . . a vote of confidence in our way of life . . . and an investment in your own future!

An American Institution Since 1840

We Americans are embarked on our fourth year of war. Many victories are behind us; more are yet to be won.

As we look back, our railroads—with less equipment than in 1918—have achieved the greatest transportation job in history. We at the Illinois Central take pride in having done our share.

Now, we must carry forward into another year. Until final Victory comes, moving reinforcements to the battlefronts will continue to be the main concern of 42,000 Illinois Central war workers.

But working hard for Victory is also preparing us for peace. War has taught us much. Its necessities have mothered thousands of improvements. Since Pearl Harbor, alert Illinois Central workers have offered 72,210 suggestions for bettering our operations, and 12,910 have been adopted.

War has taught us closer co-operation, too. Today, more than ever, the Illinois Central is a family united along 6,600 miles of railroad in fourteen states.

When V-Day comes, all we have learned will be turned to account in improving Illinois Central service. When peace gives us the go-ahead—the "highball" in railroad language—we will be ready. We want to keep on earning your good will!

Paris Coiffeurs Use Wigs and Artificial Curls

BY ANNE BRUYERE.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—Wigs, chignons, and artifical braids and curls for busy Parisians who no longer can afford costly and time consuming hairdos are being presented by leading coiffeurs.

Rene Rambaud shows sleek curls attached to the top of the forehead by tiny invisible combs. The curls come in various shades of brown, auburn, blonde, and black. They are worn with high, off-the-face turbans and take only a minute to fix.

Many French women go bareheaded nowadays because hats are expensive. Hairdressing was impossible for several months because of the lack of electricity, oils, waving fluids, and hairpins. Most of these products are still scarce, so hairdressers resorted to wigs.

Long braids are featured by Armand et Georges. They are twisted high around the head and attached with velvet bows, or arranged in figure eights over the ears.

Armand et Georges also show much costume jewelry for evening hairdos. Large Spanish combs studded with multicolored rhinestones are stuck a foot high above chignons. Twin butterflies made of gold and trimmed with rubies, sapphires, and emeralds are placed in either side of artificial bangs.

Since the war Parisians either have let their hair grow below the shoulders or kept tresses clipped in a short, boyish bob for camping and sportswear. For evening the short hair was combed upward and embellished with flowers or spangled velvet coverings.

Jean-Pierre introduces a new shade of hair dye, a pinkish silver. Wigs in the same color are in wide waves at the crown, with clusters of curls at the forehead and nape of neck.

High, broad, and gleaming black Chinese coiffures are featured by Mme. Antoine. Modified versions are popular for street and afternoon wear. At a distance they resemble hats. As a matter of fact, most are wigs and are worn like turbans.

Mme. Antoine also shows mounted headdresses. Natural curls frame the face, while large cotton pads covered with artificial hair form a heart-shaped coiffure. This is enhanced by multicolored ostrich feathers tied together on top with a spangled band.

Movie Shows Bobby Socks Set in Action

"MEET MISS BOBBY SOCKS."

A Columbia picture, directed by Glenn Tryon, starring Bob Crosby, Louise Erickson, and Lynn Merrick, and presented at the Oriental.

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Hopeful of gaining some explanation of a current social phenomenon, we expectantly elbowed our way thru a barrage of teen agers [at 10:45 on a Monday morning!] to inspect "Meet Miss Bobby Socks." But to our disappointment, in one way, and enjoyment in another, the picture proved to be more expository than clinical. It doesn't inform you why the bobby sockers act that way, but it does demonstrate with considerable detail how they act.

Louise Erickson is not far from perfect as the 15 year old bobby socker who has developed a crush on Bob Crosby, a crooner just out of the army and without a job. In gratitude for a little brotherly attention, with a song or two thrown in, Louise sets out to promote a career for Bob. And, brother, if you ever need a promoter, look up Louise!

She organizes a nation-wide deluge of bobby sock fan mail, which descends on a local radio station that never heard of Bob, so that when he innocently walks in there's a spot waiting for him. Fan clubs, surreptitious photographs of the idol undergoing swooning adulation from his fans, forged dedications on unsolicited photos, one of which nearly breaks up a happy marriage, and organized squealing all contribute to a real success for Bob.

Romance enters into the picture, but not the way Louise had anticipated, for Bob and Louise's school teacher sister [Lynn Merrick] get that way, and at first it's hard for the kid to take. But when Bob explains that he's a "worn out 30," Louise accepts the offer of eternal gratitude and friendship and returns happily to the faithful but somewhat disgusted boy friend, Robert White, who, at least, can jitterbug.

Bob is smooth and likable, which is all you can ask of a crooner, and sings songs like "I'm Not Afraid of Love" and "Come Rain, Come Shine" with a manner ingratiating even to a music critic. This forbidding specimen even liked the Kim Loo sisters in "Take It Easy" and Louis Jordan and his Tympany Five in "Deacon Jones."

Art Students to Offer Their Work at Auction

One of the organizations offering a solution to the Christmas shopping problem is the Art Students' League of Chicago, which will hold an auction of paintings and crafts at 4 p. m. Friday in Fullerton hall of the Art institute. Edgar Miller, Chicago painter and designer, and Dudley Crafts Watson, institute lecturer, have been enlisted to assist, Mr. Miller to open the sale with a speech, and Dr. Watson to serve as auctioneer. The craft work will include painted trays, embroideries, and blocked fabrics. League members all are students in the School of the Art institute.

Daughters of Indiana.

The Daughters of Indiana will meet in the Cordon club today for a noon round table luncheon followed at 2 p. m. by a musical.

Stage Notes

"Oklahoma's" party to be staged at the Blackstone theater at midnight Saturday is getting bigger by the day. In addition to Lawrence Langner and Theresa Helburn of the Theater Guild, co-authors Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. are coming, along with Stage Director Rouben Mamoulian. Agnes De Mille, who created the ballet, was here last week with Ballet theater but was unable to stay for the party. The "Oklahoma!" orchestra under the Erlanger direction of Joel Gerhardt will provide music for dancing.

"Porgy and Bess," which opened a week's return engagement at the Civic Opera house last night, has canceled its Wednesday matinée. Instead, the entire company of 70, including Conductor Alexander Smallens, will give a special performance that afternoon in the Red Cross auditorium at Vaughan General hospital for convalescing service men.

Movie Closeup

Starting tomorrow night with the Palace theater première of the Clark Gable production, "Combat America," 25 Chicago movie theaters will inaugurate two weeks of productions to which admission is by purchase of war bonds costing $25 or more. Among the plans is the double bill at the State-Lake theater, opening Dec. 22, which adds a Navy "Happy Hour Stage Revue" to the bill featuring "Frenchman's Creek," co-starring Joan Fontaine and Arturo de Cordova. The participating neighborhood theaters will show important pictures well in advance of the usual schedules.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 4.—For the first time in history there was a marriage between motion pictures and radio at that six hour bond rally at Madison Square Garden. Ted Lloyd, who arranged it, is here arranging a remarriage on Wednesday. It's an hour show, but they'll utilize most of our stars who went overseas, and as masters of ceremonies you'll probably be listening to Clark Gable, Robert Montgomery, and Louis Hayward, who distinguished themselves fighting. Then you'll get Crosby, Benny, Astaire, Hope, Shore, Hutton, Jolson, Bergman, Cagney, Heifetz, Sheridan, Keenan Wynn—maybe more. It's about time this great industry and radio got together instead of sniping at each other. Now that television isn't too far off, it's a "must."

Louis Hayward. Ingrid Bergman. Betty Hutton. Clark Gable.

But Will It Work?

Warners finally did it. Pulled out of the Hays organization. They've been trying to for two years and wondered if they'd dare. They claim they got no coöperation from Hollywood. Well, maybe not, but they sure got an awful lot of help from the government on "Mission to Moscow," "Destination Tokyo," "Action in the North Atlantic, "Navy Wives," etc. I don't know what more they could have had. If they step out of the Hays office, that will probably mean that no restraint will be put upon them. Does that mean they'll go back to making pictures like "Torrid Zone" with James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, and Ann Sheridan, and "They Drive by Night," starring Ida Lupino, Humphrey Bogart, and George Raft? The dialog and sex display in both those pictures was the sort of thing you usually associate with burlesque. Our pictures have been on a pretty high level lately, and so I'm pleading, let's not drag them into the mud again.

Dungarees and Tails.

As I was coming to work this morning, a gay sight gave me a chuckle. A young fellow about 17, crossing the street, was wearing dungarees and cowboy boots and, over that, evening tails, and he carried a high hat. . . . Alexander Kirkland, Gypsy Rose Lee's ex, is testing at R. K. O. If it's good, he won't return to New York and Phyllis Adams will join him here and they'll be married. The last picture he did was "Strange Interlude." . . . George Yates, Hollywood writer, is doing a screen play around the life of Joseph Pulitzer. . . . On Arthur Freed's return from New York, he'll produce and compose all the songs for "Yolanda and the Thief." He has already done "Bambouca," which, I'm told, will replace the rhumba and the samba—he hopes.

No Yes-Men in the Place.

Joseph Kirk, Abbott and Costello's air writer, saw them on a set of "Here Come the Co-eds." Both Bud and Lou were lying on a cot getting a massage. "Go right ahead," they told Kirk, "and read what you've got." Joe proceeded to recite comedy lines, then noticed the masseurs were twisting Abbott and Costello's heads from side to side. "Say, what is this?" the puzzled writer asked. "Who don't like these gags—you boys or your handlers?" . . . Evelyn Keyes doesn't ride a horse in "A Thousand and One Nights"; she's allergic to the critters. So Harry Cohn gave her an elephant. . . . My old friend, Boy Webb, did the musical score for "Enchanted Cottage" 20 years ago, and now he's doing it again.

She's Smoking Hot.

Francis Sill Wickware, who did that amusing piece about me, is en route here to do a story on Lauren Bacall. She's the minx with the pussy willow face and poison points. That combination never has failed to make headlines. When I ran into her at Romanoff's, she said, "Hedda, remember the luncheon Elsa Maxwell gave me on my 18th birthday, and you said, 'Listen, girlie, don't ever let them put you in a sweet ingenue role. Hold out for a slitch, and you'll make history.' Well, I took your advice!" . . . While dining at the Brown Derby, there sat Jimmy Durante in the booth under his cartoon, which takes up two sections of wall space—one for his nose alone. And when I accused Jimmy of paying extra to sit there, he said, "It's things like that can ruin a guy!"

Opening lead: Ten of diamonds.

Successful highway robbery must be predicated on great speed. The victim must be given no warning. Occasionally a hand comes up which cannot be made by honest means and if crime is to pay the defense must be caught flat footed.

The bidding of today's hand was not ultra-scientific, but really not very far out of line. It is the kind of hand that does not lend itself very well to scientific treatment and blasting methods are usually more effective. South reasoned if North had any kind of spade suit at all he might readily hold his losers to only one trick. North's bidding, however, was far from sound. In the first place, he has not, technically, an opening bid and secondly, having opened a subminimum, it is very doubtful that he should have raised partner to three hearts. It is much better when found in this position to rebid a nonrebidable suit rather than to give partner any undue encouragement by increasing the contract with a very questionable hand.

A diamond was opened and ruffed by declarer. Apparently two spade tricks must be lost unless one of the defenders holds the king-queen of spades alone. If, however, one of the defenders has the king and another spade, the defense must be given a chance to slip. Declarer immediately led a low spade to the ace, before East was aware of what was going on. It was too early for him to realize that he must unblock with the king. Dummy's remaining diamond was ruffed out, followed by the ace, king, and another club, trump being extracted in the meantime. A spade lead now locks East in and whatever he leads, declarer discards the spade from his own hand and ruffs in dummy.

Notice that if declarer had stripped the hand first, East would have had time to collect his wits and would have realized what was coming, and would have played his king under the ace, but at trick two, it would have required clairvoyance to have foreseen the trap.

Rare Schweppe Art Treasures Placed on Sale

A dated paper weight weighing four ounces and costing $400 went on sale yesterday in the Ostrander Art galleries, 319 S. Wabash av., as part of the $750,000 art collection of the late Charles H. Schweppe, former investment banker who was found dead of a gunshot wound in his 100 room Lake Forest home Aug. 26, 1941.

The paper weight is known as a Baccarat. It was made in 1847 and represents a rare collector's piece, according to Edwin L. Ostrander, who is selling the Schweppe possessions taken from the latter's Lake Forest mansion and two town apartments in Chicago.

What makes the paper weight so valuable, Mr. Ostrander said, is the fact that it represents a lost art, known only to the artisans of Baccarat, France, who fashioned it. Under solid glass, by some means not handed down to present day glass blowers, he explained, the Baccarat craftsmen were able to insert miniature figurines of colored strip glass into the mold. Hence the $400 sales price, which is considerably under what the paper weight is worth, Mr. Ostrander contends.

Along with the paper weight and other art treasures now owned by Schweppe's daughter, Mrs. A. Watson Armour III., who inherited them, are 150 rare rugs, oil paintings, and a set of 18th and 19th century fans. Some of the latter were used by the ladies of the French court, Mr. Ostrander said. They are selling at from $60 to $200 each.

One of the fans is made of chicken skin. Others behind which coquettes of a bygone age may have flirted are fashioned of mother of pearl inlaid with gold. All are hand painted and are asserted to be very rare.

In addition to antique Bristol figurines made of porcelain and selling for $1,000 a pair, the collection also includes a 210 piece set of ruby Bohemian glass, which can be had for $1,000, and a Chinese hand carved ivory chess set table for $500.

Pieces for the chessmen are carved out of what are known as concentric balls. They are fashioned of balls within balls and all hewn from one solid piece of ivory, representing another early 19th century Chinese art, now lost.

Party Coats Are Straight, Short, and Gay

BY REA SEEGER.

Winter party coats, short and straight and made of either black, brown, or brilliantly colored woolens, are exciting gifts for any deb or subdeb. These are the new coats just unpacked for the holiday party season. All are uncompromisingly straight of silhouette, with collarless neck lines, simple straight sleeves, and a single deep pocket somewhere, either concealed or designed to show decoratively on one hip.

Glittering gold or silver braid, or designs with both, mark them as festive toppers for dance and evening dresses. The braid work is effective in all-over patterns around the yoke, the cuffs, and across the pockets. Linings are slippery and swank in blending or contrasting colored taffetas or satins. Some of the coats are made with the Chinese coolie outline, and with the side seams slit to about six inches deep. Others are the wrapover models with wide loose shoulders and easy-to-slide-into sleeves set in well below the actual shoulders.

Brilliant red, emerald green, old gold, black, some shocking pinks, and a few whites offer a wide choice, together with the all-purpose coats of dull black. Any one can be selected with the gold embroidery or without. The superlative model is the one of tangerine colored wool lined thruout with flat white rabbit skin. Without the glint of braid this easily doubles for a day time coat, so simple and unassuming are the details and silhouette.

Girl's Conduct Puts Her in Wrong Spot

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Q.—Several months ago I met a very interesting boy and have dated him up to two weeks ago. He was supposed to call me one night but didn't call until two days after that. Of course, I was angry. He is not the kind to do such things but his boy friend is, and I think he is being influenced by his friend. When he called I was sarcastic, I know, and told him to stop imitating his friend and to be himself. He asked why I was angry but I couldn't tell him because I was almost ready to burst into tears. Afterward I decided I was wrong for not telling him why I was angry, so I sent him a letter of explanation. I have seen him once since then, and altho he was fairly cold, I have reason to believe he still likes me and would like to be my friend again, but his stubbornness and pride stand in the way. . . . Is there anything I can do?

A.—Next time the boy calls, and if he does, forget your complaints against him, your sarcasm, and your bad temper. He was the one who perhaps owed an apology and you put yourself in a spot so you had to write! Once a gal tries to remake a fellow, she's a gone gosling; either you like him as he is, or he'll find a girl who does. He might have had a valid explanation; next time let him talk first.

Q.—I'm a G. I., just back from a year and a half overseas, and for me the girls at home can't be beat. But I was surprised to see how so many girls had changed during my absence. Girls who were sweet and feminine when I left have changed into hard looking persons who could out-smoke and out-drink most of the soldiers I know. They talk loudly and wear too much makeup; they seem to know all the answers and are short on discretion when they tell about their "adventures." Do these girls, without fellows for so long, think that the boys like them that way?

A.—You may have run into one or two off-the-cob characters who did talk too loudly and did wear too much makeup but the average gal is even more "sweet and lovely" than when the fellows went away. Loneliness and the realization of how wonderful it will be to have the fellows home again has had a mellowing effect. Check up again. You just met the wrong people.

Peggy Sargent Will Become Bride of Lt. Litten Saturday

BY JUDITH CASS.

SURPRISING news is contained in the announcement that Mr. and Mrs. Chester F. Sargent of Winnetka are making today of the engagement of their daughter, Peggy, to Lt. Chapin Litten of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Litten of Lake Bluff. Lt. Litten arrived at home last week after serving for three years in the South Pacific, and plans were made immediately for a wedding Saturday.

The ceremony will be a late afternoon one for the immediate families in the Sargent home, with a small reception following in the Indian Hill club. Miss Sargent will have her sister, Mrs. William H. Wieboldt, for her only attendant.

Miss Sargent, who was introduced to society at a tea several seasons ago, attended Smith college and is a member of the Chicago Junior league. She has been serving as a nurses' aid in the Evanston hospital. Lt. Chapin was graduated from the University of South Carolina and from the Yale law school. He will go back to sea duty at the end of his 30 day leave.

Here and There.

During Mrs. Jefferson Caffery's brief stay this week in the Drake hotel, her Chicago friends are having one of their last opportunities to say farewell to her before she leaves next month to fly to France. Mr. Caffery, the new United States ambassador to France, has been in Paris for some time, and his wife will join him there in January. Here with Mrs. Caffery is her brother, Daniel F. McCarthy, with whose family she will spend the holidays in Evansville, Ind. She plans to come up once more from Evansville just before leaving for France. Mrs. Caffery and Mr. McCarthy are children of the late Col. and Mrs. Daniel E. McCarthy of Chicago.

One of the nicest Christmas surprises the Vaughan Spauldings could have received is the return of one of their three sons, Capt. Vaughan Spaulding Jr., to spend the holidays with them. Capt. Spaulding is at home on a 30 day leave following his return from India, where his unit received the Presidential citation for its work in flying the "hump" from India to China. Ensign Charles F. Spaulding will celebrate Christmas in the South Pacific, and their younger brother, Edward, will receive his gifts at the army air base at Napier field, Ala.

At home on leave last week, while en route to a new assignment on the west coast, was Lt. Comdr. John P. Bent, who just has added a half stripe of gold braid to his navy uniform. He had been stationed at an eastern navy air base since he returned in June from more than a year's duty in the Atlantic.

Dr. and Mrs. Carl B. Davis Jr. [Marianne Hoover] became the parents of a third son last Friday in the Evanston hospital. The baby, who has been named James Dawson, has two brothers, Carl III. and Robert Phelps. The Ray P. Hoovers and Dr. Davis Sr. are the children's grandparents.

Mrs. Porter W. Maxwell is waiting for word from her husband.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Curto.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Curto's engagement to Oliver Germain Nystul of the naval reserve, son of Dr. and Mrs. Oliver A. Nystul of N. Hoyne av., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor J. Curto of N. Kenton av. Miss Curto and her fiancé were graduated from North Park academy in the same class, and she later attended Northwestern university and Rockford college. Mr. Nystul is enrolled in the Loyola university dental school as a navy V-12 student. The wedding is planned for late January.

Thru the Looking Glass

Do you notice as the years move along that the skin around your eyes isn't as smooth and dewy as it used to be? Frankly, we do. And we notice that the cold weather makes the skin there tighter and dryer than it ever is in summer. The uncharitable might even say that there were little wrinkles there; we prefer, firmly, that they be described as fine lines.

These "fine lines," tho, are the promise of wrinkles and we might as well face them. As there is no wrinkle-remover, so far as we know, we can only remind you that the only thing you can do when the lines begin to appear is to use the best eye cream you can lay your hands on.

One of the best we've discovered is a tremendously heavy cream; it's dark brown in color, and in texture it's not quite like other creams. It's a de luxe lubricant. That's one point in its favor. Another is that the lightest touch of this to the eyelids is flattering. You can and should wear this softening cream all day long. Your eyes will look better for the sheen and the suggestion of shadow it gives to the lids—and the delicate skin will be much the better for the lubrication. At night you should use it more generously and leave it on while you get your sleep.

There is an excellent reason for owning a jar of cream designed especially for the skin around the eyes. You just won't give your eyelids and the skin at the corners a little beauty treatment with your regular cream, but if you pay good money for eye cream you'll be far more dutiful about using it daily.

This eye cream is good investment, we think, for the gals who're getting on.

'Porgy' Is Back for Week's Run in Opera House

"PORGY AND BESS."

Return engagement of the musical by George Gershwin, based on the play "Porgy," by Du Bose and Dorothy Heyward, with lyrics by Mr. Heyward and Ira Gershwin. Staged by Robert Ross with settings by Herbert Andrews and costumes by Paul du Pont, and presented for one week at the Civic Opera house, starting Monday evening, Dec. 4, 1944.

THE CAST.

Porgy.....William Franklin
Bess.....Etta Moten
Sportin' Life.....Avon Long
Maria.....Georgette Harvey
Clara.....Harriet Jackson
Jake.....Edward Matthews
Crown.....Warren Coleman
Serena.....Alma Hubbard
The Eva Jessye Choir, and others.
Conductor.....Alexander Smallens

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Not that I think the drama critics ever could agree long enough to form a union, but if they could, the first by-law ought to be not to review the same show twice, much less three or four times. "Porgy and Bess" may be a classic, tho I am not 100 per cent in favor of that optimistic notion, but in its present form I can't seem to think of anything particularly helpful to say about it. To one who always liked the play better than the musical, and this despite the brilliance of George Gershwin's score that now and then blazes into unforgettable melody, the return engagement at the Civic Opera house is not cause for cheering in the streets. The theater is too large, and the production has run down. Much of the old magic has gone, tho it could be recaptured if the producers cared to get to work rehabilitating a valuable property.

The trouble with "Porgy and Bess" always has been that it is neither dramatic fish nor operatic fowl. If it is a play with music, you should hear every word of dialog, and you can't, in a theater seating 4,000 people. If it is to be called an opera, then something ought to be done about helpless singers asked to warble lines like "If you don't bury him tomorrow they'll give him to the medical students." This is no isolated example, but typical of what happens all thru "Porgy and Bess," and it makes awkward situations Gershwin undoubtedly would have corrected had he lived.

Naturally, the more crackling the production, the less you worry about its flaws, and the original Mamoulian "Porgy and Bess" was a fascinating show, tho those very flaws prevented it from being a great one. But now it is cut for touring, so that the old rocking chair rhythms have vanished, and several major roles are in less exciting hands. Mr. Franklin is a likeable but not a powerful Porgy, and Miss Moten's voice is almost gone, or she lost it with fright at the size of the big house. Even the Eva Jessye choir has slumped badly. That once electrifying scene at Serena's burying party was a shrill shadow of its old self.

But there is still that vivid score, with Alexander Smallens to give it good treatment, and there are the beloved songs that have gone into our folklore. There is Avon Long, with part of the edge gone, but still a febrile Sportin' Life of happy dust fame. There is Georgette Harvey solid as a rock, Warren Coleman still a good Crown, and there are the haunting cries of the strawberry woman [amusingly done by Catherine Ayers], the crab man and the other picturesque purveyors of Catfish Row. There is Harriett Johnson with a voice not quite equal to "Summertime," and Alma Hubbard to sing Serena with a sweetness not even distance can diminish. But it doesn't add up to "Porgy and Bess" as it used to be, which is the way I would rather remember it.

Help Children to Make Gifts, but Don't Be Obvious About It

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

When your son or daughter embarks upon a sea of Christmas gift making, you may need to [unostentatiously] have your finger in the pie. I say this because you want this to be, for them, an enjoyable adventure. But it won't be enjoyable if, because of their lack of experience, they become too ambitious, and tackle something beyond their skill to perform, or else is so big an undertaking that it becomes tedious and fatiguing before it is finished. When this happens they either experience a sense of failure, or they find themselves using all their time on one present, so that they can't do the others. With that bit of advice, let us go on and add to yesterday's suggestions of gifts children can make.

Most boys in school these days have classes in carpentry, even if they haven't learned to use tools at home. With this skill a boy, or a girl, can make welcome presents at small cost. A bird feeding station for mother, a sturdy, stained wooden wastepaper basket for father, a magazine rack, a box for a recipe file are only a few of the things that come to mind.

The little sister who sews can make big sister a sachet, either simple or quite elaborate. An easy one to make can be fashioned of two strips of satin ribbon, with cotton laid between to hold the perfumed powder, sewed along the edges and fringed at the ends.

Since Victorian furnishings are in full vogue again, a real pin cushion will fit the bedroom scene. It could be of plain silk, satin, or velvet, or lace and bow trimmed, if a fancy one is desired.

If father is overseas, his presents have already gone. But if he is at home, the children must think and work just as ardently over his gift as over mother's, altho sometimes he is harder to find a present for.

Jewish Group Aiding Children in Palestine to Have Conference

The midwest conference of Mizrachi women, to aid refugee children in Palestine, will open tomorrow in the Hamilton hotel. The chief speaker will be Mrs. Samuel Goldstein of Brooklyn, N. Y., who will review the World Jewish congress, recently held at Atlantic City, N. J., and the American Jewish conference, later held at Pittsburgh, Pa.

This regional meeting, according to Mrs. Abraham M. Danzig of Rockford, chairman of the midwest region, will rally in the interest of the children's village and farm school at Raanana, Palestine, which is to accommodate 500 children. This project is the latest sponsored by the religious Zionist group in the United States and involves a $500,000 outlay.

Food Lockers Promise Feasts After the War

Fresh strawberry shortcake in December, tenderized fried chicken in January, and fresh pumpkin pie in June will be commonplace items on most American dining tables soon after the war.

That was the prospect outlined by Vaughn R. Walker, Watseka, president of the Illinois Food Locker association, which met yesterday in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

"The average American family, both in the city and in rural areas," he said, "will have a freezing unit either in the home or in a community locker. About 185 manufacturers will produce equipment for the post-war food freezing industry."

Mr. Walker said that freezing will replace home canning to a great extent because the quality and vitamin content of frozen foods is superior to that of canned products. He indicated that home units will sell for around $200 for a unit of four cubic feet, $250 for a six cubic foot unit, and $475 for a freezer of 15 cubic feet.

"Home units to be manufactured after the war will contain racks for such items as pies, cakes, and other pastries," Mr. Walker said. "Thus when pumpkins are cheap in the fall a housewife will be able to make six to 12 pumpkin pies, complete except for baking, and store them in the pans in her home freezer. Then when she wants a pumpkin pie she merely will take a pan from the rack, hold it at room temperature until it is defrosted, then put it in the oven for baking."

Mr. Walker also said the freezing industry will equalize the quality of foods available to families in every section of the country. California, which now gets little high quality meat, will have beef cuts equal to that served in this area because the supply will be shipped frozen from the middle western packing plants.

He explained that home freezing units will be adjuncts, not competitors, of the community lockers. The large manufacturers already are asking the locker operators to represent them in selling and servicing home units.

He also indicated that smaller communities will benefit by large scale coöperative buying of fresh vegetables and fruits as they come into the market from distant production areas.

John Ranger did not want to take his daughter with him, but she insisted so strongly on it that he gave in.

Chandler Newman was a thin colorless individual, pale and narrow chested. He was not mentally equipped to stand up to as ruthless a villain as Jug Packard. But he had in him a clean core of honesty. He had broken with Packard because he would not have anything to do with so flagrant a steal as his employer was putting across on the widow of the man who had befriended him. Knowing Packard, he was going to do nothing that would invite his anger. He had the obstinacy of a weak man, and Ranger faced that barrier at once when he mentioned why he had come.

"Nothing to say," the bookkeeper insisted.

Not until Sandra saw that her father was going to fail did she have any part in the talk. They were sitting in a small parlor with their host and his wife. Mrs. Newman was younger than her husband, plump, with bright beady eyes and quick birdlike motions.

"I want to tell you something, Mr. Newman," Sandra began. "You've heard about the raid of the Lopez gang not long ago. Maybe you don't know that four of the ruffians captured me and my young brother. One of them wounded him and another dragged me from a buggy to his horse. Just then a man topped a rise in the road and saw us. He came at a gallop, slammed one of the bandits down with the barrel of his rifle, shot another dead, and drove the others away."

"We read something about it," Mrs. Newman said, her shining eyes fixed on this eager lovely girl.

"That man was Bob Webb," Sandra explained. "So you see we have to save him."

Mary Newman saw more than that. This golden girl was in love with the escaped convict. "Yes," she agreed. "If you can."

"Bob Webb did not kill Giles Lemmon. He says so, and we are sure he is telling the truth. It suited Jug Packard to have him sent to prison, and he fixed the testimony so that the boy was convicted."

Mrs. Newman looked at her husband. "You've always thought that, Chan."

"You keep out of this, Mary," Newman snapped.

"But why?" Sandra cried. "If he isn't guilty we ought to find out and try to get him freed. We came to you to find out something you do know. You kept the books for the Johnny B. All the time Packard was engineering his steal of the mine from Mrs. Webb you were right there. You must know how he did it. Was he robbing her of the ore? He closed down for two years to make the stock worth nothing. Had he struck a rich vein before he did that?"

Mrs. Newman did not speak, but she looked steadily at her husband.

"All that is a closed book," the man blurted out. He knew that his wife had never been wholly satisfied at his silence, but she had persuaded herself that to speak would do no good. "No use trying to open it. Jug has the mine now, and nobody can do a thing about it."

"Bob Webb doesn't think so," Ranger answered. "It is the one chance he has of saving what is left of his life. For Heaven's sake, speak out if you have any proof of Packard's chicanery."

"There was a fire at the mine," Newman said. "The books were burned."

"Go on, Chan," his wife insisted. "It wouldn't do Webb any good for me to speak, but one of Jug's gunmen would get me sure."

"You're overestimating Packard's power," Ranger told him. "I've been threatened several times in my life, once by a notorious killer and another time by a bad outlaw gang. I'm here. They have gone."

"This is different. I'm no gunfighter. You are an outdoor man, used to weapons, and known to be game. And you are a prominent citizen, with a bunch of cowboys back of you, whereas I am nobody."

"Couldn't we get protection for Mr. Newman?" Sandra asked her father.

"If he tells his story to the district attorney and swears to it before a notary it would not do Packard any good to hurt him," the cattleman said. "In fact it would greatly prejudice his chances in court."

"That would do me a lot of good if I was dead," Newman retorted.

Sandra realized that the man would have to be given some assurance of safety. A plan jumped to her mind that might be feasible.

"You have been talking about getting a bookkeeper to bring your books down to date and to clean up a lot of back correspondence," the girl suggested. "Maybe Mr. Compton would give Mr. Newman a leave of absence for three or four months to come to the ranch. He and Mrs. Newman could live in our old abode house. It's very comfortable. They would be quite safe there."

"I could certainly use you to advantage," Ranger admitted, speaking to the clerk. "You could stay with us until this whole thing is settled one way or another."

"When I saw what Packard was doing I wrote an unsigned letter to Mrs. Webb," Newman said. "As soon as I could do it I gave up my job at the Johnny B. Packard did not want me to leave. He made it plain that if I did any talking he would settle with me. Twice since I left him he has sent for me to come to his house here. Each time he gave me a quarter of beef, but I felt the threat back of his interest in me."

"His threats can't harm you if you are at the Circle-JR," Ranger promised.

Newman was nervous, but he made a start in his story at last. "I discovered he had struck a rich vein when I saw by chance two sets of smelter returns from the same shipment. One was very rich; the other didn't pay the expenses of smelting. Packard must have given the manager of the smelter a percentage to help him in his crookedness. My idea is that before he shut down he made enough to buy up the stock when it went off to a low price. I kept copies of the duplicate returns and have them yet."

In answer to questions Newman gave the name of the smelter. The manager had been discharged a year later for robbing the company. Newman had heard he was now living in Phoenix.

"Some one else at the smelter must have known what was going on," Ranger hazarded. "There must have been at least one bookkeeper in with the superintendent to falsify the returns."

Newman agreed that must have been the case.

"If we can find out who it was we may be able to bring pressure on him to talk," the ranchman said.

Ligonier, Ind., Host to Illinois Executive.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ligonier, Ind., Dec. 4.—For the first time since he was elected governor of Illinois, Dwight H. Green came back to his old home town tonight to urge that Ligonier's new Rotary club help the local service men find their post-war place in civilian life.

The governor spoke from experience. Old neighbors in the audience recalled that Green enlisted in the first World war in 1917 and was sent to the Pacific coast as an air corps instructor.

Old friends pushed up thru the crowded high school auditorium to shake the governor's hand, to tell how they had watched him play football, baseball, and basketball at Ligonier High school, to remind him of incidents when he was an errand boy in the Main st. bakery, and to reminisce about the banking and live stock business conducted here by his father and uncles.

In 1915, when he was 18, Green left Ligonier to attend Wabash college. Since then he has returned for comparatively short visits. In the summer of 1916 he drove a truck for an Indianapolis lumber yard. The next year he enlisted. After the 1918 armistice, he attended Stanford university and the University of Chicago.

Ligonier [population 2,178] itself has changed in many ways since the governor went to war in 1917. The two buggy factories have vanished, but other industries are here. The high school building has been expanded. Strangers live in the house where he was born. Of the 19 charter members of Ligonier's Rotary club, only four knew the governor as a boy.

Urges Aid to Vets.

Lauded by Governor-elect Ralph F. Gates of Indiana and other speakers as Ligonier's favorite son, Green devoted most of his charter night speech to wishing that the newly formed Rotary club give an equally warm welcome to soldiers and sailors after the war.

"The post-war planning in which they are most vitally interested is in the hands of civic and business leaders like yourselves," he said.

"Rotary's work in the field of vocational guidance will be a particularly valuable asset in Ligonier in the post-war period when hundreds of young men and women are returning from the armed services," Green said.

Green recounted how in Illinois he has established in every county a veterans' service officer to help discharged soldiers and sailors solve their individual problems.

"If I were to make one suggestion to this young organization, it would be that, in coöperation with the veterans' organization and any state program which Governor Elect Gates may inaugurate, you dedicate yourselves to helping the boys who come back to Ligonier to bridge the gap to the return to civilian life.

"You can render them real service in helping them avail themselves of their rights under federal laws which they may not fully understand, but you can render an even greater service to them by extending to them, day in and day out, the same friendly welcome you have given me tonight."

Stale bread need never be wasted. There are a hundred and one good uses for bread crumbs, some of them so tempting that they're worth toasting fresh bread for.

When you have an accumulation of "heels," dry bread, and toast, put it in a pan and dry it thoroly in the oven, then crush to fine crumbs. Keep these crumbs in a covered fruit jar to use for coating croquettes, chops, patties, and for topping casseroles. In addition, you can use such crumbs in wonderful cookies like these. They won't linger long in your cookie jar because they're unusually good.

Crumb Cookies.

½ cup margarine or other fat
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups crushed toasted bread crumbs
½ cup water
1 cup mixed dates, raisins and nuts

Cream shortening and sugar thoroly. Beat in egg and vanilla. Sift flour, soda, and salt, and add with crumbs to creamed mixture, alternately with water. Add fruit and nuts. Drop from a spoon onto greased cookie sheets and bake at 375 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes.

There are excellent bread puddings and betties which help to use bread crumbs of larger size. Coffee bread pudding is a little different from the usual plain or fruited kind.

Coffee Bread Pudding.

[Serves six.]

2 cups coarse stale bread crumbs
1 quart scalded milk
¼ cup ground coffee
¾ cup sugar
½ cup melted margarine
2 slightly beaten eggs
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup raisins or chopped nuts

Add coffee to milk as it scalds, then strain from grounds [or use half milk and half strong brewed coffee]. Pour over bread crumbs, cool slightly, and add sugar and other ingredients. Stir together lightly and bake in greased casserole at 325 degrees for an hour. Serve hot with vanilla, orange, or burnt sugar sauce.

Mrs. Henry G., Creston, Ia.—To make an inexpensive broom last longer, I dip it in a pail of hot water before using and immediately afterwards. I have been told on good authority this makes even a cheap broom a flexible—and longer lasting—household tool.

Mrs. Ed. T., Chicago — To do a good job of waxing a floor with paste or liquid wax, spread the wax as thin as possible. If you put on too much you will find that it will stay soft underneath and that the surface will shear, making your floors slippery.

To Relieve Bad Cough, Mix This Recipe, at Home

Big Saving. No Cooking. So Easy.

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe. It gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money, and you'll find it truly wonderful.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you've never seen anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Mr. Crowder's Pianistic Way Is Scholarly

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Louis Crowder, chairman of the piano department of Northwestern university school of music, gave his first recital in Kimball hall last night.

Mr. Crowder's approach to music is marked by scholarliness, clarity of thought, and intimacy of feeling. He is an exceedingly capable pianist with an unfaltering technic that obeys his every dictate but falls short of brilliance. Partly because of temperament and partly because of wisdom he rarely strives for brilliance. In all that we heard of his program only the finale of Chopin's B minor Sonata made virtuosic demands, and here, if his fingers did not flash they at least flew with well controled speed.

He is at his best in introspective music, and for that reason he is one of the few pianists who could revive Brahms' touching tribute to Schumann, the Variations on a theme by that composer, and hold an audience's interest. Brahms had no thought of the public when he penned this work. It was a labor of love, a probing of the depths of sadness for his afflicted friend, and it was in such a mood that Mr. Crowder revealed its many beauties.

Mozart's C minor Fantasie [Köchel 396] was similarly a daring excursion for the pianist, but a worthwhile one for understanding ears. Seven Scarlatti sonatas, tho not strongly differentiated, were cast in a small but minutely detailed frame and revealed a keen musical intelligence at work.

The first part of the Chopin sonata was warm in feeling, but suffered in projection thru the pianist's underestimation of the lyrical possibilities of his instrument. A true singing tone seems to have departed from the piano playing world with Paderewski, Gabrilowitsch, and Rachmaninoff.

BRESNAHAN OF CATCHING FAME DIES IN TOLEDO

Served as Manager of Cubs in 1915.

Toledo, O., Dec. 4 (AP).—The duke of Tralee, one of baseball's most colorful figures, is dead. Roger Bresnahan, who came out of his native Tralee, Ireland, to serve organized baseball for a third of a century as star catcher, manager, coach, and owner, died of a heart attack in his home today. He was 64.

A former receiver and No. 1 fan of Christy Mathewson, Bresnahan was the first string catcher for the New York Giants from 1902 to 1908, playing in the 1904 and 1905 world series.

Retired from Game in '31.

He retired from baseball in 1931, ending a 35 year career that started as a catcher for Lima in the Ohio State league in 1896. He saw action as a catcher—and sometimes pitcher and outfielder — for six teams in four leagues, playing manager of two major league teams, and player-manager, and owner of the Toledo Mudhens.

Bresnahan was credited with inventing and making first use of catcher's shinguards, an appurtenance he introduced in 1907.

Served as Cub Manager.

From Lima, Bresnahan moved to Chicago in the National league in 1900. He helped blaze the trail into the then embryo American league by joining the Baltimore Orioles the following year, and in 1902, moved back to the national circuit in company with John McGraw, Joe McGinnity, and others.

Bresnahan was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1908 for Pitcher Bugs Raymond, Outfielder John [Red] Murray, and Catcher George Schlei, and served as playing manager of the team in 1909 thru 1912. The Chicago Cubs bought his contract in 1913, and after playing there in 1914 he became playing manager in 1915.

Bought Mudhens in 1916.

He went to the minors in 1916, when he bought the Toledo Mudhens, and for three years served the American association team as player-manager, and owner. He retired from behind the bat in 1918.

He returned to the Giants as coach in 1925 for three years, and was coach for the Detroit Tigers in 1930 and 1931.

32 Complete Training for C. Y. O. Bouts

BY FRANK MASTRO.

The stage is set for the finals of the 14th Catholic Youth organization amateur boxing tournament in Ashland auditorium tomorrow night.

The 32 boxers, who will meet for the 16 C. Y. O. titles—eight open and eight novice—yesterday finished boxing drills without suffering a single injury, according to Dick Fitzpatrick, C. Y. O. trainer.

Among the first to appear for their final workouts in C. Y. O. center gymnasium were Joe Lindsay, sole defending champion, and Jesse James, Holy Family open light heavyweight.

Matula Promises Action.

The stocky Lindsay [he is 5 feet 8 inches tall] stepped around like a lightweight despite his 197 pounds. Joe, who will be defending his 1943 heavyweight championship against John Matula, indicated his rival from St. Michael will have a hard fight on his hands.

James has put on 35 pounds and increased his height accordingly since he first competed in a C. Y. O. tournament as a novice welterweight in 1939.

Curtis McDaniel, James' foe of tomorrow, will not have a soft touch, however. Curtis who lives at 6146 Evans av., will be trying for his third open class medal. He already holds the 1937 and 1941 middleweight titles.

One cloud marred the training period. That was the death last Thursday of Philip Boyd, father of Jackie, flyweight open finalist. Funeral services will be held this morning in Notre Dame church, Sibley st. and W. Flournoy st.

Jackie Will Carry on.

The 17 year old Jackie said he will go thru with his championship bout with Al Sanchez of St. Rose of Lima parish "because my father wanted me to."

There's still time to get tickets for tomorrow's spectacle, Lou Radzienda, C. Y. O. boxing director, announced last night. Prices are $1.20, $2.40, $3.60, and $10. Reservations may be made by calling Wabash 1114.

GRIMM CARRIES 16 PITCHERS TO TRADING WELL

At Least That Is Their Label.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

With a fancy stock of 41 assorted players, Charley Grimm, the boss of the Cubs, headed east last evening for baseball's annual ivory markets, scheduled for Buffalo this week and for New York a week hence.

Also going in the same direction and for the same purpose was James Dykes of the seventh place White Sox, who isn't at all hopeful, but will pick up ivory in any shape or form if he finds it lying loose.

Grimm, with his bulky stock that is bound to make him an attraction for other guys with trading ideas, wants pitchers, and anybody with that variety of talent will be granted the privilege of looking over his wares.

16 Pitchers—Or Are They?

With 16 pitchers already on his list, the conclusion might be that he has more than enough. The quantity is there, but it is quality that the Cub manager is thinking about. Quite a few of the 16 are minor leaguers, hence of unknown worth. And even the mound squad remaining from last season isn't particularly comforting, based on 1944 performances. Only three—Claude Passeau, Bob Chipman, and Hank Wyse—got beyond the 10 victories mark, altho there might have been another member of this select set if Ed Hanyzewski, who is counting on doing a comeback, hadn't injured his arm in mid-May.

One gent the Cubs might be able to acquire if they can devise a suitable proposition for the Boston Braves is Al Javery, who still is regarded an able workman, despite his backslide last season.

May Train in Terre Haute.

Dykes spent part of yesterday in Terre Haute, Ind., and upon his return admitted he thought he had found a suitable spring camp to take the place of French Lick, which his boys shared with the Cubs the last two springs. Dykes was satisfied with the park, the clubhouse accommodations, and the hotel, but the official selection will hang fire until a formal agreement is signed.

NELSON TAKES SAN FRANCISCO OPEN WITH 281

Beats Jim Ferrier by One Stroke.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 4 (AP).—Byron Nelson jumped back into his role of "mechanical man of golf" today to win the 72 hole San Francisco Open tournament with a 281 that nosed out Sgt. Jim Ferrier of Camp Roberts, Cal., formerly pro at Elmhurst, Ill., by a single stroke.

Ferrier, leader at the half way mark, after the third round, and at the 63d hole today, faltered on the final nine. It was only a momentary slip, but enough for the straight shooting rival who matched him in a man to man battle, the two being in the same threesome.

Nelson Takes Lead at 16th.

Two shots behind when Ferrier chalked up his third successive eagle 3 on the 12th hole, Nelson gained back one at the 13th and squared the match on the 15th. He jumped into the lead for the first time in the tournament at the 16th where Ferrier lost two strokes after driving out of bounds.

Ferrier picked up one at the 17th and the final hole was halved to give Nelson the major prize of the San Francisco tournament for the second straight year. Nelson, leading money winner of the year, added $2,666 in war bonds, making his total for 1944 more than $43,000.

Nelson, winning his ninth tournament since he led the field here a year ago, put together rounds of 72—71—69—69—281. Sgt. Ferrier toured the Harding Park, par 72 course, four times in 75—66—70—71—282. His second round 66, sending him into the lead, was the lowest of the tourney and equaled the competitive course record.

Plays Ball Out of Tree.

Ferrier provided the most spectacular moments of the four day event. He had to climb a big tree on the second fairway today to bat his ball out of the branches with a putter.

He had pushed his drive to the right and the ball stuck up in the tree, some 30 feet from the ground. He scrambled up the trunk, located the ball, then waited while an official climbed up with the putter. While the gallery of several thousand fans waited tensely, Ferrier lunged at the ball and knocked it to the ground. He took a 6 to Nelson's par 4, but still held a one stroke advantage over the latter. The leaders' cards:

Eastern Pro Ending Takes the Spotlight

BY EDWARD PRELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 4.—One room this afternoon housed the three fellows whose teams are involved in the last ditch battle for the National Football league's eastern division championship. There were many other important fellows, too, at the New York sports writers' weekly luncheon, such as Comdr. Oscar Hagberg, the Navy coach, and 300 pound Herman Hickman, line coach of the Army eleven which last week whipped the Middies.

But they gave the floor first and foremost to the professional coaches, Steve Owen of the Giants, Earle [Greasy] Neale of the Eagles, and Dud De Groot of the Redskins. Of the trio, Dud seemed the happier, and he had less reason to be, because his role in Sunday's windups appears to be that of a blocker for Neale and the once-beaten Eagles.

Redskins Can Help a Lot.

Neale made it clear that he didn't like the thought of depending upon some one else to help him win the title, but that he would be much obliged if the Redskins whip the Giants in Washington Sunday. If this happens, the Eagles will need only a tie with the Cleveland Rams to qualify for the league play-off against the Green Bay Packers, western champions, on Dec. 17.

If the Redskins lick the Giants it will be largely up to Sammy Baugh, who at last seems to have found the secret of passing from the T formation. Yet Neale unhesitantly ranked the Bears' Sid Luckman ahead of Baugh, which may have been a round about bid to get Sammy worked up and in a frame of mind to do a super job against the Giants.

Coach Owen cautiously admitted the condition of the Polo Grounds Sunday, with the turf half frozen, worked as a handicap to his defenders against Baugh's sharp passes. The inference was that if Griffith stadium has normal terrain Sunday, the Giants' chances for victory will be better than under conditions prevailing in last Sunday's game.

Grow Stronger with Age.

"That Bill Paschal is something," said Washington's De Groot. "He showed us a lot of power. I thought we played our best game of the season."

The Redskins now have only an outside chance, and even this would involve a playoff with the Giants. They must beat New York while the Eagles are losing to the Rams. This circumstance would result in a deadlock with the Giants for the Eastern title and necessitate an extra game in Washington on Dec. 17. The winner then would meet the Packers on Dec. 24, which would be a two-day gain on 1943 when the Bears defeated the Redskins the day after Christmas for the league crown.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Joseph Anthony Sinke, the 36 year old Chicago mailman who whiles away his off moments knocking over championship tenpins, yesterday refused to budge from his leadership in the preliminaries of the fourth annual All-Star bowling tournament, now in progress at the Auditorium service men's center under the sponsorship of Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

Going into today's final six game bracket of the 24 preview chores, Joseph found himself with a comfortable lead of 35 pins as the field of 120 national stars headed into the session which today will reduce itself to tomorrow's 48 semi-finalists. Joe allowed he's the sort of postman that you can't take mail away from, nor bowling pins. He wasn't even disturbed by the fact that he was paired with Frank Benkovic, the personable Milwaukee stylist who is liable to fire a 300 when you aren't looking. Frank wasn't up to any such perfection yesterday, but did come along with an 1,197 which gave him an 18 game aggregate of 3,532.

Soldier in Second Spot.

Sinke stood up under a late barrage by Benkovic in their unscheduled duel to emerge with a three-quarters score of 3,677, or 35 pins up on a young G. I. who has commanded attention in the event since he made his All-Star debut in the early hours of the Sabbath. That would be Corp. Johnny Supple, the 130 pound, 5 foot 11 inch ex-Chicagoan, who preceded Sinke's third round of 1,232 pins with a 1,259, high six game set of the tournament.

Back of Sinke, who posted games of 211, 204, 208, 216, 188, 205, and Corp. Supple, with a bracket of 225, 238, 192, 220, 172, 212, were three Detroit stars, John Crimmins, Therman Gibson, and Fred Bujack. The stout hearted Crimmins, who is well remembered for his work in the challenge match of the 1942 All-Star event, came home with 3,607, against Gibson's 3,587, and Bujack's 3,567.

Both Home Town Boys.

Sinke and Supple both have local loyalists following them, and with reason. Joe, of course, is one of the smartest hands on the famed Chicago Meister Braus who just about cleaned up everything there was in the way of team championships last season. He entered the current campaign with a lifetime average of 202.

Supple, 27, and author of 50 consecutive errorless frames in his first series, is making the tournament a kind of homecoming. Slim Johnny is a native Chicagoan who attended Calumet High school and Lewis Institute of Technology before going into the chemistry field. He formerly competed in the South End Traveling league and has been in the army for 17 months.

End Preliminaries Today.

Today beginning at 9 a. m. and extending thru midnight, the field of 120 stars from every corner of the nation will go to work on their last preliminary stretch of six games. The 48 high men for these 24 preview assignments will go into tomorrow's semi-finals, which are a sort of double header. They will bowl 12 games, six in the afternoon and six in the evening.

The top 11 for the 36 game attack on total pins will then enter the final round robin battle, opening on Thursday.

The 11 leaders of the five day preliminary schedule, of whom the first two will be awarded special prizes of $200 and $100, will join with a

New Duck Bulletin Is Ready

BY BOB BECKER.

A new bulletin on duck flights and the annual kill in Illinois, published by the Illinois Natural History survey, is ready for distribution to hunters, conservationists, and other persons requesting it, according to a recent announcement by Dr. T. H. Frison, chief of the survey.

The title is "Duck Populations and Kill: An Evaluation of Some Waterfowl Regulations in Illinois." It was written by Frank C. Bellrose Jr., assistant game technican of the organization. Any sportsman who wants a copy of this up to date study of how and when the ducks migrate into this state and the effect of recent laws on the take of various species may write the Illinois Natural History survey in Urbana, Ill. The booklet is being distributed without charge.

This bulletin is the result of five years of study by Bellrose. Each fall he follows the flight of ducks into this state and checks the kills at scores of shooting spots. From this material he has analyzed the effect of each important federal regulation on duck hunting. The migration time of common Illinois ducks is shown in graphic form in the bulletins, which contain many tables, graphs, and other illustrations. Several photographs of duck hunting practices along the Illinois river which are used in the bulletin were supplied by this writer.

One of the interesting points brought out is that between 1938 and 1942 mallards and blacks ducks were the least vulnerable to the hunter's shotgun, followed by bluebills, canvasbacks, ruddy ducks, pintails, widgeon, and other puddler ducks. Recent open seasons in Illinois have put the greatest shooting pressure on mallards and diving ducks while giving the greatest protection to blue winged teal.

Besides this bulletin, other waterfowl publications are available without cost to hunters, including "Waterfowl Hunting in Illinois" and "Preferential Rating of Duck Food Plants," all issued by the survey.

Sinke Retains Top Place in All-Star Meet

quintet of bowlers who were automatically seeded into the finals off of their work in the 1943 event. These five are Paul Krumske of Chicago's Meister Braus, new champion after defeating Ned Day, the 1943 winner, in a recent challenge duel; Day; Rudy Pugel of Milwaukee; Buddy Bomar of Chicago, and Connie Schwoegler of Madison, Wis. who won the championship two years ago.

All Contenders Will Meet.

The finals on Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday will consist of 16 four game match blocks, with each man meeting all of his rivals once, up to the decisive position round, last of the tournament. In this, which will wind up the show on Sunday evening, the leader on points will meet the second scorer in the point standings, the third, the fourth, etc.

The Petersen point system will govern the scoring in the round robin finals. The system credits a bowler with one point for each 50 pins he topples and one point for each game he wins within a series. In the event a game is tied, each bowler in the match is given half a point, the equivalent of 25 pins. A bowler also may pick up an additional point if he wins the lesser number of games within a four game block, but still outscores his opponent in total pins.

RAISE QUESTION OF 'OBLIGATION' TO SUPPLY JOBS

Quotas for Industry Lack Realism.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Some interesting questions are raised by current discussions of post-war job prospects. Labor leaders and some business men speak of the "obligation" of industry to furnish "full employment" after the war.

Full employment is not defined exactly in most of the discussions, but President Roosevelt in his pre-election campaign speech in Chicago fixed the goal at 60 million jobs.

Said the President: "To assure the full realization of the right to a useful and remunerative employment, an adequate program must provide America with close to 60 million productive jobs."

Murray Delivers Ultimatum.

Testifying last spring before a senate committee, CIO President Philip Murray said:

"We propose that the responsibility shall be placed where it belongs. If industry fails, then the American people will give expression to their protest. Let industrialists either deliver the goods with America's gigantic war born productive enterprise or be prepared to give others a chance to use it."

Speaking in New York last month A. D. Whiteside, president of Dun & Bradstreet, said that business would have three to five years after the war to provide a required 57 million jobs. Otherwise, he said, one cannot expect "our present form of government to continue."

The committee for economic development and other business groups have spoken in a similar vein.

Sloan Seeks Realism.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors corporation, has attempted to inject a little realism into the discussion of jobs. Others, including the National City Bank of New York, also are trying to bring the discussion down to earth.

Sloan said there is nothing mysterious about jobs. A corporation or an individual business man doesn't hire the services of workers merely to provide jobs for them. The object is to provide a product or service for which there is a demand.

If the product or service can be sold at a price which leaves a margin of profit the result is continued employment of the workers. If the operation is consistently unprofitable the employer has no alternative but to discontinue business. If the employer is an individual he then becomes a jobseeker himself.

Industry Employs 23 Per Cent.

Sloan recalled that before the war only 23 per cent of the persons employed in the United States were engaged in manufacturing. The 1940 census listed 46,166,000 persons employed of whom 10,573,000 were in manufacturing. About the same number were employed in agriculture. The remainder were self-employed or engaged in furnishing services like banking, publishing, and insurance.

Using the same statistics, the National City bank emphasized that neither "industry" nor "business" can accept the responsibility for full employment.

"The decisions which govern business are not the decisions of a single commander, but of millions of individuals, animated by an infinite number and variety of influences," the bank said.

"Cannot Guarantee Jobs."

"They cannot guarantee jobs irrespective of the costs of what they buy and the prices they must ask for their products; irrespective of consumer preferences, or irrespective of government policies which may affect their costs and profits and stimulate or depress the spirit of expansion and enterprise."

It is dangerously frivolous, the bank suggested, to assert that business has the obligation to employ a certain number of persons or to set the employment goal at an excessively high figure. Both business and the public will be misled by such assertions, it warned.

A clear realization of the factors that make for employment is necessary, the bank insisted, to achieve a high level of useful and self-supporting jobs. The responsibility rests on every one to recognize the importance of the terms of employment, the necessity for investment, and the psychological factors involved.

An effort now is being made to show that jobs are more than an "obligation of industry," and that work cannot be created simply by setting a goal in terms of numbers of jobs.

TIME LOST IN STRIKES

Oliphant Firm in Same Office for 35 Years

Today will complete 35 years during which James H. Oliphant & Co. has conducted its brokerage business in the same offices on the seventh floor of the Rookery building, La Salle and Adams sts. The first stock market transactions were made thru the offices on Dec. 6, 1909. This record for length of time in the same quarters is unique among Chicago brokerage houses which are members of the New York Stock exchange, John J. Bryant Jr., who established the Chicago Oliphant organization, said yesterday. He has been a partner since 1916.

"Only seven New York Stock exchange houses, including our own, have been in business under the same firm name since or prior to 1909," he said. "We alone, however, are today operating in the same location. All the others have moved their quarters from time to time. It is noteworthy also that we were the first stock exchange firm to take offices in Chicago above the ground floor."

The six other houses referred to by Bryant and the years in which their Chicago offices were established are: Alfred L. Baker & Co., 1892; Shearson, Hammill & Co., 1902; Clement, Curtis & Co., 1906; Lamson Brothers & Co., 1904; Hulburd, Warren & Chandler, 1905; and Rothschild & Co., 1908.

Five of Bryant's office associates have been part of his organization 17 to 29 years. They are William McKenna, a partner; E. R. Klose, office manager; William J. O'Brien, head margin clerk; John A. Ganey, head bookkeeper; and S. C. Runacres, assistant cashier.

U.S. MANUFACTURERS APPROVE ARMY'S USE OF ARMS THEY MAKE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Dec. 4.—Six American industrialists today expressed satisfaction over the efficiency and resourcefulness of the United States army in getting to the front the weapons their plants produce back home and over the way these war tools were employed at the front.

But all emphasized the primary message they were taking back to the United States industry, workers, and people was: The war is far from over and this is no time to think of returning to peace time jobs.

The six industrialists who have been observing at the invitation of the army service forces American equipment in action included Clarence G. Stoll, president of Western Electric company. He said a big lesson of this front which has to be learned in the Pacific is that of transportation. United States army policy of reporting only victories and giving no clew to losses was blamed by the industrialists for over-optimism in the United States.

CONFER ON WFA 1945 SUGAR BEET ACREAGE PLANS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Sugar beet growers and officials of processing companies were conferring tonight on how far they can go toward fulfilling the government's 1945 planting program.

The war food administration has called on the industry to plant 951,000 acres, 300,000 more than were harvested in 1943. Support prices are expected to assure growers an average price of about $12.50 a ton, the same as in 1943 and about $3 a ton above the 1942 return.

Details of the program were outlined at a closed meeting by Earl Wilson, director of the sugar section of the Commodity Credit corporation. Representatives of growers from sugar producing states, including Michigan, and officials of virtually every beet processing company in the country attended.

Blazic had no comment last night except that he had not received Kotin's message yet.

The Ajax employes walked out last Thursday in a protest over WLB refusal to approve a wage increase on which the company and union agreed. The company manufactures railway supplies for the army and for lend-lease.

Tool Grinders Remain Out.

Forty-one tool grinders remained on strike for the fourth day at the Dodge Chicago plant, manufacturer of engines for B-29 Super Fortresses. The strike has not hampered production seriously, however, because it is limited to one shift. It was called over dismissal of one employe accused of loafing. Originally 51 men walked out, but 10 returned to work yesterday.

Production of bomb carriages and loaders was resumed at the Athey Truss Wheel company, 5631 W. 65th st., strike bound for a week.

The Revere company is engaged in war production at its plants at 2200 Natchez av. and 6630 Fullerton av.

ASKS SEC DENIAL OF PROGRAM BY ILLINOIS POWER

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 4 (AP).—The North American company today asked the securities and exchange commission to dismiss Illinois Power company's application for approval of Illinois' plan for the liquidation and dissolution of its parent, North American Light and Power company.

North American, top holding company of the system, said that the public utilities holding company act did not authorize the submission of a plan by a subsidiary for its parent "against the will of the parent, or by a self-asserted creditor for its debtor."

"Illinois is clearly filing the plan of a self-asserted creditor whose claim is still in dispute before the commission and the courts," North American said.

STOCKS SWIRL HIGHER IN WIDE, HEAVY TRADING

Rails Drive to New 7 Year Peaks.

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Led by rails, steels, and selected industrials, the stock market registered many seven year highs today. Gains ranged to more than 2 points in one of the largest and broadest turnovers of the last six months.

The apparent slowing of the European war accentuated Prime Minister Churchill's warning of a possibly longer war and revived demand for armament issues because of lessening apprehension over reconversion problems. Expectation of more year end dividends also was helpful.

Some leaders failed to make headway, however, as Wall street skepticism and December tax adjustments were handicaps.

Gains Far in Majority.

Rising prices ruled at the start in broad and lively dealings. Some gains were trimmed, but advances remained far in the majority.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.3 at 56.1, where it was only 0.3 under the highest level since 1937, established in July. The rail composite advanced 0.7 to 31.2, another new peak since December, 1937. Of 946 issues traded, 580 were up, 168 down, and 198 unchanged. Transfers of 1,427,780 shares compared with 924,880 Friday and were the third largest since July 17.

Helping sentiment to some extent was the sale of a stock exchange membership for $65,000, up $5,000 from the preceding transaction.

Among stock reaching new highs were Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern railway, Chesapeake and Ohio, Great Northern, Union Pacific, American Telephone, and United States Realty.

RAIL BONDS AT NEW TOPS.

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—A long list of railroad bonds pushed up major fractions to 2 or 3 points today in a renewal of the advance which got under way last week. Other groups were fully steady, altho some declines were scattered thru the list and gains were mostly in fractions. Investment demand helped higher priced corporates.

Sales expanded to $13,184,500 from $9,708,200 last Friday. The Associated Press average of 20 rails moved to another new high since 1937 at 94.6, up .2, after establishing new peaks on four successive days last week.

CHICAGO LIST ADVANCES.

Prices rose on turnover of 42,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Most actively traded issues included New York Central, up ½; Miller and Hart, up ½; Chicago corporation and Standard Dredging, each unchanged, and Peoples Gas Light and Coke, down ½. Among five issues at 1944 highs was Cudahy Packing preferred, up 1 to 105.

NEW AMPHIBIOUS TANK OUTPUT IS TOLD BY GRAHAM

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 4 [Special].—Production of an improved type of amphibious tank by Graham-Paige Motors corporation was disclosed today by Joseph W. Frazer, chairman, in announcing output of the 1,000th "alligator" amphibious tank.

Lay Post-War International Air Plans Now, U.S. Advised

The United States must begin planning its future in international aviation because the "British are busy setting their house in order with world air transport domination as a goal," Capt. C. H. Schildhauer, office of the chief of naval operations, told the Society of Automotive Engineers in the Knickerbocker hotel last night.

"A particular period of planning has not received enough attention," he said. "It could be termed the pre-post-war period which will encompass the actual military operations of international freight and passenger air lines and the picking up of these tasks by commercial operators.

British Lay Out Program.

"The obvious 'handwriting on the wall' in respect to the pre-post-war period has been read by the British who are slaving out a program of expansion in many directions."

Col. Harold R. Harris, chief of staff, army air transport command, said the civil aeronautics administration limitations on gross cargo weights were too conservative and should be liberalized.

Growth of air freight service immediately after the war will depend on development of demand for such shipping, the extent of rate reductions, and the use of converted surplus cargo aircraft, Carlos Wood and A. B. Croshere Jr., design engineers for Douglas Aircraft company, said in a joint paper.

"Altho it appears that transport of bulk commercial goods will continue to be by surface means in the future as in the past, it is becoming apparent that a large market may be developed in the transportation of perishable foods," they said.

Periodicals Offer Market.

"In addition, the periodical distribution business may develop into a steady user of air transport. In certain cases, delivery by air of staple manufactured articles of high value will be economically advisable in order to reduce inventory and capital charges.

"If the post-war plane is designed to assist reduction in overhead costs, and contract carriage allows higher load factors, it might require as many as 2,100 planes to satisfy shipping needs in 1950 if cargo rates can be established at about 14.6 cents a ton mile, which seems possible from information available."

Such an expansion might require the services of 70,000 persons, and would put air cargo operations in the "big business class and affect markedly the economy of the country as a really useful adjunct to its transportation system," they said.

CONSIDER PRICE HIKE TO LIFT OIL RESERVE, HOUSE GROUP URGES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Asserting that oil reserves are dwindling rapidly, the house small business committee today urged consideration of higher price ceilings on crude oil. The current OPA price policy "is driving the independent producer of petroleum out of business" and has developed "a trend toward monopoly," it reported to congress.

The committee suggested that OPA undertake immediately a survey of costs in the producing and refining industry with a view to encouraging increased exploration to build up reserves.

"Exploration is a normal function of the independent producer," the report said, "but the OPA refuses to make sufficient allowance in crude oil price ceilings and premium payment procedures to encourage further exploration."

Should the survey recommend increased prices, the committee suggested payment of a subsidy to marginal cost refiners instead of consumer price hikes.

TREND TOWARD REDUCED CITY TAXES REVERSED

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Mounting public pay rolls in 1943 reversed the war time trend toward reduction of municipal tax rates in the United States, the National Municipal league said today.

Rosina K. Mohaupt of the Detroit bureau of governmental research, said, "Repeated demands for salary increases rather than any pronounced increase in the number of municipal employes have been responsible for increased pay rolls." In the National Municipal Review, she said that only 40 per cent of the 252 cities reporting on both 1943 and 1943 tax rates showed adjusted tax rate decreases compared with 53 per cent in the study of the 1942 rate. Thirty-nine per cent reported higher tax rates.

Cities with populations of 250,000 to 500,000 showed an average decrease of 14 cents in adjusted tax rate and those of 30,000 to 50,000 population a decrease of 2 cents. Rates increased in municipalities in all other population groups. Chicago, at $39.90, had the highest tax rate among cities of 1 million or more population reporting.

MATTRESS TICK LACK FORCING PLANT CLOSING

Exports to Canada Are Protested.

The United States has a shortage of ticking for mattresses so severe that some mattress factories already have closed and many more will be forced to suspend operations in the next two or three months, J. P. Fanning, secretary and general manager of the National Association of Bedding Manufacturers, said yesterday.

Fanning, attending the association's annual convention in the Palmer House, protested against the further exportation of ticking to Canada at a 7 per cent premium over United States ceiling prices.

Canadian Imports Increase.

He quoted department of commerce figures to show large increases in Canadian imports. For instance, osnaburg, a fabric used for box spring facings, which Fanning said is unobtainable in the United States without a top priority rating, was sent to Canada in heavy quantities last year, 16,653,983 yards, compared with 2,748,297 yards in 1940. Canadian imports of sheetings, used on cheaper mattresses, last year were six times the amount of 1940. Sheetings also are almost unobtainable in the United States, he said.

The shortage of ticking also was attributed to the fact that many ticking looms have been diverted to the production of army tent twill.

Innerspring mattresses, despite a few spot authorizations, probably will not become available for a year, Fanning predicted. Little steel is available because of the large demand by the army and navy for wire rope.

Use New Allotments.

More steel recently has been allotted by the war production board, but it has been used for coil and box springs rather than innerspring mattresses.

Fanning predicted mass production of longer than standard headboard beds as a post-war development. Selective service figures show men average an inch taller now than during the last war, with a 70 per cent increase in the number of men 6 feet tall and over. He said the headboard bed is one with no footboard, with the legs attached to the mattress and springs, with a decorative headboard.

IDLE FIRE DUTY COMPENSABLE, SAYS HIGH COURT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—The Supreme court held today that, in some cases at least, employes are entitled to overtime pay for waiting idle until some work turns up.

The court, however, declined to lay down a flat rule that such payment is mandatory under the fair labor standards act. The circumstances govern in each individual case, the opinion on two separate cases said, and it is up to trial courts to determine the facts. Justice Jackson announced the decisions which were unanimous.

Armour Plant Involved.

In one case, involving private firemen at an Armour & Co. soap factory in Chicago, the lower courts held that exclusive of time spent sleeping and eating, the employes were entitled to overtime pay for time spent as fire guards at night. They remained on the company's property at night after completing a regular 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. shift as firemen.

During the night the men were restricted to the company's fire hall. They answered any fire alarms and made temporary repairs to fire fighting equipment. This work amounted to less than half an hour a week. The remainder of the time, outside of the sleeping and eating was largely spent in recreation.

The Supreme court upheld the lower court in awarding overtime payments in this case.

In the other case involving employes in a similar situation at the Swift & Co. plant at Fort Worth, Tex., the lower courts had denied the employes' claim to overtime compensation saying that as a "conclusion of law" the workers were not entitled to it under the labor standards act.

The Supreme court reversed the lower courts in the Swift case, declaring that there is no principle of law which precludes waiting time from also being work time. That case goes back to the trial court for a decision on the circumstances involved.

Upset Verdict on Fraud.

The court today reversed by a five to four vote the conviction of Justav H. Kann, Pittsburgh, former president of Triumph Explosives, Inc., of Elkton, Md., on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud stockholders. The majority opinion by Justice Roberts held that the alleged use of the mails was "merely incidental and collateral to the scheme and not a part of it."

Justice Roberts delivered the court's opinion, in which Justices Reed, Stone, Frankfurter, and Murphy concurred. Dissenting were Justices Douglas, Black, Rutledge, and Jackson.

The court tomorrow will hear arguments on appeals in the government's civil anti-trust suit against the Associated Press, nonprofit cooperative news organization.

FINISHED STEEL SHIPMENTS DIP IN 3D QUARTER

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Total shipments of finished steel products by American manufacturers in the third quarter of 1944 amounted to 15,004,620 tons, compared with 15,127,001 in the second quarter and 15,538,984 tons in the first, the American Iron and Steel institute reported today.

Increased shipments for such war materials as shells, bombs, guns, tanks, and other ordnance materials was indicated by the total going to the miscellaneous and export classifications in which category the war steel is included for security reasons. Shipyards, automotive, and aircraft companies used less steel than in the two preceding periods.

Steel production this week was estimated at 1,727,000 net tons with mills operating at 96 per cent of capacity, compared with 96.3 per cent and 1,732,400 net tons a week ago and a month ago.

HOG PRICES DIP, BUT HOLD HIGH FOR DECEMBER

Altho prices of some classes of meat animals fell from last week's levels, most kinds yesterday at the stock yards brought some of the highest December prices since the inflation period which followed the World war. The hog top, at $13.90 a hundred pounds, was off 10 cents from last week's close, but above the top prices on the first Monday in any December since 1918.

Cattle sold slowly at weak to 25 cents lower prices, compared with Saturday, and showed 75 cents to $1 decline from a week ago.

Lambs slumped 25 to 50 cents under pressure of the heaviest supplies in more than a year.

BOOSTED PRICES DECREASE SALES OF FARM LANDS

BY AL CHASE.

Buying of farms is slowing in the Chicago area and prices are declining, a survey showed yesterday. Both farmers and city investors are losing interest in land at peak prices which they forced by heavy and continuous buying. In recent months prices have declined $25 to $30 an acre from last spring's high.

Apprehension over inflation, a prime factor in building the big market for farms among city investors, has apparently decreased, brokers said, but the soaring prices were blamed for slowed buying because they were too high to permit adequate profit.

Expects Prices to Hold.

Ami L. Allen, St. Charles farm land broker, said sales had slowed in the last 90 days. He expected no slump and predicted prices would hold fairly well for the next five years, but would not increase.

"Farmers are not anxious to pay more than $200 an acre," Allen said. "Farms which formerly sold at $150 to $175 an acre have been selling at $200 to $225. But recently sellers have had to cut prices to induce buying.

Terms Prices Lower.

"Many city investors are looking for farms but they are hesitating at high prices. An investor will not pay as much as a man who lives on and operates a farm. We have had almost as many inquiries this fall as we had last spring, but not as many buyers. This slow up is not seasonal, but is caused by the high prices."

Joseph C. Reuse, Libertyville dealer in farms, said prices were lower than last spring, but were too high to attract buyers.

In other localities, farm buying was reported continuing at a fast rate. Officials of the United Farm agency of Kansas City, Mo., said that in 20 years of selling farms thruout the midwest they had never seen such large scale buying of farm lands.

Emphasis was said to be on the land and not the price. People who cannot buy cars or similar heavy goods are turning to nonrationed land, the agency said.

ALLIES PLAN TIGHTER CONTROL OF SHIPPING UNTIL JAP COLLAPSE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—The war shipping administration today announced plans for continuing coördinated operation of allied shipping in the period between defeat of Germany and surrender of Japan.

It made public a report of the planning committee of the united maritime authority calling for "the least possible departure from existing war time practices," in shipping control.

The report was approved last month by the united maritime executive board and has been accepted by eight contracting governments.

It provides for two branches of the executive board—one in Washington and the other in London. In each case, board members will be representatives of the United States, Great Britain, the Netherlands, and Norway.

Four other nations—Canada, Belgium, Greece, and Poland—will each have an associate member on each branch board.

COURT DECISION TO CUT COST OF AERO GAS TO U. S.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—The Newark, N. J., federal District court today authorized 18 oil companies to enter into agreements, making available to industry royalty free the use of hydrogenation patents during the war. The process is used in the manufacture of aviation gasoline.

In announcing the action, Atty. Gen. Biddle said that when the agreements are completed they will assure the government of substantial savings on war purchases of aviation gasoline. Stockholders of Hydro Patents company, including Standard Oil company [New Jersey] and 17 other members of the hydrogenation patent pool have approved the order authorizing the agreements, Biddle said.

An anti-trust decree issued in 1942 directed Standard of New Jersey to issue licenses under all of its hydrogenation patents royalty free until six months after the war and at reasonable royalties for the remaining life of the patents. The proposed new agreements would make patents and technical information of the 17 other stockholders of Hydro Patents available to any one requesting them, Biddle said. This includes information on inventions made at any time up to Jan. 1, 1948.

Joliet's Woodruff Hotel Purchased by Lessee

Frank J. Gospodaric, liquor dealer and former mayor of Rockdale, yesterday purchased the 100 room Woodruff hotel in Joliet. The price was not disclosed. Gospodaric has been operating the hotel under lease since last May. The sellers were F. W. Woodruff, president of the First National bank of Joliet, and his wife.

WICKARD URGES DIVERSIFICATION ON COTTON LAND

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP).—Seeking a solution to the cotton problem, a congressional committee today heard Secretary of Agriculture Wickard urge a broad crop diversification program to cut output.

Under the proposal, American grown cotton would sell at world market levels. Only the most productive lands would be left in cotton and full use would be made of mechanical equipment to lower production costs. Farmers who turned partly or wholly to other crops, or to live stock raising, would receive payments based on the adjustments.

War Food Administrator Jones, who preceded Wickard before the committee, asserted that the success of any program developed would depend first on maintenance of full industrial employment and second on negotiation of world trade pacts.

The two officials testified at the opening of what is expected to be a week long hearing called by Chairman Pace [D., Ga.] to get views of every part of the cotton industry.

Wickard said a crop conversion program would have to be supplemented by a credit plan enabling farmers to buy needed machinery and live stock. He conceded the plan would cost heavily at first, but contended it offered the only sound course to avert large subsidies.

His plan would let prices of cotton drop to the world market level, but farmers would receive temporary payments based on adjustments to enter new operations.
